Jennifer Grimes Reigns

Miss Magic Flair Wins Pa. Holstein Show, Futurity

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A 3-year-old Holstein owned by Barbara Reisinger and Heidi Miller, of Carlisle not only won the Ketystone 3-year-old Futurity and $1,189.22, but was also named grand champion of the state Holstein Fall Championship show.

Miss Magic Flair, a daughter of Romandale Magic, was first in the futurity class, besting an entry from Penn Gate Farm, of Littlestown, in Adams County, Penn Gate Mark Abbey, and then went on to outperform the best of the regular senior class winners to take the senior and grand championships.

The 3-year-old was also named best bred and owned of the show.

And though their entries didn't take the championship title, the cattle exhibited by Penn-Gate Farms were strong enough to win the family farm both the show's premier breeder and premier exhibitor banners.

The state show is the culmination of the year's officially sanctioned state Holstein shows. It is held annually at Harrisburg during All-American Dairy Show Week, which features national, regional and state dairy shows for all six recognized dairy breeds.

Judge for Tuesday's show was James Burdette, of Mercersburg, who is a well-known Holstein breeder and who has shown and won with his Windy-Knoll View prefix cattle, including a national champion, Windy-Knoll View Ultimate Pala.

Though it is Burdette's first judging of the Pennsyvania Fall Championship, he has been a judge for other states' Hosltein shows.

According to statistics provided, Miss Magic Flair also has been milking well for the Reisinger-Miller partnership, recording 25,408 pounds of milk at

Northeast Chicken Parts

Wednesday, September 22, 1993

Trucklot buying interest was light and limited to immediate needs only. Supplies of boneless skinless breasts were irregularly distributed and ranged adequate to fully adequate. Trading was reported at lower prices and the undertone was weak. Line run breasts were available and offered. Buyers bid sharply lower prices and most hoped their bids would not be accepted. Trading was limited to standing commitments. Thighs were short of trade needs. Legs and drumsticks were adequate but slow to clear. Leg quarters were fully adequate to ample. Prices trended lower. Wings were readily available, trading was at competitive prices.

PRICES&PAID PER POUND, ICE PACKED AND CO2 PACKED BROILER/FRYER PARTS, DELIVERED TO FIRST RECEIVERS IN POOL TRUCKLOT AND TRUCKLOT QUANTITIES.

NY Phila. Frozen Eggs

SEPTEMBER 21, 1993

Prices were generally unchanged under an improved underlying trade sentiment. Trading activity was fair at best as higher trending asking prices had buyers reassessing their needs. Raw materials although usually available were being held with increased confidence. Floor stocks were adequate to satisfy current trade interest.

New York Egg Market

Tuesday, September 21, 1993

Prices trended higher. The trade sentiment was fully steady to firm. Movement of cartoned eggs into retail channels was fairly good to good. Supplies of larger sizes continued in close balance with trade needs, mediums were adequate. The New Jersey inventory was 21 percent below last Monday's level and the New York inventory was 10 percent above last week.

Delmarva Broiler/Fryer Market

Wednesday, September 22, 1993

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was generally limited to previous commitments. Seller offerings were readily available and slow in clearing, particularly 3 pound and heavier sizes. Live supplies were moderate. Weights were often heavier than desired. Processing schedules remained heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were 1 cent lower at 57 to 67 cents. Trade sentiment was weak and unsettled. In the parts complex, all items were noted as available and slow in clearing with the exception of boneless skinless thighs, which were short of full inquiry.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

SEPT. 27-OCT. 3, 1993

MICHAELMAS

September 29, the feast day of the Archangel Michael, was a Christian convert from the ancient Celtic calendar, but its importance as a seasonal signpost continued. In the British Isles crops were harvested and sold by late September, so farmers paid their yearly rent to landowners on Michaelmas. Everyone ate goose at Michaelmas to bring prosperity, so many included "a goose fit for the lord's dinner" with their payment. Great market fairs occurred just before the feast day, and the large crowds made it convenient to hold elections then as well. The custom of fall elections has continued, but in our climate they, as well as harvest celebrations and goose (or turkey) dinners, have shifted to November.

Never eat a blackberry after Michaelmas, for the devil spits on them all!

TIP OF THE WEEK

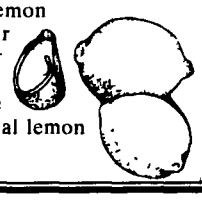
EARTHWISE

You can make your own dusting cloth for cleaning your wooden furniture Thoroughly combine ¼ cup vinegar and ½ to 1 teaspoon olive oil in a small bowl Soak up the solution with a cotton cloth and use this to dust and shine all your wooden furniture The vinegar will evaporate, leaving no odor and a nice shine, but you can substitute lemon juice for vinegar if you'd like the traditional lemon scent



RED CABBAGE WITH APPLES

Traditionally served with roast goose or pork

- 1 onion, chopped
- 4 tablespoons bacon fat
- 1 head red cabbage, shredded
- ½ cup dry red wine
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 2 apples, peeled and sliced
- salt and pepper

Sauté onion in bacon fat until tender. Add cabbage and stir well to coat. Add wine, vinegar, and sugar Bring to boil and add apples, salt, and pepper Reduce heat, cover tightly, and simmer until tender, about 45 minutes, adding water as necessary.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

NORTHEAST: Cold wave, rainy then clearing; cloudy and mild north, sunny and warm south and west.

SOUTHEAST: Clear and hot Florida then rainy and mild; heavy rain coast; sunny and cool west; showers then clearing.

MIDWEST: Clear and cold, showers, then clearing and warm

NORTHWEST: Clear and warm then rainy and cooler.

SOUTHWEST: Clear and warm, seasonable and cloudy, some showers, then clear and warm California, cool and showery mountains.

Lancaster Farming

OPINION

Environmentally-Minded Farmers

While pundits loudly debate the meaning and importance of "new" concepts like sustainable agriculture, American farmers are quietly embracing sustainable practices and have been for years.

Garfield Thomas, an official with Sandoz Agro, was one of the speakers at the recent National Association of County Agricultural Agents' annual convention in Baltimore. Thomas said agriculture has always changed, and the extension service has always helped farmers adapt and adopt new farming practices.

"If you read the general press," Thomas said, "you get the idea that sustainable agriculture is some revolutionary idea that hit American farming like a bolt of lighting. But I don't see a revolution. I see evolutionary change that comes from new knowledge, new attitudes and new tools.

"The bigger issue is not whether we support sustainable agriculture or low input sustainable agriculture or integrated pest management," Thomas said. "The bigger issue is that farming in the United States is changing, and we are part of that change."

Questions and concerns about the environment have been driving agriculture since the 1960's and continue to do so. In a recent Gallup poll, more than half of the farmers have increased their concern for the environment. In addition, the economic factor has made farmers "push the pencil" more.

But the fact remains that the chemicals and fertilizers that are on the market today are environmentally safe when used to soil test needs and when used according to label recommendation. As one very conservation-minded farmer told us, all the harmful chemicals have been removed from the market. "I have no problem using what is available," he said. "and I get good results.

The goal is to balance the needs of the crop with the needs of the environment. And farmers are reaching that goal better than any other segment of society that uses our natural resources.

To Consider Harvesting Soybeans For Silage

Using soybeans as a forage crop is not new. It was done up until the mid-1950s, according to Dr. Elwood Hatley, Penn State Agronomist.

According to Hatley, soybeans had been grown mostly in the south and used as a forage. In the 1950s, the production of soybeans moved to the Midwest, and soybeans became a grain crop. Early in the history of the crop, soybeans were grown as a hay crop and may still be used as a hay crop today.

Forage quality of soybeans is satisfactory when harvested at the correct time. Harvesting should begin when the lower leaves turn yellow and before too many drop from the plant. At this point, the pods should be filled but still green. The feeding value should be between 17 and 20 percent crude protein and about 62 percent TDN on a dry matter basis.

At this stage of maturity, the total plant moisture of soybeans should be about 75 percent. It is critical that the conditioner rolls be set so the pods are not removed from the plant.

Precaution should be taken to check the herbicide's label for those herbicides which were applied to the crop before harvesting. Some products may restrict the use of soybeans for a forage crop.

Dr. William Curran, Penn State extension weed specialist, lists the following products as having label restrictions: Assure, Basagran, Blazer, Classic, Cobra, Fusilade, Galaxy, Pinnacle, Post and Post Plus, Pursuit, Reflex, Scepter and Storm. To be safe, check the label of the herbicides you used to see what the restrictions are.

To Be Aware Of Prussic Acid

There are a number of feed plants which may have toxic amounts of prussic acid under the right conditions.

The major plants of concern are members of the sorghum family. These include sorghum, sorghum-Sudan crosses, and Johnsongrass. These plants may have toxic levels of prussic acid in new growth which follows either frost, a severe period of drought, a period of heavy trampling, or physical damage or abundant rainfall.

Prussic acid usually becomes a problem around the time of a killing frost. Poisoned animals show signs of nervousness, abnormal breathing, trembling or jerking muscles, blue coloration of the lining of the mouth, and respiratory failure followed by death.

Keep animals away from partially frosted material until all growth has been killed by frost. Then it should be safe to graze or feed animals.

To Be Aware Of Acorn Poisoning

Speaking about animal poisoning, another area to be concerned about is acorn poisoning. Acorn poisoning generally deals its most severe blow in September and early October.

It seems cattle like newly fallen acorns the best. If you are grazing cattle in pastures with oak trees, take some precautions to keep cattle from eating acorns. These include removing cattle from pastures with oak trees when acorns begin to fall or fence the cattle away from acorns.

Acorn poisoning will not occur until acorns start falling. Clinical signs are loss of appetite, listlessness, weakness, constipation early, followed by diarrhea which may be dark colored or bloody, and animals will appear bowed in the back.

Animals become weak and eventually go down. Affected animals may show yellow color, dehydration, and bloody urine. There are no specific treatments except rumen stimulant (mineral oil) and fluid for dehydration.

If possible, the removal of animals from the source of acorns will greatly reduce any loss and increase the success rate of treatment. The earlier the treatment begins, the greater the success rate of recovery.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

The Rainbow Promise
Sept. 26, 1993

Background Scripture:
Genesis 3:14-24; 6:5-8, 11-27, 9:8-13.
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 36: 1-4, 7-9; 62:1,2

A TV program recently told of yet another expedition to Turkey to find Noah's ark on the slopes of Mt. Ararat. At a time when the world so desperately needs to rediscover the meaning of the story the flood and Noah's ark, I cannot help but wonder why anyone would spend so much time, effort and money on finding the ark itself.

For, even if this expedition were to find the remains of a 5,000 year old sailing vessel on the slopes of Ararat, it would prove nothing and it would benefit no one. What we need is the message behind the ark, not the ark itself. This story, like some of the other stories in Genesis, is one whose truth is not historical so much as it is eternal.

Not that I do not believe the great flood actually took place. There are stories of this sort throughout much of the world, as far away as Australia and the Amazon. In the Middle East there are epics of a great flood that predate Genesis. There are striking similarities between some of them, but the story in Genesis is the only one with a specific message from God to human kind.

IN MAN'S IMAGE

So, there may be a historical reality behind it, but the story in Genesis is not history. It is more like the stories that Jesus told. They had an important truth, but not everything in the stories was to be taken literally.

In the story of Noah this is particularly true in the writer's portrayal of God. We are told that "The Lord saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth..And the Lord was sorry that he had made man on the earth" (6:5,6). If you take that to be a literalLY, you must conclude that God realized that he had made a mistake in creating humanity. Humans make mistakes and regret what they have done, but not the all-wise, all-knowing Creator.

Voltaire who once said that if God made man in his image, man had certainly returned the compliment. It is typical for human beings to project their own humanity on to their God, but that doesn't mean that God is like us with ups or downs, regrets and remorse, and changes of mind. Nor does he have to be reminded of his purpose. All of these are human traits, not divine. When the flood story indicates that God originally intended to destroy all humanity, but was persuaded to change his mind and save Noah and his ark, I cannot help conclude that we are looking inside the mind of a human being, not the God of the Universe.

SIN & REDEMPTION

What, then, is the message of this story? Essentially, it is a story about the consequences of sin and the promise of redemption. Whether a wooden ark rests on Ararat or not, that is truth now, always has been, and always will be.

In the story of Adam and Eve we saw that there were consequences to there disobedience. They lost the garden of Eden and their existence would be a lot harder and demanding because of it. There is a cause and effect relationship; God says: "Because you have done this..." It is true also in the story of the flood. Genesis tells us, "Now the earth was corrupt in God's sight, and the earth was filled with violence..." Therefore, there would be great destruction. Sin always exacts a terrible price.

But the end of the story of Noah is one of redemption. Despite the staggering evil of human behavior, God holds out to us his redemption — not because we deserve it, but because he desires to do so out of love. Although humanity has tried to deface the divine image within and scuttle his great plan, he offers us the rainbow promise of his saving love.

While most lenders have barely scratched the surface in agriculture, we've gone a bit further.

Fact is, you can explain your needs to some bankers until you're blue in the face and chances are they still won't understand. Farm Credit loan officers, on the other hand, have been through the most comprehensive ag lending training program in the nation. And many have farm backgrounds themselves.

They can approve loans for just about any farm need from land to equipment. And since a committee isn't necessary for most decisions, loan approval is easy and fast.

Stop by and talk with your Farm Credit loan officer.

Bury a little residue. Or a lot.

The new White 445 Chisel Plow makes complying with residue guidelines and requirements easy. Options like rippled coulters and chisel points set at 15" spacing leave lots of residue. Concave coulters and twisted shovels set at 12" spacing leave less residue. And these are just a few of the combinations available.

Our deep-till shank option rips hardpan by tilling 4" to 6" deeper than chisel shanks. This reduces compaction problems. And our leveling bar option provides a smoother surface for your next pass.

White Row Crop Cultivators are designed for high speed

4-Year-Old Cow Becomes Ephrata Fair Supreme

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — A 4-year-old Holstein, Turnpike-View Furious Dam (S: Dale-Pride Val Furious, D: Turnpike-View Columbus Daphne) won supreme champion cow on Wednesday afternoon at the Ephrata Fair.

The animal, owned by Dennis Gerhart, 21, was exhibited by his brother, Mark, 18, Reinholds. The cow exhibited "good dairy character throughout, with a definite advantage in the mammary system," according to Rick Hess, nutrition consultant with Hess Mills, Paradise, judge for the show.

Mark said he was happy to show the Cloister FFA project animal for his brother, Dennis, who had to work. Parents of the brothers are Charles and Mary Gerhart, Reinholds.

For the two other breeds present, Tom Zartman, Jr. swept the championship of the Brown Swiss show. Ayrshire show champion went to John Gerhart.

In all, there were a total of 28 animals and 16 exhibitors at the fair. Following is a list of show placings.

High Captures Championship

DENVER (Lancaster Co.) — Casey High, 14-year-old son of Larry and Mae High, Lititz, exhibited his 1,218-pound steer named "Boxer" to supreme champion beef of the Denver Fair last week.

Reserve champion was shown by Ben Weist, 10.

Casey's 1,218-pound steer sold to Badorf Shoe Company, Lititz, for $1.65 per pound at an auction following the show. Ben's 1,248-pound reserve was sold for $1.10 per pound to Keystone Farm Credit.

At the show, Tammy Gelsinger exhibited the grand champion Farm Show preview steer. Her brother Troy exhibited the reserve champion.

Tammy placed first in the senior showmanship class, followed by Troy and then Casey. In junior showmanship, Ben Weist placed first and Kyle Zerbe was second. Kyle had the top lightweight preview steer. Of the sale steers, Casey had the top lightweight, followed by Tammy and Richard Kerper and Jason Manwiller. Ben Weist had the top heavyweight sale steer, followed by Troy Gelsinger and Peter Hoffines.

Show judge was Ken Winebark, Lebanon County agent. Auctioneer was Henry Leid.

3.3 percent fat on a first lactation of 305 days.

The reserve senior and reserve grand champion was 5-year-old Penn-Gate Beautician Clara, shown by Penn-Gate Farm. Penn-Gate is run by Robert Gitt, daughter Christine and son-in-law Steve Wood, and hired man Richard Lehman. The sire to the reserve grand champion was Happy Herd Beautician.

The junior champion Holstein, in both the adult and junior-member (youth) shows was a winter yearling shown by Danielle Sparling, of Troy. Her Maple-Falt Ares Rosie was also a bred and owned animal, sired by Lylehaven Ares-ET.

The reserve junior champion was a spring yearling shown by Lynn and Bonnie Miller, of Royal Haven farm, in Towanda. Their Royal-Haven Inspire Quill, is a Hanover-Hill Inspiration daughter. The Millers also showed another Hanover Hill Inspiration spring yearling to take second place in the class.

The youth show grand champion was a 6-year-old Walk-A-Way Fond Reliance daughter, Cove-Run Reliance Gloria, shown by Ty Christman, of Chambersburg. It was class winner for both the open and junior division shows.

The reserve grand champion Holstein of the junior division show was a junior 3-year-old shown by Lory Ann Baker, of Petersburg. Globe-Run CB Topgun Oslo, sired by a farm-raised bull, Globe-Run Warden Topgun. It was also the first place class winner of the open show, and the best bred and owned of the junior division.

Another award presented during the fall show is a total performance recognition, given in memory of long-time Holstein breed supporter George Knight. This year's recipients of the award were Mike and Cindy Weimer, of Emlenton.

Are your wheat profits getting lost at the mill?

You've just harvested your wheat crop and the yields look pretty good. Looks like you'll even make enough to pay your taxes. Then you haul the grain to the mill. It's weighed. And you find out your test weights are under 58 lb/bu.

So instead of getting full profit, you lose 8¢ for every bushel you produce. Even more if your test weights are substantially under 58 lb/bu. So much for paying off the taxes.

Maximize your profits with unmatched test weights.

With Hoffman 89, you'll get every penny from your wheat crop. In three-year trials conducted by Penn State and the University of Maryland, Hoffman 89 weighed in with the top test weight across all locations.

Best of all, it produced test weights of 58 lb/bu or more every single time, topping the mean test weight by at least 4%.

Get superior test weights without sacrificing yield.

But superior test weights are only half the story with Hoffman 89. You'll also get top-end yields that will have you smiling all the way to the bank.

Its 98 bu/A average, for example, produced a 5% advantage over the mean yield of 92.9 bu/A in Lancaster County trials. At $3.00 per bushel, you'd make $15.30 more per acre using Hoffman 89.

Winter hardiness boosts plant population.

Hoffman 89 features excellent winter hardiness to improve percent stand come spring. It also tillers better than many varieties to increase overall plant population. Superior standability and Powdery Mildew tolerance ensure maximum yield potential for added profitability.

Stop losing your profits at the mill.

Tired of losing your profits at the mill? Then call your local Hoffman sales representative. Or call Hoffman Seeds at 1-800-776-7929. We'll show you how to get the most from your wheat crop using Hoffmán 89.

Reiff Repeats Previous Wins With Market Championship At Ephrata

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — As she did in five other county fairs this season, Lisa Reiff captured the grand champion market lamb title and the showmanship title on Wednesday evening at the Ephrata Fair.

In the breeding sheep division, Jerry Bollinger and his Suffolk yearling ram was named the grand champion breeding sheep. Bollinger, 18, also was named reserve in the overall showmanship category.

Since he graduated from Ephrata, Bollinger works full time, but continues to enjoy raising sheep on the side with his twin brother and a younger brother on his parents', Ray and Sharon Bollinger's farm.

"It's my best year ever," Bollinger said of his reserve championship at Ephrata, Denver, and for showing the champion market lamb at the 4-H Fair earlier this year. He also showed the supreme champion ewe at the E-town Fair. The Suffolk yearling ram, Vernon, was purchased from James Heffner.

In the breeding sheep competition, Jerry Bollinger's Suffolk yearling ram is named champion over all breeds with Jessica's Stoltzfus's Dorset ewe named reserve.

For the third year in a row, Jessica Stoltzfus took the reserve champion breeding sheep title with a Dorset ewe. The 13-year-old Jessica has a 15-head flock of both breeding and market sheep. She prefers the breeding sheep because she becomes more attached to them since she keeps them a longer period of time. Jessica is the daughter of Frank and Irene Stoltzfus of Elizabethtown.

The top quality market lambs that Lisa Reiff consistently shows are the result of an exercise program that she puts her Suffolk flock through.

"I'm doing the same thing as every other year," she said. Lisa and her brother Lyndon, children of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Reiff of Strasburg, have been accumulating trophy after trophy in county fair competitions for the last several years. Lisa said her sheep earnings go into a college fund and partially to support Lyndon who is now in a Bible training school in New Zealand.

Nine-year-old Ryan who took the reserve market lamb title with his medium-weight Suffolk-cross, Twinkle, said that the same lamb was also named reserve at the Elizabethtown Fair.

He doesn't plan to sell Twinkle, but to put her back in the breeding program that he and his parents, Ed and LaRue Donough operate on their Manheim farm. The Donoughs have 20 breeding ewes and use all homebred lambs to show. The lambs are conditioned by putting them through hurdles and an exercise program.

Last year, Ryan showed the grand champion overall at the Manheim Fair. Twinkles is a niece of that champion.

"We are playing genetics for show sheep and it seems to be paying off," Ryan's dad said. Four years ago, he purchased a top quality ram in Indiana, which is used for breeding.

In a repeat performance of five other county fairs, Lisa Reiff takes the grand champion market lamb honors. The reserve championship goes to Ryan Donough. Judge John Eaton Jr., center, praises the good sportmanship and showmanship displayed by the participants.

Judge John Eaton Jr., York County livestock judge, classified the 83 entries as tough judging because of the extreme competitiveness of the quality of sheep shown. Eaton was especially impressed with the good sportmanship and showmanship displayed by participants in the show.

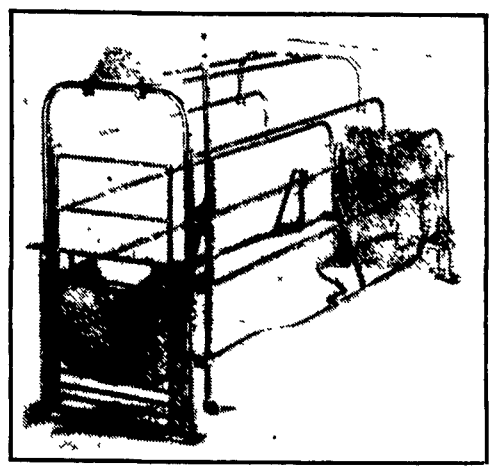
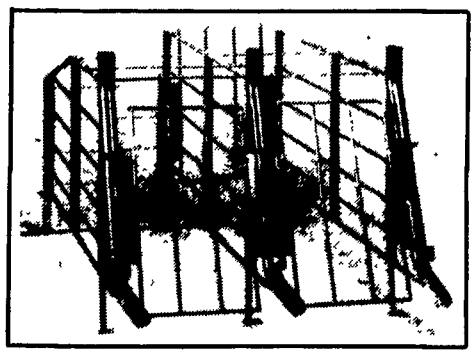
PIG SAVER "DUTCH CRATE"

Developed through testing in our research farms the goal was to develop a crate that nearly eliminates crushing, due to lay one, unmatched durability and be easy to work around. All this has been achieved by a unique gravity flipnail that forces sows to lie down slowly and using stainless steel for rear doors and legs, proven horizontal and solid steel rod construction. All this at a reasonable cost. Crate also can be installed on an angle.



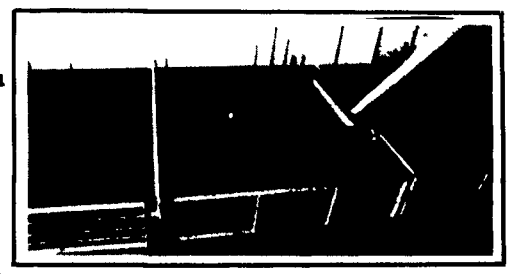


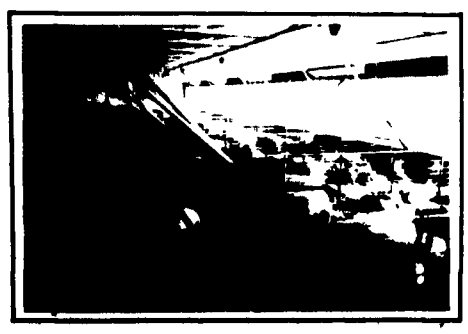
CONFINEMENT STALL

Developed recently in our R&D farm. Our goals were convenience, safety and durability. The low back and flat top rails are easy to reach over with no sharp edges. Stainless steel rear legs and front feet along with solid steel horizontal rods through punched uprights provide the strongest, most durable stall ever produced by Tri-County (21"-24" O.C. x 86")

NURSERY PENNING

Nursery penning has been improved by the use of an optional solid stainless steel panel on the front gates which keeps walkways clean. Stainless steel verticals on penning eliminates corrosion where penning attaches to the floor. Stainless steel drinker pipes & mounting brackets also increase durability.





FINISHING PENNING

Optional stainless steel verticals and fasteners offer improved durability over other similar types of penning. Loop and flapper latch arrangement eliminates the use of drop pins. Stainless steel fence line feeders provide excellent durability and a minimum of waste.

Ag Secretary Appoints Deputy

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The state secretary of agriculture has appointed Anthony E. Wagner as deputy secretary in charge of administration.

Boyd Wolff, secretary of agriculture, announced Wagner's appointment late last week in a news release. However, Wagner has been working as adminstrative deputy for the past three weeks.

For Wagner, the move is a lateral promotion in state government. He is leaving a post as executive assistant to Governor's Budget Secretary Michael Hershock, a position he held for more than three years.

Wagner is replacing Michael Aumiller, who transferred within state government to take a position as deputy secretary of safety and standards within the state Department of Labor and Industry.

Aumiller had worked previously with the labor department prior to taking the agriculture position.

According to the press release, Wagner, 33, of Carlisle, had served in the U.S. Navy as a diver from 1979 to 1983.

Lampeter Holds Sheep And Goat Shows

Lancaster Farming Staff

LAMPETER (Lancaster Co.)—Goats and sheep competed simultaneously in the showring at the Lampeter Fair on Wednesday. The sheep show was similar in numbers to other years, but the goat show grew to 30 entries.

Amanda Grube's 3-year-old Toggenburg caught the judge Rich Stonebret's eye as the best goat of the "lovely doe classes." Eight-year-old Amanda, daughter of Tim and Roxanne of Lititz, said that she has about a 25-head herd that she has been showing since she was three years old.

Topping the competition in fitting and showmanship was Nicole Eisenhauer of Lititz. Nicole, daughter of Roxanne Eisenhauer, said that she has been raising goats for three years. Nicole's LaMancha was selected as the reserve winner.

At the Lampeter sheep show, a supreme champion is not chosen but dual winners of 4-H and FFA sale lambs are named. In the 4-H competition, Lisa Reiff of Strasburg took the trophy with a mediumweight Suffolk named Tom. She also was named tops in showmanship.

A newcomer in the winner's circle is Kyle Harnish with his medium and lightweight Suffolks, which took the FFA sale champion and reserve titles.

Kyle, a 16-year-old Penn Manor FFA'er from Washington Boro, said that this was his third year raising sheep. For the last 1½ months, Kyle has been walking his Suffolk up and down deer trails near his home.

The son of Larry and Paula Harnish is grateful his dad lets him use space in the dairy barn for his five sheep. Kyle also placed second in senior showmanship.

In his first year of showing, Tim Walker of Quarryville took the championship fitter title. Rosie, his Corriedale, is no easy sheep to clean up according to judge Melanie Horchler of Lebanon. The 9-year-old Tim is the son of Jeff and Joanne Walker.

In no-sale market lamb competition, Kerra Allen of Manheim took the championship title with her Suffolk, Blackie. The 12-year-old daughter of Keith and Kendy Allen has five sheep and her sister Katye has several more.

Goat show judge Rich Stonebret names Amanda Grube, right, for having the best doe of the show. Nicole Eisenhauer holds the reserve title and is both champion showman and fitter.

Snyder Captures Supreme Champion Sheep At Reading Fair

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

READING (Berks Co.) — A combination of five years of showing experience, breeding, and genetics combined to help Bruce Snyder, 18, Kutztown, finally clinch a championship Monday afternoon at the Reading Fair.

Not only did Bruce clinch a supreme champion sheep ribbon at the fair, but he swept both ewe and ram championships. The son of Forest and Lorraine Snyder, the FFA'er has shown at the fair five years in a row, and won reserve championships three straight times. At Reading, his Dorset fall ram "Ed" and a Southdown spring ewe lamb were picked as champions.

Bruce has been especially busy this fair season, attending about 14 fairs. He has recently shown at the Kutztown and Allentown fairs, in addition to the Gaithersburg, Md. fair. He will attend the Farmington, N.J. fair in addition to the Bloomsburg Fair and the Keystone International Livestock Expo.

Bruce works nearly full-time in a pallet repair business, and will continue to show at the Reading Fair if his schedule allows, according to his father.

Stephanie Bowman, with her Dorset ewe, picked up supreme fitter by dressing her sheep correctly and putting the wool where it's supposed to be, according to judge David Lytle, New London. Reserve went to the Hampshire shown by Theresa Anspach.

Showmanship champion went to Mike Bowman, 17, son of Roger and Nancy Bowman, Lenhartsville. The Kutztown High School senior showed his Corriedale ewe. Reserve went to Richard Kerper, son of Kay and Richard Kerper, Fleetwood. The 18-year-old Oley Valley High School senior showed his 4-H project, a Suffolk/Hampshire wether.

In all, there were a total of 29 exhibitors and about 130 sheep. Following is a list of show placings.

ARM YOUR COWS AGAINST STRESS.
ARM & HAMMER
Considering how good MEGALAC® rumen bypass fat* is, every cow should be getting it. Even your picky eaters. That's why we've developed new Low Odor MEGALAC®. It "breaks the energy barrier," just like MEGALAC®, offering 2.96 Mcal/pound that's absorbed directly in the small intestine to give your cows maximum energy for maximum production. And your finicky eaters will love the difference. Which means you'll love the difference in their performance.
Contact your Agway Feed Sales Specialist today. And make sure your cows are eating what's good for them.

Southwest 4-H District Holds Dairy Show

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — The 47th annual Pa. 4-H Southwest District Dairy Show was held recently at the Somerset County fairgrounds in Meyersdale.

There were 181 animals shown by 4-H dairy youth from Armstrong, Bedford, Fulton, Somerset, Blair, Indiana, Huntingdon, and Clearfield counties, according to the official results.

Type judge for the show was Mark Bachman, of Union City. Showmanship judge was Patty Stroup, of Greencastle.

Clark also showed the junior champion Guernsey, a fall calf. Eric Yaple, of Houtzdale, showed the reserve junior champion, a summer yearling.

In connection with the Guernsey show, Craig Andrie was named the recipient of the Lori Ann Clark Showmanship Class.

In the six-animal Ayrshire breed show, Gretchen Yaple, of Houtzdale, showed the grand and senior champion, a dry cow. Rachel McCutcheon, of Altoona, showed the reserve senior and reserve grand champion, a junior 3-year-old.

Yaple also showed both the junior champion Ayrshire, a senior yearling, and the reserve junior champion, a senior calf.

The reserve grand champion was a senior 3-year-old shown by Kendy Gable, of New Enterprise.

In the six-animal Milking Shorthorn competition, Mark Goshorn, of Blairs Mills, showed all three senior-aged animals, and won grand and senior champion with a junior 2-year-old, and reserve senior and reserve grand with a 5-year-old.

In the junior-aged Milking Shorthorn division, Orlo St. Clair, of Somerset, showed a junior calf to win the junior championship, while Jason Heeter, of Shade Gap, showed an intermediate calf to win reserve junior champion.

Consider This A Garbage Disposal For Your Lawn.

The revolutionary Model 47C ChipperVac combines a pull-behind vacuum with a self-feeding chipper/shredder to handle every kind of lawn debris from leaves to large branches and limbs. And with the ChipperVac, you don't need to shovel up your shredded material or struggle with a collection bag. Take the ChipperVac anyplace on your property where you need to chip or shred yard debris and it all goes into the solid steel container. It's that simple. And it's from EasyRake...so it's built for years of dependable use.

The Model 47C, with its two-year warranty, features:

- Large-capacity, enclosed cart for discharge of shredded debris, saving time and effort compared to a traditional chipper/shredder which discharges debris onto the ground
- Self-feeding chipper for branches and limbs up to 3 inches in diameter, using specially hardened steel knives and an inlet guard for extra safety
- Shredder using 16 free-swinging flail knives with a solid steel elliptical screen to produce consistent and finely-ground compost material
- 37+ cubic foot garden cart with removable hard top assembly and 90 degree dumping capability
- FREE operator's kit with safety goggles, gloves and hearing protection

Visit your local lawn and garden dealer today to see the new ChipperVac.

State 4-H Dairy Youth Compete

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — More than 1,000 dairy animals were exhibited Monday by state 4-H dairy youth in the Large Arena of the state Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg at the 38th annual Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show.

The heaviest numbers of animal entries were in the Holstein show with classes of up to 34 animals and in the Jersey show with several classes vying 18 to 20 animals.

Judges for the day-long, three-ring youth show were Paul King, of Moorefield, W.V., for the Holstein show; Norman Hill, of Woodbine, Md., for the Brown Swiss and Jersey breed shows; and Dr. Doug Evans, of Georgetown, N.Y., for Milking Shorthorn, Guernsey and Ayrshire breeds.

In the Ayrshire breed, the junior champion and best bred and owned animal was a senior calf, Zil-Hil-Vue Reliable Moni, shown by Chantelle Zilhaver, of Cambridge Springs. The calf was sired by Otter-Creek Jilda's Welcome.

The reserve junior champion was a summer yearling, Toll Gate Ayr Staman's Stalit, shown by Jeremy Hunter, of West Alwxander.

The senior and grand champion was a senior 3-year-old, Barton Leigh BBK Marina, shown by Michele Kobosky of Warriors Mark. She also showed the reserve senior and reserve grand champion, 4-year-old Dairy-Ayr BBK Mario, sired by Bonnie Brae Kellogg.

The reserve junior champion was a summer yearling, Wind Mill Convincer Moonlight, bred and owned by Adam splittler, of Pine Grove. The sire was Arwis MGP Convincer.

The senior and grand champion Brown Swiss was a junior 3-year-old, K & Q JK Willette, sired by Jinxs King, shown by Elizabeth

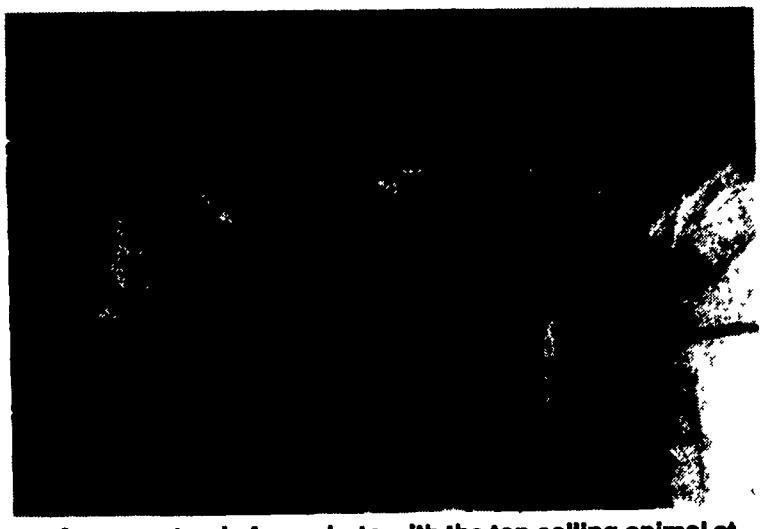
VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Though it didn't set any records, the Eastern National Holstein Sale, held Wednesday evening at the Small Arena of the state Farm Show Complex resulted in a high price of $17,700 for a senior 2-year-old, Paulo-Bro LM Delite 4026-ET, consigned by New York breeder Indelibly Stamped Genetics.

The three-hour sale totalled $271,750.16 on 76 full lots (there were several half lots) for an average of $3,575.66. Six animals brought prices of $7,000 or more.

Nisly Genetics, based out of Patriot, Ohio, purchased the top-selling Delite as the second animal offered during the sale. Delite was classified as a Very Good 85 and is projected to 27,568 pounds of milk.

The first lot offered was an open junior 3-year-old, Tidy-Brook B-Star Suzy-ET, consigned by Mark and Alan Meyers, of Greencastle. The Pennsylvania Holstein Association was the top bidder, buying the VG-85 Blackstar daughter for $15,000.



A group stands for a photo with the top selling animal at the Eastern National Holstein Sale. From the left, buyer Rob Putolka, representing Nisly Genetics, of Patriot, Ohio, stands with consignor Chuck Curtiss, and state dairy princesses Amy Mearkle, and Jennifer Grimes, and John "Ziwe" Zimmeran, who holds the halter of the $17,700 Holstein. Bill Nichol, executive secretary of the Pa. Holstein Association, stands directly behind the cow's head. Up on the auctioneer's bench are, from the left, Dave Rama and Horace Backus.

The third highest selling animal was purchased for $8,500 by Jan Jurbala, of Orangeville, and was the 21st lot offered during the night. A very senior 2-year-old, Ron-Nan leader Maiden-ET was consigned by John Jr and Vicki King, of Manchester, Maryland. Offered open for possible use as a donor dam, she was classified VG-85.

Rothrock Golden Holsteins purchased a May calf, Adams-Dream Oscar-ET, for $8,000, for the fourth highest selling animal. The calf was consigned by the partnership of Dave Rama (who also helped run the sale), T.R. Williams, and Robert and Rose Adams, of Uniondale.

The Pa. Holstein Association also purchased a May calf for $7,000 which was consigned by Plushanski Farms Inc, of Kutztown. The Exranco Thor daughter to a VG-88 Ned Boy dam has a full brother going to Japan.

The other $7,000 sale was for a first choice heifer from four pregnancies due February between Ronnybrook Prelude-ET and dam New-Life Melwood Halo-ET, a VG-87 national production leader for milk and protein. She has posted a 2-8, 365, 3X lactation record of 42,490 pounds of milk, 1,416 pounds fat and 1,347 pounds protein.

Hoss's Fore FFA Golf Tournament To Offer Hole-In-One Contests

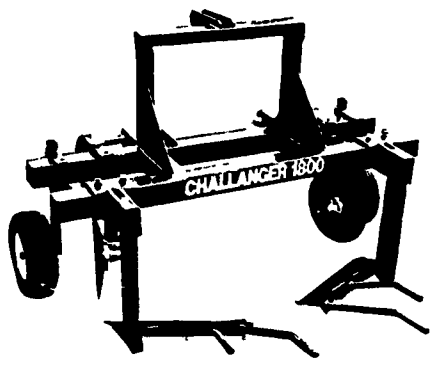
The Golf Committee of the Hoss's Fore FFA Golf Tournament has announced that all par three holes of Hawk Valley Golf Club will have hole-in-one prizes. John Steffy Buick-Pontiac dealership of Ephrata has agreed to sponsor the following hole-in-one prizes:

1994 Buick Regal sedan — hole #17; 2 US Air tickets to anywhere in the continental U.S. — hole #4; portable Oakie Cellular phone — hole #7; and a complete set of Voyager portable golf clubs — hole #11.

"John and Mike Steffy of Steffy Buick-Pontiac have added their enthusiastic support of the FFA here in Pennsylvania by making each par three a competitive hole-in-one prize possibility," said foundation president Dwight Woelkers of Hatfield Quality Meats. "All our other sponsors are equally enthusiastic about our Fore FFA Golf Tournament. This tournament is going to be fun . . . spelled with a capital F-U-N!" Reservations to play may be made by calling Mary Jo Cancelmo at (215) 648-0674.

CHALLENGER MODEL 1800

PLASTIC MULCH LIFTER



After your vegetable crop is over the Challenger is designed to retrieve the plastic mulch to the surface of the ground.

Will lift plastics from 3 ft. to 5 ft. wide with fast and easy adjustments.

On lifting plows, the farmer has choice of "Rock shears" or "Deep-suck shears" by Case International.

Its heavy duty "C" springs on the disk coulters are designed to go over rocks and cut the toughest trash and vines which keeps from clogging. Has depth control wheels for constant depth control.

Heavy shanks have ⅝ " safety shear bolts. Auto-reset is optional.

The best part of the Challenger is the price — it was designed with the small grower in mind— who doesn't want to invest a lot in removing his mulches.

This year hitch to a Challenger and let it do that dirty job!

the champion from the first place heavyweight class.

Other winners in the FFA hog show were Matt Frey, Solanco FFA, lightweight champion; Jason Reifsnyder, Penn Manor FFA, medium weight champion; and Keith Frey, Penn Manor, light heavyweight champion.

In the 4-H hog show, Crystal Charles had the champion, a crossbred gilt from the light heavyweight division; Eric Charles had the lightweight champion; and Daryl Rineer had the heavyweight champion.

In the 4-H steer show, Dale Livengood had the champion with a 1,276-pound crossbred. Only three steers were in the 4-H show. Larry Weaver, New Holland, was the judge. The combined 4-H and FFA steer show, with only a total of seven head, was the smallest show in memory.

State Ag Secretary Boyd Wolff and Mrs. Wolff visited the Lampeter Fair and said that the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture works with 112 fairs across the state. Wolff said he enjoys visiting the fairs, and it gives him the opportunity to see Pennsylvania's fine produce and meet the many nice people in agriculture.

Dale Livengood showed the champion 4-H market steer.

Supreme Dairy Award Caps Birthday Celebration

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — Winning the supreme champion dairy award at the York Fair's open class dairy show was icing on the cake for John Haar, New Oxford, co-owner of "Peace and Plenty SWD Justina."

The win by the EX-91 Valiant daughter came as Haar was celebrating his 75th birthday. He owns the third-generation Excellent in partnership with his daughter, June Boyer, York.

Justina is projected to finish her fourth lactation in the Sunnybend herd of the Tom and June Boyer family with more than 31,000 pounds in 365 days, topping her previous lactation of 30,900 pounds. She was also named champion at the York Holstein Show in July and has won numerous awards since her first trip through the showring as a heifer.

Just prior to the supreme selection, Justina had been named champion of the Holstein show. In selecting her in for the supreme titlist, dairy show judges Mike Haines and Jason Myers, both from Maryland, praised the scale and tremendous body of the tall, upstanding 7-year-old cow.

The supreme champion title was presented by the Rutter family of York, in memory of M. Ebert Rutter, long-time York Fair and dairy industry supporter.

Named the reserve supreme champion was the champion Guernsey, exhibited by Rutter Bros., York. "Rutter Bros. Victorys Eeygore," a senior 2-year-old, won praises from the team of judges as a "fine-uddered young cow." As yet unclassified, she is projected to finish her current lactation with more than 17,000 pounds of milk.

A special reserve supreme award was presented by the William Everhart family in memory of long-time York Fair exhibitors and sisters Beatrice May Ball and Catherine May Kurtz.

In the Holstein open class show, reserve champion honors went to Rutter Bros. York, with their winning 3-year-old. Junior champion was won by the senior calf of junior exhibitor Amy Trimmer, East Berlin, and reserve junior champion honors went to the second-placed senior calf of junior exhibitor Angie Beshore, New Cumberland.

Fair Honors Holstein Breeders

EVA MARTIN
Maryland Correspondent

TIMONIUM, Md. — During the Holstein Show at the Maryland State Fair, special awards are presented to recognize outstanding achievements and accomplishments of Holstein breeders.

The Breed Improvement Committee of the Maryland Holstein Association, chaired by Steve Wilson, made selections for 1993: outstanding senior breeder, Joe and Nona Schwartzbeck Family; outstanding junior breeder, Cam and Anne Davis along with Tom and Kirsten Powell known as Univorn Associates; and Distinguished Service Award, Marlin Hoff.

Senior Holstein Breeder Award

Joe Schwartzbeck started dairying by selling cream from his Jersey cow while he was in high school. After serving a stint in the Army, he began farming full time in Montgomery County in 1960 with a group of Jersey cows. In 1964, he married Nona Louise Brown and purchased his first registered Holstein.

In 1968, Joe and Nona moved from Montgomery County to their present location in Carroll County. The farm was appropriately named Peace & Plenty and has grown throughout the years to be a 450-acre farm. In the early years, Schwartzbeck purchased groups of cows from Kingstead Farms, providing the foundation for his herd. Peace & Plenty Kingstead Fury, a daughter of Ideal Fury Reflector, was one to help make the Peace & Plenty prefix familiar to breeders across Maryland and throughout the country. Fury went on to Madison in 1974 where she was a member of the winning senior get and was named best udder of the show. The next year, Fury sold at the Pennsylvania All-American sale for more than five figures.

Over the years, Schwartzbeck has used bulls such as Elevation and Starbuck with great success. This has provided him with a surplus of cattle which has allowed him to merchandise top quality cattle into many states and foreign countries. The Peace & Plenty herd has received many All-Maryland awards, and at the 1993 Maryland Spring Holstein Show they received the premier breeder and exhibitor banners. The current herd BAA stands at 105.9 on 136 cows with nine excellent and 53 very good. Their DHIR average is 22,914 milk and 882 fat. The National Holstein Association has recognized the herd for outstanding production and type with the PBR award for 10 years.

Schwartzbeck has given greatly of his time and energy to the dairy industry. He is currently president of the Maryland Dairy Shrine, chairman of the Maryland Holstein Association sale committee, and a director of Maryland PDCA. He is past president of the Maryland Holstein Association, Carroll County DHIA, and Carroll County Holstein Club. He has been selected by his fellow breeders to represent them as a delegate to the National Holstein Convention eight times. Schwartzbeck was recognized by the Maryland Jaycees as Maryland's Outstanding Young Farmer in 1973. Nona has also given greatly of her talents. She is past president of the Carroll County Fair Board and the Carroll County Ag Center. She has served the Maryland Holstein Association as chairman of the Junior Committee and is currently serving as an appointee of the governor to the Maryland State Association of Fairs.

Joe is noted as being a great friend and neighbor, taking time for others. Joe and Nona have two sons, Gus and Shane. Gus assists in the operation and management of Peace and Plenty. He and his wife Lisa have three children, Davis, Aubrey, and Austin. Shane owns fencing and manure handling businesses and helps out on the farm on a part-time basis.

Junior Holstein Breeder Award

Cam and Anne Davis, along with Tom and Kirsten Powell, were selected as Maryland's outstanding junior Holstein breeders. Known as Unicorn Associates, they milk 153 cows on 450 acres in Union Bridge, Md.

Both families were active in 4-H and FFA programs. Tom and Kirstin have served on the Breed Improvement Committee and State Sale Committee. Cam and Anne take an active role in the Carroll County Holstein Association and junior committee and show committee. At the national level, Anne served on the planning committee for the Young Dairy Leader's Institute. Both Cam and Tom are active in Atlantic Dairy Coop. Tom is chairman of the local Sire Power Board and is state director for Sire Power. Tom is also president of Carroll County DHIA. Both families are active in

ATTENTION Poultry and Egg Producers

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has approved one (1) pesticide credit, category 4 (animals), for attending Dr. Charles Pitts' presentation on "Effective Fly Control" at the Northeast Poultry Show, Lancaster Host Resort. Dr. Pitts is scheduled for 2:00 p.m. in the exhibit hall on Wednesday, September 29, 1993.

The exhibit hall is open to the public free of charge from 12:00 noon to 5:00 p.m. on Wednesday, September 29, 1993, and Thursday, September 30, 1993. Mr. Mike Brubaker will discuss Pennsylvania's new nutrient management law on Thursday in the exhibit hall beginning at 2:00 p.m.

The Davis' and the Powells' formed a partnership in 1987. Since that time, they have increased their herd average by 3,000 pounds. Their herd average is 21,143 milk, 753 fat, 648 protein, and BAA is 104.5. They also developed the Unicorn Chairman Lynn Family resulting in 1st full sold to AI with the Unicorn prefix in 1991 and 5-6 other bulls sold to date. Tom and Cam maintain a strong herd health program, which allows them to increase the portion of income derived from sale of registered cattle.

A strong breeding program results in the overall focus on high producing functionally correct and profitable cows. Breeding decisions are made jointly. High TPI bulls are used with emphasis on pounds of protein, udder strength, correct feet, and legs. Cows are mated individually. A variety of young sires are also used on repeat breeders.

Along with Catoctin Embryo Transfer, they have developed the Lynn Family through an aggressive flushing program, resulting in A.I. contracts. A small portion of the herd is bred with greater emphasis on show ring type, which broadens merchandising potential. The philosophy of their breeding program is to try and balance the science and art of breeding cows.

Distinguished Service Award

This award has traditionally been presented to someone who has made outstanding contributions to the Maryland Holstein Association and its membership other than in the category of a breeder and owner of registered Holsteins. This year, the committee met and decided that deserving people who have made outstanding contributions, even though they also may be breeders, should not be overlooked.

Marlin Hoff, with support of his wife, Kathy, and their family, has been a long-time contributor of time, energy, leadership and generosity to the well-being of the Maryland Holstein Association. In the 1970s, Hoff began as a director, serving as vice president and president along with finance committee, show committee, and a long-time chairman of the breed improvement committee. The Association owes much of its success and financial backbone to the successful leadership Hoff gave to hosting the National Holstein Convention in 1981.

In 1989, Hoff was elected a national director of the Holstein Association to represent Maryland and the southeast territory. Marlin is faithful and hardworking, attending more state functions and board meetings than any recent predecessor. He serves on the genetic advancement committee and is a trustee for the Holstein Foundation. He is instrumental in taking steps to split winter forums into two groups, enabling more members to participate.

Hoff has represented Holstein breeders as a director of Sire Power for 10 years and as a member of the sire selection committee. He is an active supporter of sales as a strong buyer and consignor.

Hoff has served as a director of the Maryland State Fair and many improvements and additions are a credit to his hard work. He is a director of the National Holstein Association and gives freely of his time, donating his entire per diem pay to the Maryland Holstein Scholarship Fund in memory of Patrick Hoff, Marlin and Kathy's late son.

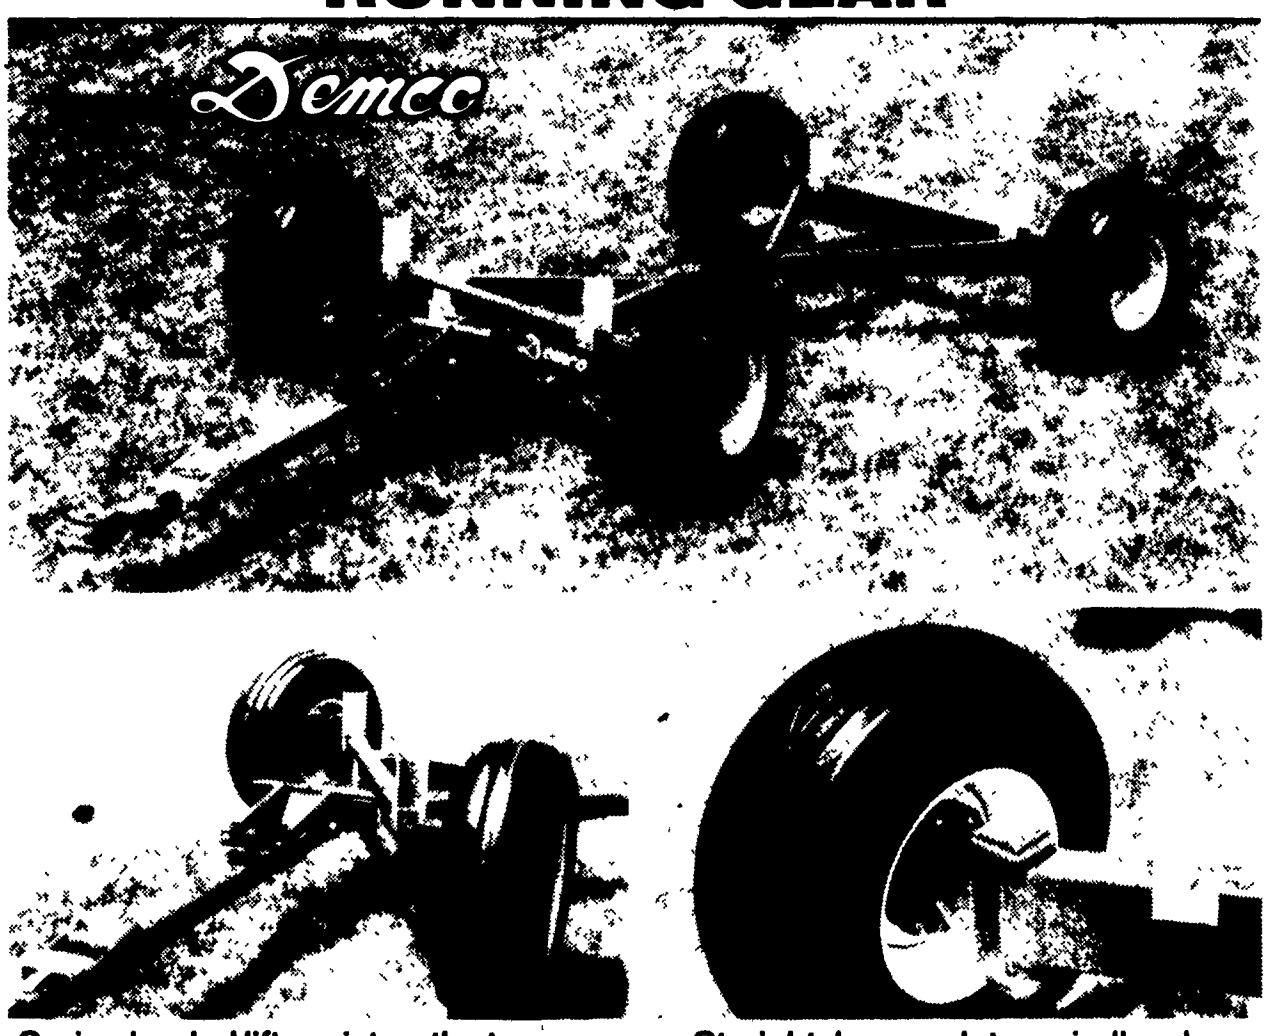
12 ton LOW PROFILE RUNNING GEAR



Spring loaded lift assist on the tongue is a standard feature of the 12 ton gears. A short turning radius permits tight turns. Built-in steering stops prevent damage from over steering.

Straight heavy duty spindles lower the gear, allowing an overall lowering of the center of gravity of the grain box. We recommend using this gear with our 365 bushel box.

Valuable Dependability

- Automotive type steering with adjustable solid steel tie rods.
- Heavy duty spindle and hub assembly for long service life.
- Wide 84" tire tread width for added stability and maximum safety.
- Bolster stakes adjust from 38" to 42" width.
- Adjustable reach pole for 86" to 128" wheel base. Extra long reach pole is available for 132" to 174" wheel base.
- Extendable tongue is self locking when backing up for easy hook ups.
- Available in your choice of green and yellow trim or red with off-white trim.

New Holland Fair 62 Years Running

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — New Holland will celebrate the 62nd anniversary of the Farmers Fair from Wednesday, September 29 through Saturday, October 2.

Once again, the fair will be highlighted with the Spectacle of Bands Parade at 7 p.m. on Wednesday. Parade-goers will thrill to the sounds of approximately 20 bands which will compete in various categories for beautiful trophies. Also included in the line of march will be more than 100 floats and marching units that will compete for cash prizes.

Preliminary and elimination competition for the Fireman's Tug Of War will begin Thursday night at 8 p.m. in front of the judges' stand on Franklin Street. Semifinals will be held at the same location on Friday night with the finals scheduled for 8 p.m. Saturday.

A day of fun is scheduled for the kids on Friday. "Cupcake the Clown" will be strolling among the crowd with his balloons before a special magic show from 4 p.m.-5 p.m. at the reviewing stand on Franklin stand. At 5 p.m. the drawings will be held for savings bonds and cash prizes at this same location.

A Shining Night For Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Pageant

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In a stirring speech giving tribute to dairy farmers and in impromptu questioning on stage, Jennifer Grimes of Berks County was the epitome of confidence during the annual Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Pageant on September 18. When the judges chose her from 36 contestants as the Pennsylvania Dairy Princesses, all the emotional stress of two days of judging burst forth as Jennifer cried bucketfuls of tears.

The tears were those of thankfulness from the college freshman who confessed that as a little girl she used to pray to God to turn her into a boy so that she could grow up to be just like her dad. That prayer changed when she realized that there is no dairy princess pageants for boys.

The daughter of Kenneth and Barbara Grimes of Strausstown will be assisted in state promotional duties by first alternate Amy Mearkle from Bedford County, daughter of Linwood and Marjorie Mearkle, and by second alternate Marci Harnish of Lancaster County, daughter of Bob and Marti Harnish.

After the 36 contestants were introduced, the winning speeches and presentations were given, and the seven finalists chosen to reply to impromptu questioning, Jan Harding, program director, said, "This is a sparkling evening and everyone deserves to be a winner."

In addition to the princess and alternates, the four other finalists included Marel Adene Raub, Perry County; Jayanna Jo Kopp, Dauphin County; Stephanie Renee Singo, Somerset County; and Kara Jill Tussey, Huntingdon County.

Master of Ceremonies Grover Gouker asked each finalist: What values do you think are important and should be passed on to future generations?

Each of the finalists remained calm and composed under the pressure of needing to repond quickly and with clarity. The answers varied, but all were terrific answers as evidence by the audience's applause.

Jennifer said that the question reminded her of her past year's

POD class where her teacher said that kids today were not being taught how to work.

"I tell you what, growing up on a dairy farm, I was taught how to work. My dad made sure of it," she said. She added that family closeness where each person was loved, respected, and could shine, be their own person, and live life without any regrets were also important values to pass on.

First Alternate Amy Mearkle said that to honestly answer the question, she would go back and relate the values that brought her to this point in her life. She listed truth, honesty, love, belief in a great being in a world where there is so much turmoil, and freedom as values to pass on to future generations.

Second alternate Marci Harnish said that the most important value she thinks to pass on is one that she learned in FFA. That is a positive attitude. "So many of my goals have been reached by having a positive attitude," she said.

Both Jennifer and Amy received preliminary awards for their speech presentations, which they gave before the pageant audience.

In her speech, Jennifer told of a teacher's comment that children today can choose to be an Einstein, who sits behind a desk developing new ideas, or a farmer, who works from morning until night. In an elementary classroom each child told of the occupation of his dad. One told of his father being a veterinarian, another a carpenter, another an electrician. After each boy's presentation, another little boy exclaimed, "Hey, my dad is that too."

The children insisted that his dad could not have all those careers. The little boy insisted, "Yes, he can 'cause my dad's a farmer."

Jennifer continued with incidents of the rewards of a farmer as he looks across acres and acres of corn, watches a cow give birth, and becomes a top producer in herd averages. The farmer also needs a special gift to adjust to the ups and downs of life.

She ended her speech with the words, "Scientists like Einstein

(Turn to Page B4)

On stage, contestants wait nervously as Master of Ceremonies Grover Gouker says, "The new Pennsylvania Dairy Princess is ....."

Alternate Clinton County Dairy Princess Brenda Seyler serves punch to guests at a pre-dinner reception.

From left, speech awards go to Jennifer Grimes, Berks County, and to Amy Mearkle of Bedford County. Creative presentation awards go to Marel Raub of Perry County and to Kara Tussey of Huntingdon County.

may take us to new heigths, but it takes a genius of a farmer to make the world go round. The next time you sit at a table and give thanks to the Lord, thank the farmer, too."

Amy's informative speech, "Don't Give Your Bones A Break," told of milk's important role in meeting the changing needs of bone tissue. "If all the calcium was taken from your bones, they could bend and be tied into a knot just like a shoestring," she said.

She spoke of the misconception that many hold by believing that the older a person gets, the less he or she needs milk.

"Support dairy products now," she ended, "for they are always there to support you."

Honorable mention in the speech award went to Marel Raub of Perry County who with Kara Tussey of Huntingdon County received top awards for their skit presentations.

A Shining Night

Marel portrayed Madame Moo, a fortune teller who could look into the future when the magic words of ice cream, yogurt, milk, and cheese were repeated.

Kara portrayed a character named Droplet, who came from 100 percent pure milk.

For the pageant preliminaries, each contestant also needs to compile a scrapbook of the activities in which they promoted milk. Scrapbook judges Lolly Lesher and Jan Carson named Cecilia Martin of York and Marel Raub of Perry County as winners. Runnerups were Jennifer Grimes, Berks; Amy Markle, Bedford; and Anna June Calhoun representing Indian-Armstrong counties.

Contestants voted for the person who was most friendly and outgoing and chose Tamara Drotleff as Miss Congeniality. She is the daughter of Bruce and Darlene Drotleff of New Castle and represents Beaver-Lawrence counties.

Special recognition was given to several of last year's princesses for their contribution to the dairy industry. Each year the Tina Shultz Memorial Award is given to a dairy princess who went the second mile to give the best of her self. The award is given in memory of Tina who served as Huntingdon County Dairy Princess while fighting a losing battle with cancer.

This year, the award went to Angela Baker of Lebanon County. She and alternate Stacy Habecker and dairymaid Kathy Habecker made 277 appearances and wrote 25 articles on behalf of the dairy industry. The runner-up award went to Sandra Gross of Berks County who assisted alternates Rebecca Riegel and Sarah Johnson in 240 appearances and 19 news articles.

In her farewell speech, outgoing Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Crystal Schweighofer told of the tremendous opportunity and honor her reign had offered her. While she, her mother and grandmother farm in Wayne County, it gave her an opportunity to see another side of the dairy industry other than making milk. "The group of people I met in the industry are unbelieveable — their total dedication," she said.

Crystal attends Keystone Junior College. Her ambition is to return to the dairy industry and the promotion of its products. "I hope give back a little of what the dairy industry has given me," she said.

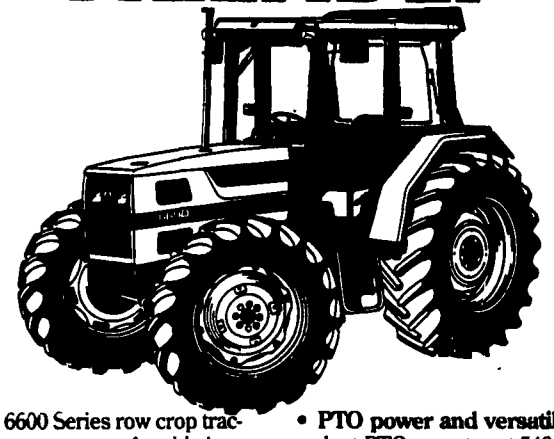
It's a teary moment for the new princess as Crystal Schweighofer crowns her.

Sec. of Agriculture Boyd E. Wolff prefers to be called the prince with two princesses beside him. On the right, is Jennifer Rosenberry, 1992 first alternate from Franklin County, and, left, Sandy Gross, 1992 second alternate from Berks County.

Tickets for the event can be purchased from Pat Miller and Wanda Yoder, secretary for PAPPS.

AGCO ALLIS
6600 SERIES TRACTORS

OPERATOR FRIENDLY



The AGCO Allis 6600 Series row crop tractors are engineered to put you comfortably in control. In addition to a comfortable cab or a platform and ROPS, you get low maintenance, low operating costs and a 4-year/4,000-hour warranty.

- Trouble-free, air- and oil-cooled engine. The 6600 Series tractors are equipped with low-maintenance, 4-cylinder, air- and oil-cooled diesel engines. The 6670 provides 63 PTO hp and the 6680 73 PTO hp, both with 22% torque rise. The 6690 has a turbocharged 81 PTO hp engine that delivers a 28% torque rise, as well as the best fuel economy in its class.
- Many speed choices. The synchropower transmission with a separate synchro-reverser offers 12 forward and 12 reverse speeds, planetary final drive and a self-adjusting, hydraulically-actuated clutch. An optional creeper transmission provides 16 forward and 16 reverse speeds; a dual speed option has 24 forward and 12 reverse and a power Hi-Lo transmission provides 30 forward and 30 reverse speeds. All tractor models are available as either 2WD or AWD.
- PTO power and versatility. The independent PTO operates at 540/1,000 rpm with 6- and 21-spline shafts and has a hydraulically-actuated wet PTO clutch. The Category II/I 3-point hitch has a convenient rear remote control and is equipped with telescopic stabilizers. Optional telescopic lower links are also available.
- Quality performance and comfort. The 6600 Series tractors ride on premium Goodyear radial tires. They have hydrostatic power steering, a tilt-telescopic steering wheel, hydraulically-actuated wet disc brakes and a mechanically-actuated differential lock. AWD models have four-wheel brakes for 40% better braking and an operator controlled front differential lock for tighter turns. All operated from the comfort of the enclosed cab.

To experience the user-friendliness of the 6600 Series tractors, or any of the "orange" line of AGCO Allis tractors ranging from 40 to 128 PTO hp, stop by or call us soon.

Chicken Perks Up Autumn Meals

September is National Chicken Month. It's an excellent time to take another look at chicken and its important role in meals. Low calorie, low fat chicken provides the complete protein needed daily to nourish every cell in the body.

Chicken is also a versatile meat that can dressed up for company or served almost plain and still taste wonderful.

Try these recipes for cooking inspiration and see if you don't have memorable results.

CHICKEN PIE

2 cups chicken, diced, cooked
2 cups chicken broth
4 tablespoons flour
4 tablespoons butter
Small onion, sauteed in butter
1 cup potatoes
1 cup carrots
1 cup peas

Cook vegetables until soft. Make white sauce with butter, onion, flour, and chicken broth. Pour over chicken and vegetables and mix together. Put into a greased casserole dish. Top with unbaked pie crust. Bake one hour at 350 degrees.

AUTUMN CHICKEN AND APPLE STEW

1 cut-up broiler-fryer chicken
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons Dijon mustard
1¾ cups low-sodium chicken broth, warm
¼ cup apple cider vinegar
6 whole cloves
3 carrots, peeled, sliced
6 apples, peeled, sliced
1 cup shredded cabbage
1 cup applesauce

Spray large Dutch oven with vegetable cooking spray and heat over medium-high temperature. Add chicken and cook, turning to brown on all sides, about 10 minutes. Sprinkle with nutmeg, salt, and pepper. Spread mustard over chicken pieces; add warm broth, vinegar, cloves, and carrots, bring to a boil.

Cover, reduce heat to low and cook 15 minutes. Add apples and cook 5 minutes. Add cabbage, stirring into liquid. Cook, covered, about 10 minutes more or until fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. With slotted spoon, remove chicken and vegetables to warm serving bowl and keep warm. Into liquid, stir applesauce; boil on high temperature 5 minutes and pour over chicken and vegetables. Serve with brown rice, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

Autumn Chicken and Apple Stew is a healthful meal in one dish. In addition to apples, it contains cabbage and carrots for an interesting, slightly tangy, sweet-sour flavor. It has less than 200 calories per serving.

Featured Recipe

September is National Poultry Month and its a good time to try some new poultry recipes. Pennsylvania Poultry Queen Melissa Stauffer is eager to share her favorite recipes.

The 19-year-old daughter of Clark and Lucy Stauffer of Ephrata was crowned both Lancaster and Pennsylvania Poultry Queen in August. She combines her duties of promoting the poultry industry with her work on the farm, where she and her two sisters help pick and sell 15 acres of produce.

SWEET AND SOUR CHICKEN

1 pound chicken thighs or breasts, cubed
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 garlic clove, minced
1 cup green peppers
1 cup carrots
1 cup broccoli
1¼ cups chicken bouillon
¼ cup soy sauce
3 tablespoons vinegar
3 tablespoons brown sugar
½ teaspoon ginger
8-ounce can pineapple chunks
1½ cups quick-cooking rice

Brown chicken in oil. Add garlic, green pepper, carrots, and broccoli. Saute. Add bouillon, soy sauce, vinegar, sugar, ginger, and pineapple with juice. Bring to a boil. Stir in rice. Cover, remove from heat and let stand 5 minutes.

GREEN BEAN AND CHICKEN CASSEROLE

1 quart cooked green beans
1 cup diced cooked chicken
1 can cream of chicken soup
¼ can water
Salt and pepper
2 cups soft bread crumbs
½ cup butter, melted
½ cup grated cheese

Mix together green beans and chickens in casserole dish. Mix together soup and water; add to beans. Season with salt and pepper. Combine bread cubes, butter, and cheese. Toss lightly and put over top of casserole. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

CHICKEN BREASTS PARMESAN

8-ounce can tomato sauce
1 teaspoon Italian seasoning
¼ teaspoon garlic salt
⅓ cup cornflake crumbs
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 teaspoon dried parsley flakes
2 large boneless chicken breasts, split and skinned
1 egg, beaten
½ cup shredded mozzarella cheese
Grated parmesan cheese

Mix tomato sauce and seasonings in bowl. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave at full power 2 minutes. Stir. Microwave at medium power 5 minutes. Stir and set aside.

Mix cornflake crumbs, ¼ cup Parmesan cheese, and parsley flakes. Dip chicken breasts in beaten egg, then in crumb mixture. Place in baking dish and cover with waxed paper. Microwave at medium-high power until chicken is tender, 9-14 minutes, rearranging after half the cooking time. Do not turn over.

Pour sauce over chicken. Sprinkle mozzarella over chicken. Sprinkle with Parmesan. Microwave at medium-high power until cheese melts and sauce is hot, 2-5½ minutes. Serves 4-6.

Dinner Bell Encore

SURPRISING ROASTED TURKEY BREAST

5-7 pound turkey breast or 3 pound boneless turkey breast
1 medium onion, halved
¼ teaspoon onion powder
¼ teaspoon lemon pepper
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon poultry seasoning
¼ teaspoon ginger powder
1 carrot, chopped coarsely
1 celery stalk, chopped coarsely
Vegetable spray for pan
1-2 cups ginger ale
Paprika

Rub inside and outside of breast with cut onion; reserve onion halves.

Mix together onion powder, lemon pepper, garlic powder, poultry seasoning, and ginger powder. Season turkey breast well. Chop the halves of onion, celery, and carrot and place under breast in pan. Wrap with plastic wrap and refrigerate overnight or rest of day.

Next day spray roaster of disposable aluminun pan with vegetable spray. Remove turkey from refrigerator, place in pan and let reach room temperature. Pour ginger ale over turkey breast. Sprinkle profusely with paprika.

Preheat oven to 500 degrees. Oven must be fully preheated.

Bake, uncovered, for only 20 minutes. Do not peek in oven. For a very large breast, leave in 25 minutes. After initial time, turn off oven and leave turkey in oven without opening it for 1 hour and 10 minutes. Yield: 5-7 servings.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

It wasn't on the list.

I looked at the beginning. It wasn't there. And I looked at the end; it wasn't there, either. Nor were any of our relatives or friends printed on the list.

Not that any of our names were really expected to be there. The fine print indicated that the list was a tabulation of big-name entertainers and entertainer groups, the focus being on who had grossed how many millions of dollars in a year. That's millions — as in over thirty, annually.

What would it be like to have to wrestle with incomes of such soaring figures? Maybe not all it's hyped to be, at least in the entertainment, or say the sports star, business. If your looks or your knees or your back gives out on you, bye, bye, bucks. And think of all the media-types shoving cameras and microphones in your face you'd have to zig-zag around, day after day.

How verrrry tiring, my dear.

Farmers, frankly, just don't have to worry about such problems. Leastwise, none that we know. Lots of passerbys glance at farms as they travel by and figure that land, livestock and equipment must surely equate to sizeable income. Less visible is the generally-equal, sizeable outgo to keep it all fed, fixed, funded and farmable.

Still, farm families cling with love and devotion to the land, rewarded not with millions but with benefits beyond bare-breakeven bottom lines.

How do you put a dollar value on a peach-colored sunrise splashing threads of light out over a lush, green field of alfalfa sparkling with dewdrops? How do you put a dollar value on the quavering bawl of a sticky-wet newborn calf that nearly died trying to be born backwards and upside down?

How do you put a dollar value on the laughter of kids or grandkids sliding down bales in a mow of slick, shiny straw or pulling six-inch bluegills out of the farm pond or cuddling the lastest batch of barnyard kittens?

Checks are always welcome in our mailbox, but we daily are blessed with "psychological supplements" for which no income value could ever be determined.

Spying the great blue heron and great egret that stalk the pond edges for brunch brings us pleasure beyond dollars. So does a quick, late-evening doggie roast on the back porch, watching the bred heifers parade single-file up through the meadow while the meat sizzles and blisters.

A ride with the farmer on the three-wheeler to check fence is a quick, inexpensive sort of "quality time" together. Wildflowers in the meadows, leaves turning color in the fencerows, the antics of impish squirrels in the woodlot, a cow turning her head to affectionately lick us when we attach a milking machine, all add simple, unpriced, pleasure to our days.

Just watching a late field of soybeans next to the garden grow, shooting up fast, tall and bluish-green after the early-August rains, brought me great personal pleasure this season. In fact, watching and helping things grow — crops, livestock, families — probably brings farmers as much satisfaction as does almost anything else they do.

Millions annually in income? Not likely if you're a farmer. But at least no government has figured out how to tax the joy we find in the beauty of the countryside. Not yet.

And no cow really cares if you have lines in your face and your shape starts to go.

Women Switch From Pocketbooks To Portfolios

NEWARK, Del. — In the last several years, University of Delaware Cooperative Extension has offered numerous types of financial education to the community.

One of the newer programs is geared specifically for women. Developed by the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), the Women's Financial Information Program (WFIP) has been well received by more than 80 women in Delaware. The program, which uses materials supplied by AARP, is led by Extension home economics agents with other co-sponsors.

"Traditionally, women have not taken charge of finances," says Roxane Whittaker, Kent County home economics agent. "This seven-week series is designed to help women manage their daily money matters as well as plan for the future."

In addition to Extension and AARP, the program is sponsored by local organizations that help recruit participants. The women meet for two hours a week to learn about topics including setting up a budget, credit and loans, investments, insurance, retirement and wills. Each session typically begins with an hour's presentation from a professional whose work relates to the topic. Participants then break into small groups led by facilitators for more in-depth discussion of the issues.

At a recent meeting, participants discussed the cash-flow records they had gathered since the last meeting. Many were surprised by hidden expenses that they said kept money "flowing out in dribs and drabs."

"Awareness is the whole key," facilitator Dorothy Snyder told the group. "It's not that you can't spend money on fast foods or videos. But you must be aware of where all of your money is going."

She advised the women to carry a notebook with them to write down every purchase for several weeks. Participants also encouraged each other with suggestions such as using envelopes to hold specific amounts of cash to be used for eating out or for video rentals. When the envelope is empty, you don't spend any more money in that category until the next paycheck. Another suggestion addressed children who beg their mothers to buy snacks while grocery shopping: Give them a dollar or two to spend as they wish, but let them know that once that's gone they won't get any more.

"It's gratifying to see the women become a support system for each other," notes Whittaker. "One woman wrote in her evaluation that 'the wealth of participants' experiences has enriched the course.'"

Whittaker says evaluations allow the classes to be constantly revised according to participants' needs. The women are encouraged to complete an evaluation after each session that pinpoints what information was most helpful, where they needed additional information and what information could be dropped.

WFIP classes will be offered in Kent, New Castle and Sussex counties this fall. For further information, contact the county Extension offices in Dover, Newark and Georgetown.

ANSWER — In answer to Geraldine Long's question about October beans, a reader writes that the beans are now called Horticulture beans. When the reader was growing up, her mother raised October beans and canned them and used them in recipes requesting kidney beans and other dried beans. Because the reader cannot locate October beans, she purchases horticulture beans and believes they are the same thing. She cans the beans in quart jars before they dry with a teaspoon of salt and covered with water. She uses them for pork n' beans, chilli, vegetable soup, ham and bean soup and other dried bean recipes. Plant the beans about the same time as green beans and in the same way. Keep weed free and they'll do fine. When the pods turn yellow or white with red strips, they are ready to pick. If the beans dry and you still want to can them, fill jars only half full of beans and the rest with water.

ANSWER — Karen Yourga wanted a pizza sauce recipe to can. Thanks to Annie Renno for sending a recipe.

PIZZA SAUCE

10 quarts tomato juice
1¼ teaspoon pepper
6 cups brown sugar
3 teaspoons salt
3 teaspoons oregano
7 tablespoons vegetable oil
3 teaspoons chili powder
4½ cups onions, minced
3 teaspoons garlic salt
2 cups granulated sugar

Brown onions in the oil and add to the remaining ingredients. Bring to a boil and simmer one hour until thick or thicken with Clear Jell. Pour into jars and process in pressure canner for 20 minutes.

ANSWER — N.A.K. of Lebanon wanted a recipe for individual Pineapple Upside-Down Cakes made in muffin tins. Thanks to Helen Hagenbuck, Danville, who wrote that she puts a little bit of brown sugar and crushed pineapple in the bottom of muffin tins. She fills the muffin tins half full with cake batter made according to package directions of yellow cake mix. Bake the same as cupcakes. Turn upside down on plate.

Chicken Perks Up Autumn

CHICKEN POT PIE

4-6 chicken thighs and drumsticks
1½ quarts water
2 cups flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons shortening
¼ cup water
1 large egg, slightly beaten
2-3 potatoes, sliced
1 onion, sliced
2 stalks celery, diced
3 carrots, diced
¼ cup chopped parsley
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook chicken in water until tender. Let chicken cool and remove from bones. Skim and save broth.

To prepare dough, combine flour and salt and cut in shortening. Add water and egg. Work together to form a soft ball. Cover and let stand while preparing vegetables. Add vegetables to broth and cook until tender.

On floured surface, roll dough as thin as possible. Cut into 2-inch squares and drop into boiling bath. Stir gently to prevent potatoes and dough from sticking together. Cook about 10-15 mintues more. Return chicken pieces to broth and heat through. Serve. Makes 8-10 servings.

Best of Mennonite Fellowship Meals

CHICKEN SUPREME

2 cups boned chicken
7-ounce macaroni
1 can mushroom soup
1 can cream of chicken soup
2 cups milk
4 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
1 small onion, diced
1½ pounds Velveeta, cubed
1 cup chicken broth

Mix all ingredients and pour into baking dish. Refrigerate overnight to allow macaroni to soften. This may also be frozen until needed. Bake 1 hour at 350 degrees. Serves 8-10.

Neffsville Mennonite Cookbook

CHICKEN POT PIE WITH CELERY SEED CRUST

⅓ cup butter
⅓ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1¾ cups chicken broth
⅓ cup milk
2 cups chicken, cut up and cooked
10-ounce package frozen peas and carrots

Heat oven to 425 degrees. In a saucepan, melt butter over low heat. Blend in flour, onion, and seasonings. Cook, stirring, until mixture is bubbly. Remove from heat and stir in chicken broth and milk. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 1 minute. Gently stir in chicken and vegetables, then set aside. Prepare pastry.

Celery Seed Pastry:

2 cups flour
2 teaspoons celery seed
1 teaspoon salt
⅔ cup plus 2 tablespoons shortening
4 to 5 tablespoons water

Measure flour, celery seed, and salt into bowl. Cut in shortening. Sprinkle in water 1 tablespoon at a time, mixing until flour is moistened and dough almost cleans side of bowl. Gather dough into ball. On floured board roll two-thirds of dough into 13-inch square. Ease pastry into 9x9x2-inch pan. Pour filling in and top with remaining pastry. Cut slits in center to allow steam to escape. Bake 30 to 35 minutes.

River Brethren Recipes

BARBECUED TURKEY

2 cups diced turkey, cooked
1 small onion, chopped fine
1 tablespoon mustard
½ cup catsup
1 tablespoon Worchestershire sauce
¼ cup brown sugar
¾ tablespoon vinegar

Add a small amount of tomato juice.

Mix all ingredients but turkey and simmer 20 minutes. Serve on roll.

SAUTEED CHICKEN WITH PEARS

2 whole chicken breasts, skinned, boned, cut into strips
4 tablespoons low sodium soy sauce
2 teaspoons grated fresh orange peeled, cored, each sliced in 8 pieces lengthwise
½ cup sliced celery
3 spring onions, sliced
½ pound sugar snap peas, ends snapped
½ cup orange juice
¼ cup low sodium chicken broth, warm
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Sprinkle chicken with soy sauce and 1 teaspoon orange peel, let sit 5 minutes. Spray large frypan with vegetable cooking spray and heat over medium high temperature. Add chicken and saute, turning, about 2 minutes. Sprinkle pears with remaining 1 teaspoon orange peel and add to pan; cook 2 minutes. Add celery and onions; cook 2 minutes more. Add sugar snap peas and saute about 3 more minutes or until just tender. Add orange juice, broth, salt and pepper; cook 1 minute. Serve with rice, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

CHICKEN STOLTZFUS AND PASTRY SQUARES

5-pound roasting chicken
1½ quarts water
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
Pinch saffron
12 tablespoons butter
12 tablespoons flour
1 cup light cream
¼ cup finely chopped fresh or ⅛ cup dried pasley
Parsley for garnish
Pastry squares

Put the chicken in a 6-quart kettle. Add the water, salt, pepper, and saffron and bring to a boil. Reduce the heat to medium and simmer, partially covered for 1 hour. Remove the chicken and cool enough to debone. Strain the stock. Reduce the stock to 4 cups. Remove skin and bones from the pieces. Melt butter in the pot in which the chicken was cooked and mix in the flour. Cook over medium-low heat until golden and bubbling. Add 4 cups chicken stock and the cream, stirring constantly. Cook over medium-high heat until the sauce comes to a boil. Simmer until thickened and smooth. Reduce heat and add chicken pieces and chopped parsley. Serve hot over pastry squares.

Pastry squares:

These may be made beforehand. Store in an airtight container.

½ cup shortening
½ cup butter
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup ice water

Cut the shortening and butter into flour and salt with a pastry blender or mix by hand until it forms crumbs. Sprinkle ice water over the crumbs with one hand, while tossing them lightly with the other hand. Use only enough water to hold the dough together. Press the dough into a ball and put on a lightly floured surface. Divide into 2 or 3 parts. Roll each part ⅛ -inch thick to fit an ungreased cookie sheet. On the cookie sheets, cut the dough into 1-inch squares with a pastry wheel or sharp knife. Bake in preheated 350 degree oven for 12 to 15 minutes until lightly browned. Arrange pastry squares on a heated platter. Spoon the chicken on top. Garnish with fresh parsley.

Betty Groff's Up-Home Down-Home Cookbook

ANSWER — Elise Jones, Ottsville, requested a recipe for tomato gravy. Thanks to Mrs. Robert Querry, Mapleton Depot; Elmer Hikes; Anna Martin, Irma Shockley, Wilmington, Del., and others for sending recipes. Sorry we do not have room to print them all but here is one from Bettye James of Manassas, Va. She said the recipe comes from an Italian family in Alabama in the 1930s.

Tomato Gravy

4½ cups tomatoes, peeled and cut in large pieces
½ cup bacon drippings
½ cup flour
1 cup milk
Salt and pepper to taste

Over medium heat, cook tomatoes in saucepan. Do not add any water. Stir frequently until soft. Measure 3½ cups tomatoes and add enough milk to make 4 cups. Set aside.

Meanwhile, heat the bacon drippings in a large frying pan or electric skillet until hot, but not smoking. Quickly stir in flour. Cook and stir until flour is browned. Remove from heat. Quickly stir in tomato-flour mixture. It will look curdled but that's OK.

Return to heat, and cook, stirring frequently, for 10 to 15 minutes. You may need to add additional milk or water if gravy is too thick. Add salt and pepper to taste. If bacon drippings are salty, very little salt needs to be added. Great served over hot biscuits.

Editor's note: Some recipes were similar but added granulated or brown sugar to sweetened. Some brown the tomatoes in butter. Suggestions for serving the gravy was over potatoes, bread, toast, rice, or crackers.

ANSWER — Ruth Cantello, Somerset, N.J. and Julie Druck, York, requested salsa recipes. Several were printed but thanks to Wilma Epler, Middletown, who sent a recipe for uncooked salsa.

Tomato Salsa

2 cups drained, chopped ripe tomatoes
1 small onion, chopped
1 hot pepper, chopped
1 or 2 cloves garlic, minced
2 tablespoons red wine vinegar

Mix together all ingredients. Let set 30 minutes. Keeps five days in refrigerator. Good as dip for tortilla chips.

SHOULD YOU GIVE UP RED MEAT?

You have all heard the news: Our diets contain too much fat, and we should cut back on fats and increase the amounts of fruits and vegetables and whole grains in our diets. Some people have asked me if they should give up red meat altogether.

In the days of nutritional ignorance, a meal was not considered a meal unless it consisted of a large piece of meat, potato and a token vegetable or two. This era of eating huge portions of meat, especially when it is heavily marbled and rimmed with a thick layer of fat, is gone. The saturated fat found in meat can clog arteries and cause serious damage to the cardiovascular system.

Many people have learned to enjoy pasta and other carbohydrate-based dishes and have gained control of their craving for meat at every meal for the sake of their health. In prehistoric times when humans began eating meat, the animals they consumed were far leaner than today's well-fed animals. Also, since game was hard to come by and had to divided among members of the cave-dwelling families, portions were no doubt smaller. And, life back then was not sedentary. The human body was really not designed to drive to the store, buy a supply of meat, drive home, prepare it, eat it and then relax and watch TV for several hours and then go to bed. That's far different from prehistoric man having to chase after his food and expending calories in the process.

Many people today have a weight problem, as well as high cholesterol, and eating less red meat is one way of cutting back on calories and fat. Switching to chicken and fish, which are leaner, is a sensible trend for everybody.

But does this mean that we should give up red meat, and ban it from our lives? The answer is NO. Giving up red meat will not guarantee that your diet is balanced and healthful. No one single dietary measure is likely to cause a 180-degree turn around to your health, and simply giving up red meat will not mean that you do not have to worry about having too much fat and cholesterol in your diet.

A nutritious and healthy diet depends less on what you give up than on what you substitute in its place. For example, you go out to eat and you would love to order steak, but not wanting to consume all that fat and cholesterol, you order a pasta dish (one's that loaded with cream and cheeses). You may feel virtuous, but your fat and calorie intake will still be very high.

What you order when you go out to eat is not that important, unless you eat out frequently. What does matter is what you eat on a day-to-day basis. Do you spread your bread with a lot of butter? Do you feast on chips and French fries? Do you use a lot of oil when you cook, and prepare rich dishes with cream sauces or gravy? Do you have cake and ice cream for dessert, rather than fresh fruit? Routine habits make more of a difference than whether or not you indulge in a hamburger or steak occasionally. And, you cannot leave exercise out of the equation. Fighting the sedentary lifestyle by finding a sport or activity — even taking walks — that you enjoy and can do regularly can influence your prospects for good health and fitness.

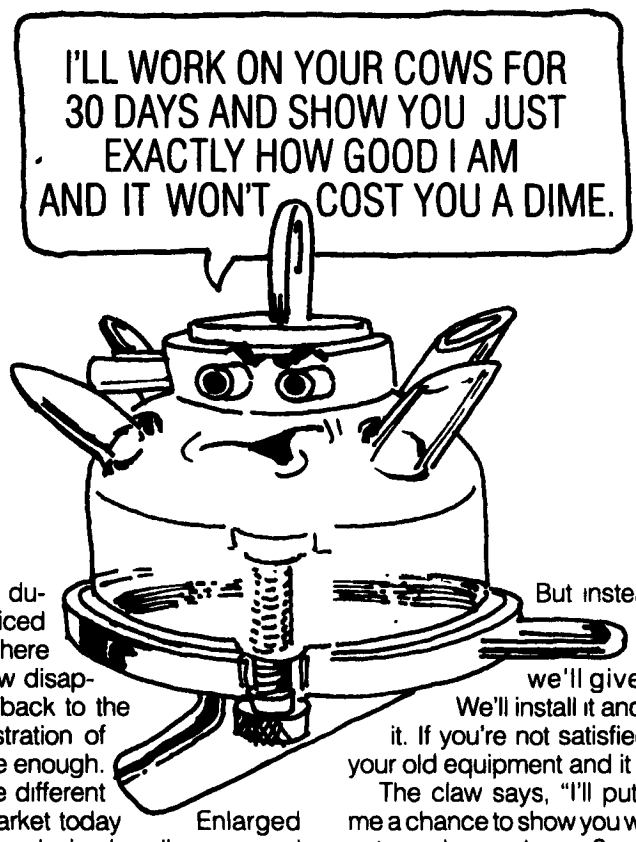
We think Universal's Tidal Flow Claw can tell its own story better than we can.



This new, high-capacity, durable and competitively priced claw is a far cry from where we started. We had a few disappointments that sent us back to the drawing board. The frustration of being close, but not close enough.

These new milkers are different from any other on the market today. Enlarged inlets and a larger chamber design handle increased capacity and improve vacuum stability.

But instead of just telling you how good we think the Universal Tidal Flow Claw is, we'll give you a 30-day free trial. We'll install it and show you how to operate it. If you're not satisfied, we'll remove it, replace your old equipment and it won't cost you a dime.

The claw says, "I'll put up or shut up. Just give me a chance to show you what I can do for you." Why not give him a chance?

City Kids Turn Country Experts

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — "We are city people playing farmer," Glen Ebling said of his family of seven children.

But the ribbons the family gardnered at the Solanco Fair indicate that the Ebling family are fast becoming experts at farming techniques.

They entered 65 to 70 projects at the Solanco Fair and took home an impressive number of blue and red ribbons — 36 in all.

Ten-year-old David shows that he can compete with the best of the cooks. His canned cherries placed second in competition.

Even 4-year-old Glen was in on the act. He entered houseplants and flowers, which he said is his job to water at home.

Six-year-old Meagan eagerly showed off the three different kinds of cherries that she entered, a houseplant, squash, zucchini, and flowers.

The Ebling family includes parents Glen and Ursula with children, Stephanie, 12; David, 10; Ahren, 8; Meagan, 6; Glen, 4; Hanah, 2, and Caleb, 6 months.

Four years ago, the family moved to Lancaster County. It was their first exposure to the fair and to growing plants in the soil and canning vegetables and fruits.

The family could not be more enthusiastic to what they consider a wonderful way of life.

"I'm the oldest," said 12-year-old Stephanie. I entered 45 things in the fair. Most of her items were canned goods, gourds, watermelon, sewing, and art projects. Last year she placed 10th in competition for the person who gained the most points for items entered. This year, she placed seventh and won a dual tape player.

Her 10-year-old brother David also entered canned foods, and added some woodworking and crafts to his entries.

Eight-year-old Ahren was excited to win a first place for his bottle collection.

Six-year-old Meagan eagerly showed off the three different kinds of cherries that she entered, a houseplant, squash, zucchini, and flowers.

Even 4-year-old Glen was in on the act. He entered houseplants and flowers, which he said is his job to water at home.

Only 2-year-old Hannah and 6-month old Caleb did not enter competition.

The Eblings are enthusiastic about their move to the country.

They have steers, goats, geese, ducks, and sheep on their farm.

The children take care of the animals, which includes milking the goats since goat milk is drunk by the family. The children learned to birth goats and have even assisted the vet with operations.

With no previous farming experience, the family said they learned how to care for animals by learning from the kindness of the veterinarian, people who sold them the goats, and others along the way.

"It's wonderful," said Ursula, the mother, of living on the farm. "My mother had taught me a little bit about canning when I was growing up. What I didn't know, I learned by reading cookbooks. The children and I even learned how to make cottage cheese."

"I'm the oldest," said 12-year-old Stephanie, who entered 45 items in Solanco Fair competition.

This is the seventh year that she is home schooling the children.

Homeschooling, she said, allows them the opportunity for the children to be best friends with each other and to help each other in the many projects that they prepare for fair competition.

Glen is a consulting engineer who helps on the farm when he can, but he credits his wife and children for being the real farmers.

Lindsey Myer, 3, sits on a pumpkin at the Solanco Fair. She is the daughter or Brian and Sherri Myer of Quarryville.

TAKING TIME

Who Wins When We Hurry?

The other day, a co-worker and I were recalling our activities growing up as children and teens. I remembered the important decision that my mom (thankfully) put before me when I was a teen. She said that she and dad would agree to pay for one set of weekly music lessons but if I wanted to take both voice lessons and piano lessons that I would have to pay for one of them.

After a few weeks, I learned the valuable lesson of prioritizing and dropped piano lessons. That same year I looked at my other activities — field hockey, winter sports cheerleading, track, school musicals, Girl Scouts, 4-H, church youth group and choir, and school choir (were there more?). After a few days of considering, I trimmed out three other on-going activities.

As a part of my job as an educator, I regularly present seminars on balancing work and family. Last year, one family's commitment to a balanced schedule made an impression on me. The mother in the family explained that they set a standard for the maximum number of activities for their school-aged children. Their family's rule allowed for no more than one community-based activity and one extra-curricular school-based activity for each child per week.

This may not be the ideal solution for you and your children. But I encourage you to consider several issues. First, research has documented that in order for families to succeed and be strong, the members need to spend time together. This is a difficult task if the children and adults are scheduled to the hilt racing from one activity to another.

Second, a child's ability to adapt is not as fully developed as an adult's. Sometimes as adults we schedule our children's dentist appointments, soccer games, dance lessons, visit to grandma's, and Sunday School play. The schedule deems doable to us. A child may not have the same perspective. And fitting in and making social adjustments through structured group activities may come at the expense of personal health and growth.

Each child (and adult too!) needs some time for free play. This is not a time of play where a lesson is always learned from the experience. Children need opportunities, especially on school days to enjoy unstructured time to vent energy and unwind mentally. Expect that. Anticipate the need and make your home and your schedule one that normally allows such a time.

Finally, recognize that parents aren't the only ones who overschedule and hurry children. Schools and teachers may do this. The media endorses this kind of lifestyle. You may have to take an active position to protect your child's well-being if he or she is being bombarded by too many expectations. Teach them to say "No," and practice saying "No" to a few things yourself so you can have time together.

Food Allergy Brochure Available

The American Academy of Allergy & Immunology (AAAI) and the International Food Information Council Foundation have developed a new consumer brochure-Understanding Food Allergy.

The 16-page booklet explains the basic symptoms, diagnosis and management of food allergy and how the condition differs from other from other intolerances to food.

"Anyone who thinks they have a food allergy should consult their physician for proper diagnosis," said Fred McDaniel Atkins, M.D., booklet medical editor. Dr. Atkins indicated that a number of unpleasant symptoms can occur after eating that are caused by medical conditions other than food allergy. A free copy of the food allergy bookley can be ordered by sending a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope to Understanding Food Allergy, P.O. Box 1144, Rockville, MD 20850.

Maryland Dairy Shrine Honors Hoff

EVA MARTIN
Maryland Correspondent

TIMONIUM, Md. — Each year, the Maryland Dairy Shrine honors an individual for their contributions to the dairy industry of Maryland. This year, Marlin Hoff, of Coldsprings Farm, New Windsor, was awarded this honor.

Hoff is an outstanding contributor to the Maryland Dairy industry. His interests in cows and the dairy business started early in life as a young 4-H'er in Carroll County on his father's farm. He is the fifth generation dairyman on the original 78 acres, which has now become a Century Farm that originated in 1869.

The best measurement of his love for this business and the amount of enthusiasm, dedication, and energy with which he has pursued this challenging business is the scope of Coldsprings Farms today. Coldsprings Farms totals approximately 1,300 acres owned and rented land bringing the total farming operation to about 2,000 acres. Total herd numbers today are approximately 1,100 head of cows, heifers, bulls, and a small beef herd.

Hoff believes that to produce worthwhile genetic animals other dairymen can use and profit from, they must be bred and developed under commercial dairy farming conditions. He has been extremely successful in producing cattle that have done very well for others. A production sale series was carried on for nine consecutive years, and at the same time, Hoff has widely supported local, state, and national sales. In 1990, Marlin decided it was time to modernize his dairy facility, so he reduced his milking herd to 190 cows by selling his most saleable young cows and heifers in his "Heart of Coldsprings Sale."

The Coldsprings Young Sire Program, started by Hoff, continues to sample promising young sires produced by his breeding and has more than 250 herds participating in this sampling program. In addition, 80 to 100 young sires a year are raised and sold to many dairy farmers for herd bulls in the Mid-Atlantic area. The Coldsprings herd has received 13 Progressive Breeder Registry awards, three Progressive Genetic awards, and prior to the Heart of Coldsprings Sale, the herd consistently placed in the top 10 Honor List Herds for Production. The 1993 BAA is 104.5 on 275 head. The herd has produced 57 Dams of Merit and 21 Gold Medal Dams on the new system.

Some of Hoff's favortie cows have had tremendous impacts in the breed, with Tip producing 81 registered offspring. Insert produced 71, and Codee 54. Coldsprings Levi Orexus is producing embryos at a pace that will surpass all of these.

Hoff has always supported cattle shows and has been the premier breeder at the Maryland State Show several years. Coldsprings has exhibited more than 16 All-Maryland awards in the milking classes in recent years and numerous other show awards including All-American nominations. The DHI herd average on an energy corrected milk basis on 346 cows stands at 22,623 pounds of milk. The DHIR lactation average on the herd is 24,109 milk, 3.7% 895 fat, 3.3% 789 protein. There are 19 cows on the Maryland State Leaders List for milk, butterfat, or protein production.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

There are so many signs of fall. The goldenrod has been blooming for weeks and the corn stalks are turning brown. Our apple tree was so very full of small apples and I made some 30 quarts of applesauce. Soon I shall have to add a blanket to the bed covers as the mornings are cool.

Each season brings its own kind of work. The men fill the silos and bale the last crop of hay. The women glean the last vegetables from the garden. There are still many tomatoes and maybe I'll make a green tomato pie. Some people like the unusual taste and others won't even taste it as the name turns them off. I doubt they would like green fried tomatoes any better. Maybe some will just be left to spoil.

There are many bulbs and tubers to be dug from the ground and stored for the winter. I have some rather unusual ones that need extra care as they bloom in the basement in February. Then they die down and only send up palm-like leaves in July. This year due to the dry ground it was August before they pushed up a thick stem.

These days many wild geese are flying overhead. Although, it seems that some have stayed here on the Conestoga River all summer. Our domestic geese are very noisey and quite alert. When I dig potatoes near the meadow, they let me know that they realize that I am nearby. The potato crop this year will be small compared to last year when we harvested five or six bushels.

Dairy Tidbits

The milk bath, whose roots trace to the Tang Dynasty in 712 A.D., is purported to make the skin smooth and supple. Superstar Diana Ross reportedly demands that hotels provide her with whole milk for her nightly soak. Actress Diahann Carol begins each day with a doctor-prescribed milk bath. Famed photographer Annie Leibovitz photographed actress Whoopi Goldberg lolling in a bathtub of warm milk for a recent exhibition of celebrity portraiture.

Codarus Duck And Goose Guides Water Fowl Hunts

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — A flock of geese winging overhead in September stirs various emotions: admiration for their beauty, sadness for the ending of another summer, or anticipation of cooler weather and the hectic pace of the harvest season.

At Codorus Duck and Goose, a flock of geese winging overhead generates excitement, expectation and likely some calls from clients.

Codorus Duck and Goose is the year-old business established by a trio of York-Adams area outdoorsmen who have teamed together to provide guided waterfowl hunts. The three are currently filling their schedules for this year's lineup of hunting trips.

Lee Irwin, Frank Plewa, and Mark Flaharty are all local conservation-organization employees. Irwin and Flaharty work for the York County Conservation District and Plewa is with the Army Corps of Engineers Adams County office. Though their conservation work, the three have become quite familiar with the terrain and wildlife populations of southcentral Pennsylvania. Plus, they're all avid hunters.

"My dad and I used to hunt a lot on the Eastern Shore with guides," explains Irwin of his background in waterfowling. "As we did more hunting, people used to ask to go along with us, so we knew there was interest."

"All three of us spend a lot of time outside and cover a lot of territory," he adds. "So we knew the areas where there are concentrations of ducks and geese and contacted landowners to lease hunting rights."

The Adams-Lancaster-York area is in the Eastern flyway of many species of waterfowl migrating between summer breeding grounds and wintering locations. And, large flocks of Canada geese grazingin fall grain fields have become commonplace in recent years, as increasing numbers of the big waterfowl winter in the area, rather than on the traditional grounds of the Eastern Shore.

According to Irwin, the Eastern Shore, "the goose capitol," has been hunted extremely hard in the last 15 or so years. More of the birds are "short-stopping" from that traditional destination, making southern Pennsylvania waterfowl hunting increasingly attractive.

The number of local private ponds has also increased considerably, according to these conservation professionals, enhancing the area's desirability to waterfowl. Milder winters and geese returning to their place of hatch further add to the higher waterfowl population in the southern zone of the state's hunting regions.

But, while picturesque to watch, dozens — in some cases, hundreds — of geese nibbling away at wheat, barley and wintering alfalfa stands can wreak economic havoc on those acreages. Overgrazing by flocks of feeding waterfowl may result in thinning or complete elimination of large sections of crop plantings. Codorus Duck and Goose is interested in making contact with landowners who have such crop problems from waterfowl and who might consider leasing hunting rights.

Dabbling ducks, primarily mallards, wood ducks, black ducks, plus some green-winged teal and occasionally widgeons are the most likely targets for the duck hunting side of the guide service. The dabblers favor the shallow water and wetlands-type locations more prominent in the areas where Codorus Duck and Goose conducts its hunts. Diving ducks are not usually offered on these hunts, because diver species favor large, deeper bodies of water. For hunters favoring other game birds, pheasant and quail hunts can also be arranged.

Because weather and seasonal conditions affect the feeding and flight patterns of geese and ducks. Codorus Duck and Goose aims for a minimum of six locations from which they can select to hunt. Either above-ground blinds or field pits are used, based on terrain, weather and feeding conditions.

Buried pit blinds, of either wood or concrete, are a more permanent hunting location constructed on some of the land used by the guide service. They also utilize temporary, moveable blinds, which can quickly be set up in weeds and hedgerows. Weather, time of year, and location all factor into the need for hunt flexibility toward the end of the season, when birds have grown more wary.

As birds move from place to place, depending on changing conditions, the guides conduct ongoing field scouting and frequent consultations as to where the waterfowl action is the best.

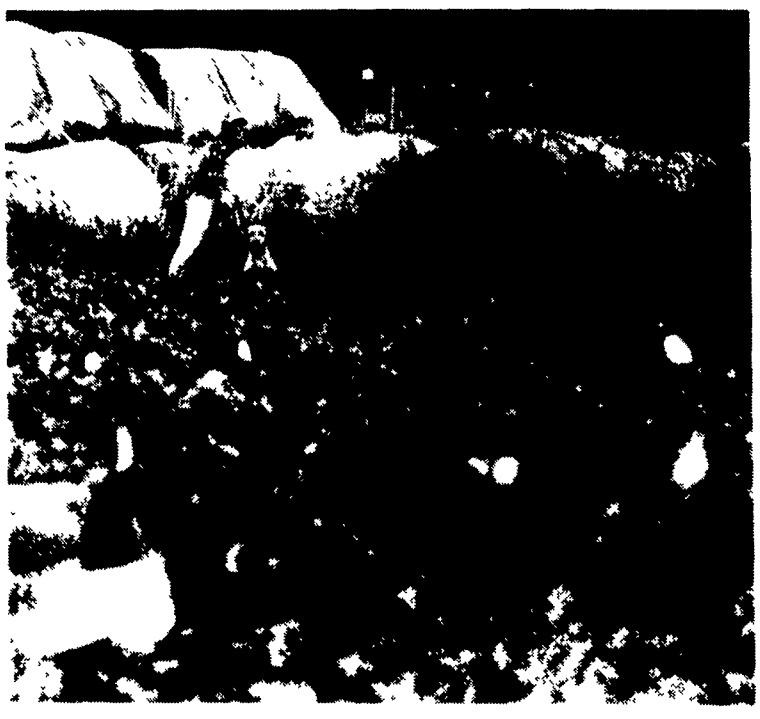
Part of the guide service of Codorus Duck and Goose is providing and setting up decoys to lure the birds within shooting range.



Decoys set up in an alfalfa field help lure flocks of Canada geese to within shooting range of the guides, waiting in a lineup of round hay bales.

"We try not to hunt the same place too often," notes Mark Flaharty. Though he has the least waterfowling experience of the three, Flaharty has adapted to the sport quickly. He has found one of the most exciting hunting techniques to be simply stretching out on the ground — garbed in camouflage of course — where birds nearly land on the hunters calling them into feeding.

Hunts can be arranged for either half or full days, six days per week during the season; combined hunts for both ducks and geese are available. South Zone seasons on ducks runs October 18-23 and November 18-25. Canada geese season in the South Zone is October 18-25, November 17 to December 31 and January 1-17, 1994. A special late season for resident geese in certain areas along the Susquehanna and Juniata Rivers runs January 20 through February 5, 1994. Bag limits on geese and ducks vary with species and the season's progression.

Utilizing guides provides hunters with a service aimed at a more productive hunt. The service scouts out the farms, to determine the locations' uses as flyways or feeding spots. Decoys and their set-up, as well as calling in birds, are all part of the service.

Each guide also relies on his four-legged partner as a vital part of the hunt. Irwin, Flaharty and Plewa all have yellow labrador retrievers, dogs which they emphasize are a "conservation" tool of hunting. Codorus Duck and Goose clients with their own retrieving dogs are encouraged to bring them along on the hunts, too.

"If a hunter is allowed three ducks, that hunter's probably going to take home three ducks if at all possible, regardless of how many have been shot and lost," says Frank Plewa. "A dog can go out and find a downed bird that a person would never be able to spot. Every bird retrieved is a bird that won't go to waste; the dogs are so much better at conserving them in that way."

Plewa's four-year-old Sheena is a retriever trials champion; most of her recent litter of puppies were sold even before she gave birth. Irwin's dog, Oakley, and Flaharty's Sandy are younger dogs with great enthusiasm for the outdoors and the hunt.

Codorus Duck and Goose continually emphasizes safety as part of its guiding service. In fact, their promotional brochure plainly spells out the rule that a guide reserves the right to ask a hunter to leave if either unsafe or unsportsmanlike practices occur.

"We brief our hunters on safety and on what to expect during the hunt," emphasizes Lee Irwin. "We tell them when to take their gun safeties off, too."

"We will terminate the hunt if any unsafe conduct occurs," he repeats, adding, "the large percentage of hunters are very good sports."

In keeping with its safety and sportsmanship emphasis, the guide service forbids techniques like "sky-busting," the blasting away at flocks of fowl high out of shooting range.

Pleased with the first year's success, Codorus Duck and Goose already has several bookings for fall.

Since Maryland has reduced the limit of birds that may be taken this year, the guides expect increased interest in Pennsylvania's waterfowl hunting, with its more liberal bag limits.

Last year's reservations brought hunters from Washington, D.C., Baltimore, central and northern Pennsylvania, as well as some local shooters. Their success rate was about 80 percent on the more than two dozen hunts through the season.

"We had one hunter from England. He was here with the Izaak Walton League and did a program for our chapter so we took him for a hunt," recalls Irwin of guest who came from the farthest distance to hunt with them.

Fees for the guide services provided by Codorus Duck and Goose range from $85 for a half day of duck or goose hunting to $125 for a full day of combination hunting, for parties of up to four hunters.

For more information, contact Codorus Duck and Goose, R2, Box 50, Glen Rock, PA 17327, or phone (717) 227-0212 or (800) 484-7457-0313.

'Hooch' Tops York Fair Junior Market Steers

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — "Hooch" put it all together in a judge-pleasing, shiny-black package that earned him the judge's slap on the rump and the bright blue banner of champion junior market steer at the York Fair.

The junior market steer champion was the 1,245-pound crossbred, the fourth champion at the York Fair for veteran exhibitor Shawn Waltimyer, Airville. The 16-year-old 4-H member purchased the crossbred, Angus Maine-Anjou Chianina, from a West Virginia breeder.

Shown at two junior shows earlier in the summer, "Hooch" took reserve champion titles at both the York Premier Show and the York 4-H Fair.

Reserve champion of the junior market steer show was the 1,152-pound purebred Hereford exhibited by Jennifer Altobelli, Dover.

Other junior market steer show division winners were Brett Bishard and Kelly Myers.

In a special Prospect class, for junior market steers destined for Pennsylvania Farm Show competition, Tammi Grubb, Hanover, was selected champion and Jason Rankin, Abbottstown, was named reserve champion.

Junior market steer reserve champion honor went to Jennifer Altobelli showing her purebred Hereford entry, "Nathan."

Lancaster Society 19

Lancaster Farm Women's Society #19 met at the Brethren Village September 11th with Elsie Hollinger as hostess. The meeting was opened by piano music by the hostess. Eva Myers conducted devotions by a reading "Roses in my Garden" and reading Luke 11:1-13.

The group voted to give $400 to the county project for Christ's Home.

Mr. Walter Bulsom showed slides on "Mysterious Egypt, the Land of the Pyramids."

The next meeting will be held October 9 at the Hempfield Church of the Brethren at which time members will entertain Society #2.

Berks Society 4

Officer Heckman of the Colebrookdale Township Police Force gave an interesting talk on the D.A.R.E. program he is teaching in the Boyertown Area Elementary Schools, when the Berks County Society of Farm Women Group 4 met in the home of president Mary Fizz for their September meeting.

Plans were made by five members to attend the County Convention on October 2, at the Berks Ag-Center.

In observance of Farm Women's Day the group will have dinner at Lee's Country House in Congo on October 5. A short business meeting will follow the meal.

Beautiful Sweaters Without Knitting A Stitch

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Love those gorgeous decorative sweaters, but don't know how to knit? Using a simple stitch called Duplicate Stitch or Swiss darning, even a non-knitter can create a beautiful custom sweater. Kerry L. Reynold will show you how on Thursday, October 7, 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. as she serves a guest instructor at the Chester County Cooperative Extension, Government Services Center, Suite 370, 601 Westtown Road, West Chester.

Draw gray country cats and festive pink hearts on your purchased sweater and "color" them with the Duplicate Stitch. This course will cover the Duplicate Stitch, use of various threawds, and using a graph. Stitch diagrams and resources for supplies are also included.

For details and a registration form, call the Extension office at (215) 696-3500. Registration for this popular course, for only $10 closes September 27. Enrollment is limited to allow for individual assistance, so register early.

Free Publications From Cooperative Extension

Berks County Cooperative Extension has four free publications that are available if picked up at our office. These publications are entitled: "Food Facts For Older Adults" which is information on how to use the dietary guidelines, "Making Healthy Food Choices" which helps you learn more about how to choose and prepare healthy foods for yourself and your family, "Managing A Life-Threatening Illness" which is written for people with serious illnesses that have the potential to be fatal, and "Being Supportive: Helping a Family Member or Friend Manage A Life-Threatening Illness" which helps families and friends of people who have a life-threatening illness. These publications MUST be picked up at your local extension office.

More Buyers At This Year's Indiana Fair

Larry Lewis of Rossiter exhibited the grand champion market swine. The 235-pound cross was purchased by Luther Ford Sales of Homer City, represented by Larry Rabickow, for $5 per pound.

Todd Ackerson of Marion Center and "Paula," his grand champion Milking Shorthorn in the fair's open class. Ackerson's cows won three other ribbons in the open class and four more in the 4-H and FFA competition for Milking Shorthorns.

INDIANA (Indiana Co.) — The 31st annual Junior Livestock Sale at the Indiana County Fair brought young 4-H and FFA members total gross receipts of $95,078.65. That purse was down slightly from the record high gross value of $111,887.15 set at 1992's sale. But the number of buyers — 130 — was an increase over last year.

This year's sale time was moved from the traditional 7 p.m. start to 4 p.m. to avoid traffic congestion and the midnight finishes that have occurred in recent years as the sale has grown. Sale officials were uncertain whether the change in starting times or general market conditions contributed to this year's lower sales total.

At this year's sale, 265 hogs, lambs, and beef cattle weighing a total of 80,897 pounds were sold.

The 168 market hogs, weighing a total of 40,785 pounds, brought an average price per pound with champions of $1.02. The average price per pound excluding champions was 98 cents.

The 69 market lambs, weighing 7,005 pounds, brought an average price per pound with champions of $1.79. The average price excluding champions was $1.36.

The 28 market steers, weighing 33,107 pounds, brought an average price per pound with champions of $1.08. The average price per pound without champions was 92 cents.

"The margin over market prices was a good bonus," said Indiana County's Penn State extension

Michael Neese, a 4-H member from Marion Center, exhibited the Indiana County Fair's Grand Champion Market Lamb, a Suffolk.

'Other Breed' Takes York Fair Supreme Beef Title

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — Frankly, it may have been a first at the York Fair's open class beef breeding show.

Frankly, the Jack Myers family of Dallastown was pleased about the decision.

And, frankly, given the circumstances, "DVF Frankly He's Good" seems a most appropriate name.

"DVF Frankly He's Good," a homebred Red Angus from the Myers family's Dunkard Valley Farms, was selected the supreme bull of the York Fair as a highlight of the open beef breeding classes. The selection of the powerful but stylish 17-month-old young bull for supreme honors is probably the first-ever for a top win at the York Fair show by a Red Angus entry. Red Angus are so relatively rare at area shows in the East that they are generally categorized with other breeds.

The York Fair marked the debut of "Frankly" into the show arena. In November, he will be exhibited in national Red Angus competition at the North American Livestock Show in Louisville, Ky.

"The Red Angus are Dad's," said John Myers, son of Jack and Nancy Myers, who own and operate Dunkard Valley beef and crops farm. "His mother was 'Frankly Red,' a cow dad bought out West back in 1984 when he got some of the first Red Angus.

"Dad thought Red Angus were pretty cattle," Myers said. "He figured if he had to feed the cattle twice a day, he was going to have something that he enjoyed looking at."

For several years, the Myers crossed the rust-colored purebreds with Simmentals in their cow-calf operation. Their work with the Red Angus purebred bloodlines now includes embryo transfer work to more rapidly increase their herd genetic base.

Breed champion bulls competing for the supreme title included the Angus, from Sunset Hollow Farm, Hanover; Charolais, from K C Acres, Abbottstown; Hereford, from DRS Polled Herefords, Wellsville; Santa Gertrudis from Chapel Ridge Farms, Gettysburg; Simmental, from Frocklyn Valley Farm, Westminster, Md.; and Limousin, from the Mosher family, Telford.

Out of the other breeds category also came the supreme champion heifer, a Maine-Anjou bred by Donald Walter family at Airville. Exhibited by the Walters' grandson, Shawn Waltimyer, the heifer's honor added to class wins she has taken at previous shows.

Champion females competiting for the supreme award included the Angus entry of Robin Shive, Seven Valleys; the Charolais from Dunkard Valley Farms, Dallastown; the Hereford winner from MAP Farm, Womelsdorf; the Santa Gertrudis from Chapel Ridge Farms, Gettysburg; Simmental from Winter Spring Farm, Seven Valleys; and the Limousin, from Brian Linebaugh, Abbottstown.

Water Problems With Your Flock? Think About Causes Before Treating

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Before reviewing expensive and time-consuming ways to treat problem water, poultry producers should first consider where the well is located — and what goes on around it — and stop the problem at its source.

That was the message about 30 poultry industry representatives heard from several water quality experts at the recent Poultry Management and Health Seminar at Kreider's Restaurant.

"The concept of wellhead protection is what's going to happen around a well is going to have more influence on the water quality in that well that what's going to happen ¼ of a mile away from that well," said Jeff Stoltzfus, former Pequea-Mill Creek project associate and now young farmer instructor in the Eastern Lancaster County School District.

Stoltzfus reviewed some of the findings of the recent water quality project conducted in the Mill Creek area of Lancaster, which encompassed nearly a quarter of the county with a mostly dairy herd population.

Stoltzfus spoke about a recent U.S. Geological Survey of 180 wells. Of the wells sampled, pesticide amounts were found in half the wells, but only two wells had atrazine levels above the EPA limit of 3 parts per billion. According to Stoltzfus, what the project found was that wells were more likely to be contaminated the nearer the spill was to the well and the higher the amount spilled in one location.

And what a recent Penn State study found, generally, according to Stoltzfus, was that the closer the well was to a cornfield, on average, the higher the level of nitrates tended to be.

Near the well, when water is pumped up, a "cone of depression" is created, which drops the groundwater table. The drop could leave the well primed for ready contamination, if a spill occurs near the wellhead.

He emphasized the importance of good wellhead construction, including proper casing and grouting.

Wells should be located upslope from any areas which could cause potential contamination.

"If a farmer has a well very close to a small stream, he may be actually pulling in some of the bacteria problems that may be occuring in that stream," said Stoltzfus.

For poultry producers, the well recharge zone is critical. For a typical 100,000-layer operation, which draws about 8,000 gallons of groundwater a day, the recharge area should be about 10 acres. "All the water that falls in the 10 acres of ground around that well could potentially be drawn up," he said.

Farmers must understand that while much of the activity of the farm occurs nearby, such as pesticide mixing, sprayer loading, fuel tank use, septic system operation, and other factors, farmstead practices, including application of manure and pesticides on land in the recharge zone, can be critical. Also, old, hand-dug wells can promote bacteria problems, and, if abandoned, can effect other wells nearby.

Penn State is working on an education system that farmers can use to help locate and manage wells for water quality. Input for the Pequea-Mill Creek project came from industry — and Stoltzfus emphasized the importance of industry in helping farmers locate and manage wells for water quality.

Biggest nutrient

The most critical production factor on the farm is water quality because it may be the biggest nutrient on the farm, according to Greg Ositko, vice president of sales for Aqua Treatment Service, Inc.

But poultry producers must test the water first and think about how much it will cost to treat water if there is a problem. It may be easier to simply relocate a well than going through some of the costly practices to correct a water problem, according to Ositko.

"The only way we know what's in the water is if we test for what's in the water supply," said Ositko. A complete test could range from $240 to $300 or more.

"The single most important thing you can do for the farm is disinfection," he said.

Other problems can affect production, including too much iron in the water. He spoke about a flock in Delaware that had an iron bacteria problem, which destroyed three pumps per year. The bacteria creates a jelly-like slime which clogged pumps and wasted delivery lines. It was solved by dropping pelletized chlorine into the system. A filtration unit was also employed to bring the water quality up to par.

"If you have an iron problem, you will want to get rid of it in a hurry, or it will be very costly in terms of the physical capabilities of that water to be delivered to your flocks," he said.

Ositko spoke about various treatment methods for problem water, including:

- Disinfection. This includes chlorination, which will include a 20 minute to ½ hour retention time with a 1 part per million residue remaining. Also, another method is an ultraviolet (UV) light chamber, which includes a UV tube housed in high-purity quartz sleeve. Also, ozonation, a new method, uses ozone gas to kill bacteria.
- Oxidation reduction to break down bacteria.
- Ion exchange. This method, also called water softening, treats the hard water using a polystyrene filter which replaces the hard minerals with soft minerals such as sodium.
- Filtration. This is ion exchange which removes nitrates.
- pH adjustmen. A method to adjust the acidity of the water.
- Adsorption. This uses a carbon filter.
- Demineralization. This ion exchange methods rids the water of all minerals, leaving only pure water.

Poultry producers should positively identify the problem before applying a treatment method. In the case of a nitrate problem, removal is complicated and expensive.

Ositko told the producers that it is important to make sure only those are certified should make the recommendations regarding treatment of water quality problems.

Processed market

Poultry producers should not ignore the further processed market, such as the breakers, in the coming years, because that could still prove profitable to layers, according to Bill Patterson, Wenger's EAS Marketing representative, at the poultry meeting.

In 1980, 13 percent of the shell eggs went to further processing. By 1993, the number going to further processing increased to 24 percent. By the year 2000, according to Patterson, as much as 45 percent of the shell eggs could go to further processing.

Also, Pennsylvania is increasing in importance in terms of layers and broilers since many California companies are moving to Iowa and other states because of land cost. In 1988, there were 19.7 million birds in Pennsylvania, and the number has grown to 21.4 million birds this year. The state itself is getting to be a real factor in the nation's industry and could wind up as the number 1 egg-producing state in the country, he said.

Patterson also revealed upcoming marketing efforts. The American Egg Board will have a new marketing strategy and a new slogan, "I Love Eggs," coming out next month.

Poultry Product Marketing Conjures Up Desirable Images

By Dr. Regina Vasilatos-Younken
Associate Professor
Poultry Science
Penn State

Effective marketing of consumer products frequently relies on the association of some characteristics of appearance with a positive or desirable image by the consumer.

In the case of food products, such characteristics may be strongly associated with a flavor or nutritional expectation, even if no direct or actual relationship exists.

For example, synthetic food colorants typically do not impart flavor characteristics to processed products, yet they are important in conveying or reinforcing an image of flavor that is consistent with consumer expectations. Cherry soda is expected to be red, banana pudding yellow, and lime gelatin green.

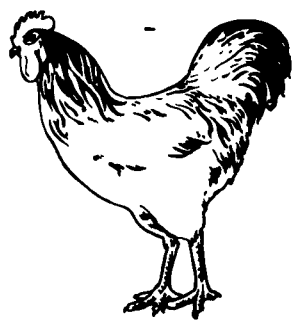
Unless a carefully timed and effective marketing campaign has been used to introduce a product that is intended to capture a market share based on novelty (as in the case of colorless, carbonated cola beverages), failure to meet such expectations can be disconcerting to the consumer, and have a negative impact on product acceptability.

These same concepts apply to marketing of poultry and poultry products. Fresh whole and cut-up broilers are considered to be of a higher quality by the consumer, and therefore more desirable, if skin pigmentation meets the image of a "healthy" or otherwise desirable bird.

The degree of pigmentation that reflects a positive image varies, depending upon geographic region and ethnic or cultural background. For some markets, a virtually unpigmented or white-skinned broiler is preferred, whereas in the Northeast region, a deep yellow to orange color is considered most desirable by the general public (excluding certain ethnic/cultural groups).

Even though no nutritional or other real quality factor is related to pigmentation, consumer preference is strong enough to support premium pricing based on this appearance factor.

Skin pigmentation results from compounds called carotenoids, which can be derived from natural sources such as marigold petal meal and more common ingredients of poultry diets such as yellow corn, corn gluten meal, and alfalfa meal. These contain naturally occurring pigments (called xanthophylls, primarily hydroxy carotenes), some of which can be taken up by the bird and deposited in the skin and other tissues without alteration or modification, whereas others are chemically modified by the body.



The xanthophylls lutein, which produces a yellow skin pigmentation, and zeaxanthin, which produces a deep orange pigmentation, are the primary pigments identified in the above natural sources. The availability of xanthophylls from the common feed ingredients listed above, and their effectiveness in enhancing skin pigmentation vary, with yellow corn generally considered the highest and alfalfa meal the lowest.

Thus, the absolute content of xanthophylls in such ingredients, determined by chemical analysis, does not necessarily reflect the degree of pigmentation resulting from their use. Marigold petal extract, which contains a chemically modified form of xanthophyll that is more readily absorbed in the upper gastrointestinal tract of the bird than the form found in marigold petal meal, is a more effective pigmenting agent than the latter.

Commercially prepared natural (for example, lutein, yellow) and synthetic (for example, canthaxanthin, red) pigments are available for inclusion in poultry diets to ensure uniformity and reliability of product skin pigmentation. The desired color and intensity of pigmentation is obtained by blending the appropriate ratio of pigment types in the feed.

Studies indicate that inclusion of sufficient xanthophylls during the final 14 days of grow-out (for example, in finisher and withdrawal diets) will produce good pigmentation. However, where strong and consistent pigmentation of product is a high priority, the starter diet should also be considered, and higher levels of xanthophylls initiated here as well.

A variety of factors related to feed ingredient quality, bird management, and primary processing can influence the degree of skin pigmentation. When feed grains such as yellow corn that contribute pigments (xanthophylls) to the diet are stored in a manner that allow for excessive heating, xanthophylls are rapidly destroyed. High moisture and temperature storage conditions that favor fungal growth will adversely affect pigmentation because of the production of mycotoxins that reduce blood levels of xanthophylls in the bird.

Antifungal agents should be used in mixed feeds to inhibit mold proliferation. For some processed grain products such as corn gluten meal, the processing method used (e.g., wet milling) may reduce xanthophyll availability, and enhancement of skin pigmentation will not be as effective as feeding the same apparent quantity of xanthophylls from other sources, such as unprocessed ground corn.

Because carotenoids are lipid (fat) soluble, they are taken up by the bird through dietary fat digestion and absorption, and conditions which interfere with this process will also reduce pigmentation. Coccidiosis is a primary disease factor causing reduced skin pigmentation, as certain strains of the organism can damage portions of the gastrointestinal tract where fat absorption occurs, thus reducing uptake of fatty acids, fat soluble vitamins such as Vitamin A, and xanthophylls.

Maintaining recommended levels of coccidiostats in the feed is essential for ensuring good pigmentation. Because xanthophylls are structurally similar to other carotenoids, including Vitamin A and its precursor form, beta-carotene, these are absorbed from the gastrointestinal tract by the same mechanism. This mechanism involves dispersion of fatty substances into small particles called micelles by the action of bile salts (just as detergents disperse grease into small particles). Micelles transport these substances to the intestinal cells where absorption occurs.

It has been suggested that very high levels of Vitamin A can reduce xanthophyll absorption by competing for sites on micelles. However, recommended levels of the vitamin as commonly used in broiler diets are far below such problem levels.

Because both Vitamin A and xanthophylls are highly susceptible to oxidative damage, inclusion of recommended levels of antioxidants in the feed will help preserve pigments, as well as Vitamin A.

Because xanthophylls are fat soluble, inclusion of some fat in the diet will help with pigment absorption, as well as by enhancing fat deposition ("finish") and overall pigmentation appearance.

Low intensity lighting will favor pigmentation with a shorter dominant wavelength (DWL), resulting in less intense pigmentation. Broilers grown under natural lighting tend to have more orange pigmentation than those in windowless houses. Certain curtain materials can also reduce pigmentation. The addition of synthetic or otherwise supplemental xanthophylls to the diet, as described earlier, can be used to insure adequate pigmentation, even under low lighting conditions, or with lower levels of xanthophylls needed from feed ingredients.

Once proper skin pigmentation has been achieved during grow-out, preservation of this level of pigmentation through processing is critical. When scald temperatures are too high during processing, the cuticle of the skin and, consequently, much of the pigmentation is lost. Scald temperatures should not exceed 124-128 degrees Fahrenheit, depending upon factors such as line speed and average residence time in the scalder per bird.

Soil Scientist Examines Role Of Worm Tunnels

NEWARK, Del. — Concerns about the leaching of agricultural chemicals into groundwater have prompted scientists to take a closer look at the various ways chemicals move through the soil.

One question to be answered is what role a process called preferential flow plays in transporting these chemicals deep into the ground. One cause of preferential flow is the presence of macropores, or channels, within the soil profile.

Dr. Masoud Ghodrati, a soil physicist in the department of plant and soil sciences at the University of Delaware, is studying macropores generated by earthworms and rotting roots as a possible route for transporting chemicals and nutrients into groundwater.

This research is important in Delaware because of the state's shallow water table and the popularity of minimal and no-till cropping systems. Though these systems benefit the environment by reducing surface water runoff and soil erosion, the absence of cultivation means soil macropores aren't disturbed.

Ghodrati and his graduate student, Yimin Li, have just completed the second stage of this research project, which involved a laboratory study of nitrate movement through earthworm tunnels and root channels.

"This kind of research is hard to do in the field because there are other causes of macropores," Ghodrati said. "So we went to the field, collected soil, brought it into the lab, sieved it, packed it into large two-foot soil columns, and then selectively induced the macropores in these."

The scientists grew corn and alfalfa in one set of columns, then cut off the tops and incubated the soil in the greenhouse until the roots decayed, leaving root channels. Into another set of soil columns, they introduced native earthworms at average field densities and allowed them to work the moist soil until they had tunneled all the way to the bottom. A third set of soil columns without macropores served as the control.

Then they conducted a series of leaching studies, using nitrate fertilizer. For a given amount of water input, more nitrate leached through the columns that contained decayed root channels than through control columns. Leaching rates were even faster through the earthworm-treated columns.

During the next phase of his research, Ghodrati will take soil cores from fields that have been under continuous no-till or minimum tillage for a number of years and compare preferential flow rates through those cores with the rates through cores taken from conveniently tilled fields.

"Chemicals move from the soil surface to the groundwater as the result of a number of individual transport processes," Ghodrati said. "Our study shows that if you have two soil volumes identical in every aspect except that one has macropores, the macropore system could lead to faster transport of chemicals.

Walker Elected To Trade Association

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Robert L. Walker has been elected as vice president of the Southern United States Trade Association (SUSTA) for the next two years.

SUSTA promotes agricultural products from 15 Southern States, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands in the international marketplace.

"In Maryland we work closely with SUSTA to link domestic producers to foreign buyers. I am pleased to be asked by SUSTA to help them aggressively promote exporting U.S. agricultural products," Walker said.

Through cooperation with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Foreign Agricultural Service, SUSTA targets overseas markets for individual food producers and suppliers and administers the department's Market Promotion Program.

"SUSTA continues to do an outstanding job of helping farmers and food processing companies in coordinating agricultural export development. I believe in the future we must push even harder to compete effectively on the international scene," said Walker.

The SUSTA region produces one third of all U.S. agricultural exports including three fourths of the poultry and livestock.

For more information on SUSTA, contact Naomi Gardberg, 2 Canal St., Suite 1540, World Trade Center, New Orleans, LA 70130, Telephone 504-568-5986.

Association Sponsors Goat Health Conference

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State and the Pennsylvania Dairy Goat Association are sponsoring a Goat Health Conference. This one-day conference will be held on October 30 in the auditorium (Room 101) of the Agricultural Sciences and Industries Building, University Park campus.

Several knowledgeable and entertaining speakers have agreed to talk on a variety of topics. Penn State will be represented by two well-known specialists. Dr. Larry Hutchinson, from the Department of Veterinary Science, wills peak on the effect of poisonous plants on livestock. Dr. Richard Adams, from the Department of Dairy and Animal Science, will talk on goat nutrition.

The president of the National Goat Association, Linda Campbell, will provide some highlights of her recent trip to the National ADGA Convention.

Dr. Joan Dean Rowe, from the University of California, will give two talks, the first on caprine arthritis-encephalitis and the second on health issues related to showing dairy goats.

For the first time, a youth program will be available. Several of Penn State's animal facilities will be toured, including the sheep and deer pens. The youth group will also be invited to listen to the two afternoon talks by Campbell and Rowe.

Adult registration is $18.50 per person and $5 per child for the youth program. To register, write to Goat Health Conference, Penn State University, 306 Ag Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802. For more information, call (814) 865-8301.

Ag Dept. Offers Youth Organization Grants

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff has announced the third round of the Agriculture and Rural Youth Organization Grant Program. Grants of up to $15,000 will be awarded to fund educational projects and activities for farm and rural youth.

Organizations such as 4-H and FFA may apply between October 11 and November 24 for direct grants of up to $2,500 and matching grants of up to $15,000.

Direct grants may be used to fund educational projects, programs and seminars, and matching grants may be used to fund capital projects and equipment purchases. The grants will fund efforts to increase the awareness of agricultural and rural issues.

Applications and additional information about the grant program are available from Christian Herr, Department of Agriculture, 2301 N. Cameron St., Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408, (717) 783-8460.

Applications are also available through the Department's seven regional offices: Region I - Meadville - (814) 332-6890; Region II - Williamsport - (717) 327-3550; Region III - Tunkhannock - (717) 836-2181; Region IV - Gibsonia - (412) 443-1585; Region V - Altoona - (814) 946-7315; Region VI - Summerdale - (717) 787-3400; and Region VII - Creamery - (215) 489-1003.

MILK AMERICA'S HEALTH KICK

Producers: Select Hogs That Have High Lean Gain

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Swine producers can't depend on genetics alone to obtain a hog with quality high lean gain. They need to consider nutrition and marketing in combination with genetics if they want to improve the price they get for their product.

"I think we have to get away from the fact that we are marketing live hogs," said Dr. Lee Watkins, senior technical consultant, swine research, Lily Research Laboratories. According to Watkins, pounds of lean, rather than live weight, are going to take center stage in the minds of packers within the next 5-10 years. "You're not going to market live animals, you're going to sell pounds of protein."

Watkins spoke recently during a two-day Mid-Atlantic Swine Seminar at the Lancaster Host Resort sponsored by Wayne Feeds and Elanco Animal Health. The seminar, according to Mike Hudspith, Wayne Feeds representative, was provided to the large-scale producer (500 sows or greater) and was attended by 60.

Watkins spoke about the current trends in the industry regarding the critical link between genetics and nutrition.

Watkins provided some research recently conducted by Purdue University which highlighted the importance of obtaining genetics for a herd that selects average daily lean gain over nearly any other characteristic.

In the study, 15 Indiana farmers were asked to contribute their best barrow. On test, the performance of the barrows was evaluated. What the researchers found was that the best barrow had an average daily gain of 2.42 pounds. More importantly, the average daily lean gain (ADLG) was .94 pounds. The same barrow had nearly double the ADLG of the worst, but, more critical, the best barrow consumed only 7.57 pounds of feed to gain a lean pound — about half of what the worst consumed.

What this means, according to the swine consultant, is that the best ADLG animal requires much less feed to put on gain. The result is a carcass with more lean and a lot less fat. And it takes more feed to put on fat than it does to put on lean gain.

"If the animal is putting on more pounds of lean each day than he is fat, then he's also going to be eating less pounds of feed to put that lean on," said Watkins. "It takes less feed to put on a pound of lean than it does a pound of fat.

"Lean, fast-growing animals will have high daily lean gains," he said. "Improved feed efficiencies will automatically follow."

If producers want to implement carcass lean incentive programs, once they work out the genetics and the correct feed program, it may be critical for them to implement a strategy to prescription feed according to the needs of the marketable hogs and to phase-feed (feed according to age).

Other traits to select for include less pale, soft, exudated (PSE) susceptibility in the carcass. In a 1991 study of 14 plants and more than 10,000 hogs, only 16 percent of the animals were classified as "ideal," according to Watkins. PSE was exhibited clinically in 16 percent of the carcasses, 10 percent of the carcass were dark red, dried, and firm, and more than half — 58 percent — were approaching PSE with redish-pink but soft and exudated meat. Hogs with genetic tendency toward porcine stress syndrome will have meat that is PSE.

Country Auction To Benefit Trust

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — You can help preserve area farmland and have lots of fun too by attending a Lancaster "Country Auction," Saturday, October 16, at the Paradise Sales Barn.

Auction proceeds benefit Lancaster Farmland Trust, a nonprofit, tax-exempt organization dedicated to preserving Lancaster County farms.

Quilts, antiques, crafts, household items, toys, "feed and seed," and many other items will be auctioned throughout the day. The sale begins at 11 a.m. and lasts until 4 p.m.

The Paradise Sales Barn is located at 19 Meadow Lane, Paradise, and can be reached by traveling 4 miles past Rockvale Square on Route 30 East and turning at the Leacock Presbyterian Church.

"We'll have something for everyone at the auction," said Kathleen Bridgehouse, director of membership for the Farmland Trust. Every dollar raised will be used to preserve farms."

According to Lois Herr, auction chairman, Lancaster Farmland Trust continues to seek donated items that can be auctioned. "All kinds of goods and services would be welcomed, and pickup and storage are available."

Donated items are fully tax-deductible and anyone wishing to donate can call the trust offices at (717) 293-0707.

Company Sees Benefits Of Water Ionization

YORK (York Co.) — Nathan Jefferson, is predicting revolution in the poultry business. According to Jefferson ionization of the water supply on poultry farms will result in such an array of benefits both to producers and consumers that the technology will prove irresistable.

Jefferson owns an environmental technology company, Eco-Tech, which markets the ionization technology. In an interview recently he reviewed the problems of the poultry business and how ionization would alleviate them.

He said the industry relies heavily on a host of vaccines and food additives to combat a range of dangerous poultry diseases and to encourage speedy growth and maximum lean weight.

What worries Jefferson is that with poultry playing a greatly increasing role in the diets of health-conscious Americans, there is considerable danger that all the additives and vaccines may begin to accumulate to harmful levels in the consumers' systems.

Enter ionization.

Jefferson said early tests have shown that ionized water kills bacteria and viruses without the use of vaccines or food additives. It also flushes other harmful agents out of the birds which drink it. The test birds gained a tenth to a quarter of a pound more per bird at maturity on 15 percent less feed. Jefferson claims this is because the water is so pure that the birds' systems operate more efficiently.

When these figures are applied to typical flocks of from 10,000 to 15,000 birds brought to maturity every 50 days, the economic benefits are impressive. Add to this the savings in not having to buy vaccines and additives.

Jefferson said the installation of an ionization system costs approximately $3,000 per well and maintenance expenses are minimal.

He believes consumers will find the high-tech poultry attractive because it can be labeled "organically grown." Also production cost savings might be passed on to consumers.

Jefferson emphasizes that water ionization is not just for the birds. It could be beneficial for any livestock, and he believes it should become the replacement for chlorinization of human water supplies, which studies have shown to be potentially harmful.

Eco-Tech is selling ionization systems in Korea, where chlorinization is prohibited by law because it is believed to be deleterious to human health.

According to Jefferson, the effectiveness of ionization technology is well proven. He says it has been used by NASA, commercial airlines, and cruise ships for years, and is EPA approved. The reason its time has come for more general use is that less costly systems for using the technology have been developed.

Lean Gain

According to Watkins, producers should remember that genetic traits will have more variety within breeds than between breeds. But the most heritable characteristics are the carcass traits, including backfat, loin eye area, and percent lean (40-60 percent heritable). Production is about 20-35 percent heritable and reproduction only about 15-20 percent heritable, according to the consultant.

"The selection of the boar and gilt are he offensive weapons of the swine producer," said Watkins. "Selection represents the only directional force available for creating genetic change."

For the producer who successfully models what he can get from his herd, once the genetics are in place, the most important step is keeping the genetics in the herd.

"A progressive genetic program should be mating at least 80 percent of their females to terminal sires selected for superior performance and carcass characteristics," Watkins said. The sires are to maintain strength in the leanness and overall carcass quality of the hogs out of the houses.

Watkins said in the coming years the small-scale producer may have to increase herd size to 600 sows and 200 pigs marketed per week. Also, those same producers may need to look more closely at AI, because of its efficient method of delivering vital genetics in an economical way.

"Developing a plan and sticking with it is probably the most important thing," he said. "The hardest thing is deciding where you want to be 10 years from now and putting together a program for that."

Also at the seminar, program topics included attracting and keeping employees, working with the packer, farm management, nutritional strategies, hog house management, multiple site production by age segregation, nursery management/nutrition, and others.

Chore-Time, Aerotech Team Marketing Efforts

MILFORD, Ind. — Chore-Time Equipment has teamed up with Aerotech Inc. to offer poultry and livestock producers quality ventilation systems, according to James C. Evans, president of CTB Inc. CTB is the parent company for Chore-Time Equipment. Both CTB and Chore-Time are based in Milford, Ind.

"Both Chore-Time and Aerotech have long had a reputation for quality and reliability," Evans said. "This partnership will provide Chore-Time customers worldwide with the best ventilation technology available from both companies."

"A primary benefit to customers is lower cost as a result of greater economies of scale," said Robert Mitchell, president of Aerotech. "With the added sales volume coming from Chore-Time, we will be able to buy components at better prices and pass the saving salong to the customer."

"We expect to work closely with Chore-Time to find other ways to reduce costs and to jointly develop new ventilation products," said Mitchell, whose Lansiong, Michigan-based company markets a full-line of environmental control products, including fans, evaporative cooling systems, heaters, and controls.

According to the agreement, Chore-Time will market selected Aerotech-manufactured products, including plastic and fiberglass fans and inlets for swine confinement systems, a variety of galvanized and polymer-coated poultry house fans, evaporative cooling systems for both poultry and livestock, as well as electrical motors and drive systems designed to meet most international power requirements.

"Combined with Chore-Time's on-going ventilation product development, the two companies will be sharing technology and ventilation innovations to greatly multiply their efforts," Evans said. "Aerotech has proven to be a respected leader in providing the most energy-efficient products, especially fans, as tested by both the Air Movement and Control Association (AMCA) and Bioenvironmental and Structural Systems (BESS) Lab at the University of Illinois at Champaign, Illinois. The strengths of the Aerotech product line are very compatible with Chore-Time's ventilation products."

Roll Mills Suited For All Operation Sizes

PENDER, Neb. — Automatic Equipment Mfg. Companies full line of roll mills can meet the needs of any livestock operation from big to small, according to Rex Ruppert, Automatic Roll Mill engineer.

Ruppert said roll mills produce processed grain that is ideal for swine, dairy, poultry, and beef operations.

Automatic roller mills break the seed coat, crimp the grain, and reduce it to the desired particle size for greater digestibility and increased palatability, he said.

"You get a crumbled, fluffy feed that's appetizing to livestock with minimal flour or dust to cause respiratory problems and waste feed," Ruppert said. Roll mills use up to one-third less horsepower than hammermills.

Automatic offers roller corrugation options and adjustability to reduce any grain to the desired consistency, Ruppert said.

"Roller mills can process almost any degree of coarseness or fineness desired by the processor," he said.

Automatic rolls are machine cut from a continuous length of high carbon steel, hardened and tempered to a 56 Rockwell C, the same precision-machined rolls found in commercial mills that cost thousands more. Large-diameter ground and polished fatigue-proof shafts withstand the tremendous pressure of rolling grain, Ruppert said.

Automatic's full line of roll mills includes the low profile mill, big capacity mill, grain roller-mixer, big capacity trailer mill, big capacity blower mill, earcorn auger discharge mill, and earcorn blower mill.

For more information, contact Automatic Equipment Mfg. Co., One Mill Road, Pender, NE 68047, (402) 385-3051.

Central Soya Recognizes Dealers

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — Central Soya Feed Company recently recognized area Master Mix Dealers Ross H. Rohrer and Sons, Quarryville, Pa. and Sensenig's Feed Mill, New Holland, Pa. at their annual Five-Star Dealer awards ceremony.

Master Mix Five-Star dealers are recognized by Central Soya not only as leaders in the Master Mix dealer organization, but also as leaders in their own communities in feed sales and service.

Ross H. Rohrer and Sons, in their third generation of operation, was recognized as the oldest Master Mix dealership. Rohrer's received the Masters Club Award in recognition of their sales volume for the past fiscal year.

Genetics, Nutrition Work Equally In Producing Lean Hog

STEVENS (Lancaster Co.) — Genetics plays a huge role in the outcome of your market swine. But producers must keep in mind that nutrition and marketing are just as important in getting a premium price for your hogs, according to a Penn State swine specialist.

Ken Kephart, Penn State's swine expert, spoke during Pork Appreciation Day conducted by Dekalb Swine Breeders, Inc. at the Stevens Fire Company recently. More than 50 producers and Dekalb customers attended one of two sessions held in the morning and afternoon.

The purpose of the meeting, according to Joseph L. Gulick, regional sales manager for Dekalb Swine Breeders, was to acquaint producers with the new genetic lines, based on European stock.

In the afternoon overview session, Kephart outlined five important areas that producers should keep in mind when feeding their hogs for leanness:

1. Genetics contribute about half to total market product, and the other half, just as importantly, is fulfilled when nutrients, marketing, and feed are implemented successfully in a program.

2. When modifying diet for hog leanness, producers should keep in mind protein and fat and what the results will be on the finished hogs.

3. In terms of marketing, the first pigs through are usually the fattest, and the last pigs are the leannest.

4. While producers are interested in increasing average daily gain of their hogs, the faster a pig gains, the more the pig eats, and thus the more fat the pig may become. Producers should watch feeding and growth carefully to make sure they aren't producing a product with too much fat.

5. In striving to meet the "56 percent" critical line (the percentage of lean cuts in carcass) determined by Hatfield Quality Meats, producers can work with diet, nutrition, and genetics to meet that. Less than 56 percent and deductions could be critical. More than 56 percent, and the bonuses received may be worth the effort.

Dekalb's new genetic lines include gilts that have improved prolificacy (more pigs born alive and more successfully weaned). The boars have improved leanness and more efficient lean growth.

Gulick told producers that Dekalb's aim is to not just supply genetics, but to "supply a total program to producers."

MILK AMERICA'S HEALTH KICK

Maryland DHIA Reports August Records

The August 1993 Dairy Herd Improvement information for Maryland dairy herds is listed by herd name, county association, number of cows in the herd and the average production per cow in the herd. To be included, the herd must have 10 cows averaging 65 pounds or more of 3.5 percent fat corrected milk per cow, per day. All herds reported are on official DHI or DHIR test.

Also listed are the top 10 herds in Maryland for the Brown Swiss, Guernseys, and Jerseys, and the top eight herds for Ayrshires.

Heuser Becomes Penn State Industry Relations Director

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Patricia Heuser, has been named the first director of industry relations in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. She will assist the college in furthering its commitment to Pennsylvania's agribusiness community.

"This new position will help the college enhance relationships with agricultural and related businesses," said Dr. Lamartine Hood, dean of the college. "We want to raise awareness of how the college's programs benefit business and strengthen our relationships with the business community."

Heuser will establish links within the business community through trade associations and commodity groups as well as direct contact with industry leaders.

"Through those contacts, I'll be able to provide an ongoing program of communication about the college's programs, with the trade groups providing a network to reach individual industry people," Heuser said.

Heuser will use business-oriented events, organizations, and information channels to showcase the college's support of Pennsylvania's economic base. She will support individual units and departments in the college to promote specific programs, communicate needs, and solicit feedback from industry.

Heuser also will support the Agricultural Advisory Council and delegates participating in the Council on Agricultural Research, Extension and Teaching, a national advocacy program to promote legislative awareness of land-grant university concerns.

Heuser has an extensive background and training in organizational management. From 1967 to 1980, she was executive director of the Tri-County Council on Addictive Diseases in Harrisburg. From 1980 to 1984 she was managing director of Mary K. Interiors, an interior design studio. In 1982, she became the second woman in Pennsylvania to earn the designation of Certified Administrative Manager (C.A.M.) from the Administrative Management Society.

From 1985 until assuming her current responsibilities, Heuser was executive director of the Pennsylvania Nurserymen's Association. She was responsible for all administrative functions for the 900-member organization, as well as government affairs activities and administrative support for a subsidiary foundation.

Heuser also served three years as president of the Ag Advisory Council, two years as president of the Pennsylvania Urban and Community Forestry Council, and has been involved in numerous other agricultural organizations.

Morrell Farms Becomes Supreme Dairy Champion

MEADVILLE (Crawford Co.) — The highlight of the 1993 Crawford County Open Dairy Show was the naming of the supreme champion. This year's supreme champion was a 4-year-old Holstein cow, C Kenarbara Jethro Sasha, owned by Morrell Farms, Cochranton.

This cow was named supreme champion over the first runner-up Jersey cow, Berry Patch Beacon Dory, owned by Alright Jerseys, Cochranton. The second runner-up was a Guernsey cow, Carosa Fay Victoria, owned by Robin Wagner, Cochranton.

Other contending grand champions included Ayrshire - Allen Farms Reliable Deanna, owned by Michael J. Allen, Conneaut Lake; Brown Swiss - Par-Nic Bell Loea, owned by Todd Nicolls, Conneautville; and Milking Shorthorn - Mar-Vi-Nic Maginelli, owned by Megan Blasco, Cambridge Springs.

This was the fourth year that a supreme champion selection was made at the Crawford County Open Dairy Show. This highlight to the open show is sponsored by the Crawford County Fair Dairy Committee with support and sponsorship from various Crawford County ag businesses, including Cochranton Co-operative Association, Conneautville Farmer's Exchange, Holabaugh's Sales & Service, Integra Financial Corporation, Meadville Livestock Auction, Mitchell's Milk Hauling, Rynd Home Farm, and Westford Milling Co.

The supreme champion receives a $500 monetary award as well as a handsome trophy and floral wreath for the champion cow.

Pioneer Creates Hay Location Service

WEST DES MOINES, Iowa — The critical shortage of top quality forage is not news to dairy and beef producers across the nation.

Today's big challenge is to find sources of quality hay. That's where a new service sponsored by Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., can help.

Hay-Shoppe service, found daily on the FarmDay ag information service, will provide detailed listings of hay for sale, according to Linda Wyss, FarmDayta product manager.

"The shortage of top quality hay affects producers in many different parts of the country. Hay-Shoppe service was created to bring buyers and sellers together quickly and inexpensively," Wyss said. "Producers with hay for sale can list their information on the service for one week at no charge. And, for someone needing hay, Hay-Shoppe service will be a one-stop list of hay available."

From September 1 until March 1, 1994, Hay-Shoppe listings will be found in more than 20,000 key locations in the Midwest and beyond. Many Pioneer sales representatives and retail outlets with FarmDayta service will provide access to the listings to producers in their area.

Hay for sale may be listed by calling Broadcast Partners at (800) 972-3939. Ads placed by 3 p.m. will appear on the service by 10 the next morning.

"The Hay-Shoppe listings will be broadcast almost immediately, so the information will be current. This should help reduce the frustration of making a phone call only to find the hay has already been sold," Wyss said.

Found in the InfoBeam segment of FarmDayta service, free Hay-Shoppe listings are 78 characters long, providing room for hay kind, quality, and quantity, along with a phone number to call. The abbreviation for the state of origin will automatically be included, so buyers will have an idea of the location they are calling before they pick up the phone.

FarmDayta service also provides the latest state-by-state USDA hay market prices summaries including supply, demand, quality, and prices. This information is in addition to a complete package of market prices, ag news, weather, and agronomic information.

To place a listing on Hay-Shoppe service or for more information about the FarmDayta information service, call (800) 972-3939. Or contact your local Pioneer sales representative for the location of the nearest FarmDayta service.

Crawford Co. 4-H Holds Dairy Roundup

MEADVILLE (Crawford Co.) — The Crawford County 4-H Dairy Club youth recently held their annual roundup at the county fairgrounds in Meadville, with 238 cattle exhibited by 98 youth.

Tonya Steadman, of Saegertown showed the supreme champion of the show, a junior 3-year-old Holstein, Ms. Black-Pond B-Star Lynnea. The cow was also named best bred and owned among those animals shown by participating senior-aged youth.

The best bred and owned animal shown by a junior-aged youth was exhibited by Merideth Weiderspahn, of Cochranton.

The Crawford County dairy club youth also participated in a fitting and showing contest.

In the fitting show, Erin Raney, of Adamsville, was first among the 8-year-olds, Thomas Wilson, of Saegertown, was first among the 9-year-olds, Adam Raney for the 10-year-olds; Holly Manross, of Saegertown, for the 11-year-olds; Jenna Blasco, of Cambridge Springs, 12-year-olds; Deborah Blasco, Cambridge Springs, 13-year-olds; Sara Duncan,. of Meadville, 14-year-olds; Beth Bly, of Titusville, 15-year-olds; Sarah Crom, of Jamestown, 16-year-olds; Heather Furry, of Guys Mills, 17-year-olds; Chantelle Zilhaver, Cambridge Springs, 18-year-olds.

In the master fitting contest, Jason Miller was the overall champion of the junior-aged youth, while older sister Kimberly Miller was the senior-aged champion.

In the showmanship contest, the champions by age group were Jenna Bramer, 8, Saegertown; Thomas Wilson, 9, Saegertown; Lacey Zakostelecky, 10, of Conneautville; Holly Manross, 11, Saegertown; Brenda Smith, 12; Jeremy Williams, Springboro; Travis Biggs, 14, Cochranton; Kimberly Miller, 15, Cambridge Springs; Kathleen Duncan, 16, Meadville; Brooks Rynd, 17, Cochranton; and Sarah Alsdorf, 18, Spartansburg.

The overall junior-age champion showman was Brenda Smith, while Kimberly Miller also took the over-all senior-aged showmanship title.

In the cattle breed competitions, the Ayrshire grand champion was shown by Michael Allen, of Conneaut Lake. His entry was a 4-year-old cow, Allen Farms Reliable Deanna.

The reserve grand champion was a dry cow shown by Rank Campbell, of Conneaut Lake, Sycamore-Meade Mozart's Boot.

The junior champion was a senior calf shown by Chantelle Zilhaver, of Cambridge Springs, while Melissa Burdick showed the reserve junior champion, also a senior calf.

In the Brown Swiss breed, Todd Nicolls, of Conneautville showed an aged cow, Par Nic Bell Loea, to take the grand championship.

Mark Livingston, of Jamestown, showed the reserve Brown Swiss, a 4-year-old, MLF Alice.

In the Jersey breed, Crystal Miller, Cambridge Springs, showed the grand champion, a senior 2-year-old, Juno Diamond of Justa-Dream.

Of the four animals entered in the Milking Shorthorn competition, Megan Blasco, of Cambridge Springs, showed the junior and grand champion, a junior yearling; Sabrina Wilhelm, of Centerville showed the reserve junior and reserve grand champion, an intermediate yearling. The senior champion was also shown by Wilhelm.

Champions Named In York Fair Junior Beef Breeding

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — Five young beef breeding exhibitors earned champion honors during the York Fair's Junior Beef Breeding Show.

Champion titles went to Suzanne Bishard, York, Angus division; Wade Myers, Dallastown, Charolais division; Jennifer Altobellil, Dover, Hereford division; Travis Red, Dallastown, Simmental division; and Shawn Waltimyer, Airville winner in the category of other breeds with a Maine-Anjou heifer.

Reserve champion awards in the breed divisions were won by Suzanne Bishard, York, Angus; Amanda Daughterty, York, Hereford division; Raymond Stough, Seven Valleys, Simmental division; and Shawn Waltimyer, Airville, other breeds.

Champion fitter of the junior beef show was Abbottstown exhibitor Jason Rankin. Suzanne Bishard, York, was selected reserve champion. Rankin won his senior age category over runner-up Jason Stein, Wrightsville. In the 13-15 age group, Suzanne Bishard was first; Jennifer Altobelli, Dover, second; and Jodi Dutrey, Dallastown, third.

Travis Reid, Dallastown, took first place fitter in the age 10-12 group, over second placed Kelly Dutrey, Dallastown, and Phil Baer, Glenville, third. Junior division winner Beth Baer, Glenville, bested runner-up Herman Hake, Etters, in the age 8-9 category.

Jason Rankin also took top honors in the special showmanship competition sponsored by William Dietz. Jennifer Altobelli was the reserve champion showman.

Winners in the senior age group, 16 and over, Jason Rankin, Abbottstown, first; Elizabeth Bishard, York, second; and Wade Myers, Dallastown, third. In the 13-15 group, Jennifer Altobelli was first, Jason Baer, Glenville, second, and Suzanne Bishard, York, third. Tammi Grubb, Hanover, ranked first in the 10-12 age group, over second place Kelly Dutrey, Dallastown, and third place Philip Baer, Glenville. Junior exhibitor Beth Baer, Glenville, took first, with Herman Hake, Etters, in second in the 8-9 age division.

Dietz also sponsored a new self-fitting class, for exhibitors who do every bit of the work of fitting their own beef entries. Senior winner was Jennifer Altobelli, Dover. Tammi Grubb, Hanover, was intermediate age winner and junior honors went to Beth Baer, Glenville.

Cargill Announces Early Order Seed Prices

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Farmers who order and pay for Cargill corn hybrids for spring planting can purchase many of the company's hybrids at prices lower than a year ago.

Dr. Jack Carlson, corn product manager, said Cargill's seed production fields in Illinois and Michigan look good at this point and he expects adequate hybrid supplies. However, he cautioned that the crop is still behind schedule in some areas and advised farmers to purchase seed now since an early frost could change the seed supply outlook.

"The best policy to get the desired hybrids at the lowest possible price is to order and pay for seed now," said Carlson. "With only a few exceptions, prices for Cargill hybrids are now the same or lower than they were a year ago. But price changes are possible for seed that is ordered but not paid for."

Farmers who pay for Cargill hybrids by November 1 will receive an additional nine percent discount. A financing program at competitive interest rates also is available to qualified producers.

Cargill plant breeders have developed nine new hybrids for spring planting:

• Cargill Hybrid Seeds 3577. (93-98 day relative maturity) This is an excellent forage hybrid with excellent grain quality. It flowers early and has excellent plant health and stress tolerance.

• Cargill Hybrid Seeds 3777. (95-101 day relative maturity) This hybrid features excellent grain quality, heavy test weight, and flowers early for its maturity. It also is noted for excellent plant health and stress tolerance plus high-tonnage forage.

• Cargill Hybrid Seeds 4277. (100-105 day relative maturity) This hybrid has good yield-to-moisture ratio and good stalk and root quality and overall appearance. The hybrid dries fast after black layer occurs.

• Cargill Hybrid Seeds 6337. (106-109 day relative maturity) This hybrid has excellent yield potential and superior stress tolerance. It also has excellent stalk strength and test weight.

• Cargill Hybrid Seeds 6677. (108-111 day relative maturity) The hybrid features excellent yield potential and plant health. It is recommended at moderate plant populations but will respond to higher rates.

• Cargill Hybrid Seeds 7897. (114-118 day relative maturity) Very high yield potential and a rapid drydown rate are features of this hybrid. It has excellent standability and stress tolerance.

• Cargill Hybrid Seeds 8097W. (115-118 day relative maturity) This specialty white hybrid has demonstrated excellent yields over a wide range of environments. Its grain is noted for superior test weight, hardness, and crown scores.

• Cargill Hybrid Seeds 8327. (115-119 day relative maturity) The hybrid features outstanding yield potential, stay-green, and grain quality. It performs well under conventional and no-till programs.

• Cargill Hybrid Seeds 8396. (117-121 day relative maturity) Very good yield potential and resistance to maize dwarf mosaic virus are important features of this new hybrid. It also performs well under conventional and no-till programs.

ASA Commends USDA's Commitment To Vegetable Oil Printing Ink

DENVER, Colo. — U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Mike Espy announced at the American Soybean Association's (ASA) Soybean EXPO that the USDA intends to use vegetable oil inks in the printing of USDA documents.

Steve Yoder, Florida soybean farmer and ASA president, said, "We strongly support this decision and commend the Secretary's assertiveness. We know in practical terms that when a vegetable ink is used it is probably going to be soy ink, and USDA's use of soy ink builds demand for soybeans."

ASA has been rallying for passage of the "Vegetable Ink Printing Act of 1993" since its introduction into the House of Representatives in April. If passed, the bill would require the federal government and its contracting printers to use vegetable ink when cost effective.

"Espy's voluntary decision to use vegetable ink now sets a precedent that could encourage other government agencies to use soy ink, and nullify the need for legislation," said Yoder. "ASA will continue to work as a principle force on this issue."

Secretary Espy was the first Congressman to use soy ink on documents to his constituents and the only Congressman to use the SoySeal on U.S. documents until the government disallowed its use.

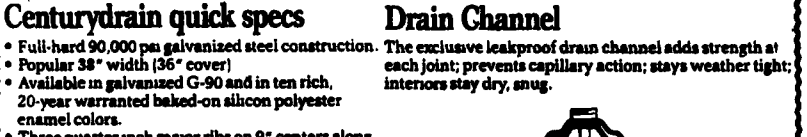
WHEELING
Centurydrain™

A country slicker with an in-town attitude.

Tough Centurydrain is a slick looking roofing and siding that'll do a job for you in rural applications, and one that you can use for in-town or suburban structures without apology

Centurydrain is packed with quality features: 100% American-made high tensile steel, full 36" cover, an unbeatable drain channel, and snug side laps Your building stays tight, dry, and lasts through years of punishing wind and weather

Centurydrain is an economical, thoroughly practical building material; a slick choice for rural, suburban, and commercial applications.



Centurydrain quick specs

- Full-hard 90,000 psi galvanized steel construction.
- Popular 38" width (36" cover)
- Available in galvanized G-90 and in ten rich, 20-year warranted baked-on silicon polyester enamel colors.
- Three quarter inch major ribs on 9" centers along with prominent intermediate ribs to provide strength, snug fit and clean lines
- 29 gauge.
- Also available: 28 gauge, 2 oz. galvanized Wheeling Seal of Quality—heavier, galvanized coated sheet for extra wear and long life. We're so confident of its durability that we offer this product's own special 20-year limited warranty

Drain Channel

The exclusive leakproof drain channel adds strength at each joint; prevents capillary action; stays weather tight; interiors stay dry, snug.

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING

A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

Have you tried toasted grains?

Consider these advantages over traditional roasting methods:

- ◆ Consistent by-pass proteins and low moisture levels.
- ◆ Improved energy density of your rations.
- ◆ Excellent quality control.
- ◆ Exchange programs with feed mills.
- ◆ Economical storage, rolling and grinding available.
- ◆ We also buy corn and soybeans

EPA Approves Tank Mix Applications For Herbicide

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. — Fusion herbicide from ICI Agricultural Products has been approved by the EPA for use in tank mix applications with Galaxy or Storm herbicides on soybeans.

Steve Miller, product manager at ICI, said Fusion tank mixes with these and other broadleaf herbicides offer superior postemergence control of annual grasses and broadleaf weeds.

"Fusion can now be tank mixed with eight leading broadleaf herbicides in 13 different combinations, in most cases at the same rate you'd use if applying Fusion alone for annual grass control," Miller said. "Fusion tank mixes have less antagonism than all other postemergence grass herbicide tank mixes."

Galaxy or Storm do not require increased rates for tank mixes with Fusion, he said.

Fusion, whether applied in tank mixes or alone, provides outstanding control of annual grasses such as foxtails, fall panicum, shatter-

Revenue Department Clarifies Sales Tax On Manure Tanks

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Department of Revenue has clarified the state sales tax exemption so that farmers who construct manure holding facilities beneath high-rise poultry houses do not have to pay sales tax on that portion of their new building, according to Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff.

Wolff, who has asked for a clarification, commended officials at the state Department of Revenue for their decision which will benefit poultry producers.

"In the past, manure facilities in the basements of hog feeder operations qualified for the exemption while similar units under poultry houses did not qualify," Wolff said.

The Tax Reform Code of 1971 exempts from sales tax any purchase of machinery, equipment, and supplies used by the purchaser directly in the operation of farming.

The Department of Revenue has determined that a manure holding tank qualifies as directly used equipment. That is true even though the "tank" may be a concrete structure either below ground or at ground level.

The exemption, however, does not apply to an entire poultry house or the entire building housing a hog feeder operation. Farmers who have questions concerning the sales tax should consult the Pennsylvania Sales and Use Tax Regulation 226 or they should contact the Department of Revenue, Sales Tax Division (717) 783-9360.

EPA Approves Tank Mix

cane, seedling johnsongrass, crabgrass, barnyardgrass, red rice, wild proso millet, woolly cupgrass, and volunteer corn.

The Galaxy tank mix is generally better suited for northern beans, Miller said, while the Storm tank mix is better suited for southern beans.

"A tank mix with Galaxy will control velvetleaf, cocklebur, and pigweed very well because of the higher concentration of Basagran herbicide in Galaxy," Miller said. "A tank mix with Storm will control morningglory and ragweed better because of the higher concentration of Blazer herbicide in Storm."

Fusion is added to the tank mix at 8 to 10 ounces per acre. The 10-ounce rate may be necessary with conditions such as low soil moisture and low relative humidity, and should be used when weed foliage is dense or when weeds have reached the maximum recommended growth stage.

An approved crop oil concentrate at 0.5 to 1.0 quart per 25 gallons (0.5 to 1 percent by volume) of water should always be added to the tank mix of Fusion with Galaxy or Storm.

TOP NOTCH QUALITY GRAIN DRILL FOR YOU!

IN STOCK!
- 16x7
- 20x6
- 24x6

Markers Optional

There's nothing more important to a crop than early, even emergence. To get it, you need accurate, even seeding.

The 5300 has earned a reputation for its seeding precision, a function of its exclusive feed cup design and dependable disk openers. And, to improve placement of seed, the opener drawbars are heavier than on previous models. Press wheel and opener bearings are heavier for long life operation.

Along with accuracy, the 5300 gives you fast, high capacity seeding, so you spend less time refilling hoppers.

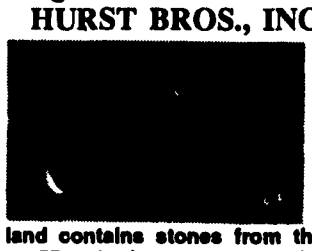
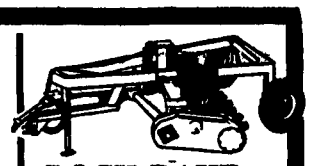
AFTER GRAIN HARVEST PUT A Degelman TO WORK!

FOR ROCK PPICKERS & ROCK RAKES IN HEAVY DUTY QUALITY SEE BINKLEY & HURST BROS., INC. TODAY!



We are pleased to introduce the new SIGNATURE 6000 hydraulic drive stone picker from Degelman. If your land contains stones from the size of softballs to 55 gal. drums, you need this unit on your farm. Diggers available for removal of large rocks.



ROCK RAKE

The Degelman Rock Rake is designed to windrow small to medium sized rocks and other ground debris for easy picking. Rock-free fields mean less down-time, greater profits.

TIME IS MONEY

and when your equipment is down, it costs you plenty. That's why Degelman engineered farm implements are a wise investment.

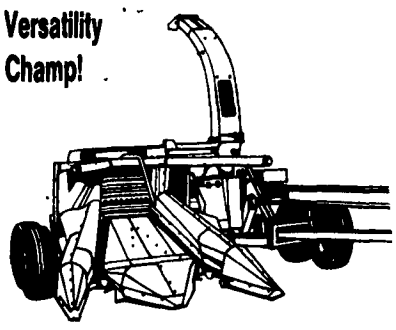
Versatility Champ!



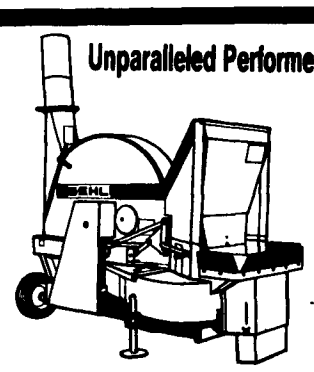
With a horsepower rating for maximum 200 hp, the Gehl 1060 features exclusive patented spinner delivery system that "jets" material from cylinder to blower in a continuous flow. Other features include overrunning clutch; in-head hydraulic knife sharpener that allows in-field knife sharpening and refacing of cutterbar, using tractor hydraulics, and single-station cutterbar adjustment. Auto-Max system, speed monitor, metal detector, haylage water tank optional! It's totally versatile! Make us prove it with a demonstration.

GEHL

Thoroughly Conditioned

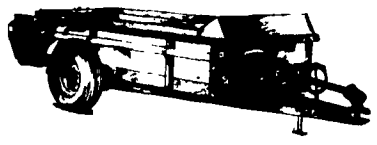
The Gehl 2140/2170 mower conditioners will thoroughly condition your hay. These pull-type mower conditioners are built for fast cutting, fast drying and worry-free performance. The wide, intermeshing rubber rolls with intermittent ribs give you 38% more working edges than continous-ribbed rolls, for more thorough conditioning. That means shorter drying time with less leaf damage. See your Gehl dealer today on how the 2140, with a 7 ft. cutting width, and the 2170 with a 9 ft. 3 in. cutting width will fit into your haymaking operation.

Unparalleled Performers



The ultimate forage blowers are here - the Gehl 1540, 1560 and 1580. These blowers have been developed around the high capacity tradition of famous Gehl blowers. In addition to unmatched capacity, these blowers boast many convenience features - swing-away blower outlet, removable tunnel covers, replaceable rim sheet liner, adjustable left axle, quick-adjust air vents, PTO storage hanger and more. PUT A GEHL BLOWER TO THE TEST ON YOUR FARM TODAY!

EVEN WHEN IT'S EMPTY...IT'S LOADED!



When you're checking out box-type manure spreaders, look to Gehl for a better spreader! Gehl box spreaders are available in five sizes ranging from 135 to 425 bushel heaped capacities.

There's a name for people who won't settle for second best

We decided a long time ago that "good enough" wasn't. So we made a commitment to excellence and haven't let up since. We met tough criteria set by John Deere to provide excellent customer service.

That's why we've been named a John Deere Super Service Dealer. It means a lot to us, and even more to you. It says your agricultural machinery is in the hands of a team who meets the very highest standards. People who really care about what they do.

Your trust is important to us, because your business is important to us. That's what being a Super Service Dealer is all about.

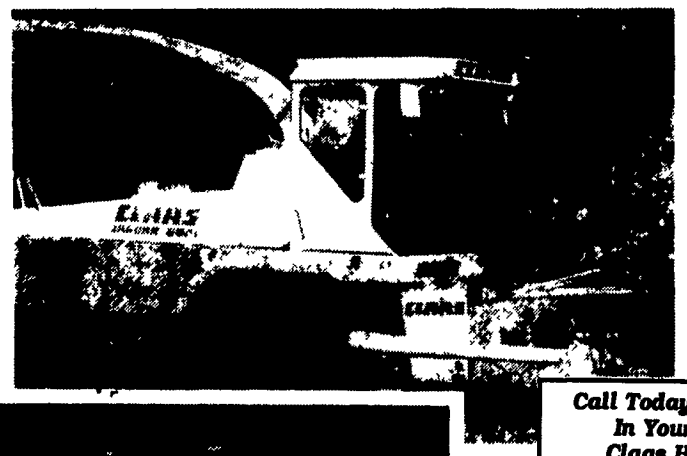
THE CLAAS HARVESTER



MAXIMUM FEED QUALITY

To ensure maximum feed quality from maize it is vital to crack every kernel. Digestion of uncracked maize falls as the maize becomes drier. Independent trials have shown the Claas corn cracker to be close to 100% effective. From the cylinder the corn passes through the two large diameter rollers with saw tooth profiles The rollers run at different speeds to intensify the grinding effect and open up each kernel. It is a fairly tough process so the latest generation of corn crackers take account of the wear involved on the rollers. Nothing can reduce the wear but Claas have cut the cost of repair by making the outer sleeve replaceable. The shaft, drive pulley and bearings can all be reused which cuts down repair bills dramatically. Adjusting the distance between the two rollers is accomplished by turning two handles, easily accessible behind the cab. In no time at all the degree of cracking can be matched to the ripeness of the crop.

RELIABILITY

The CLAAS Cutterbox is a unique balanced design using 2 knives in a V configuration. This forces the cutting action toward the center instead of the outside. This is the secret of their horsepower requirement and good quality of cut.

The VA 500 automatic feeder, simple and functional

Individual feeding for yield and quality

The VA 500 can be programmed to increase daily ration automatically up to a new maximum. The increase is very gradual with consequent beneficial effect on feed utilisation and health. As milk yield decreases towards the end of the lactation you can instruct the feeder to automatically and gradually decrease the daily ration to nil over whatever period you choose. Once a week or so amendments may be programmed into account for the current milking situation (new cows calved or dry etc.). All other instructions can be entered at any time to coincide with the receipt of figures from milk recordings and analysis. The VA 500 saves a lot of labour and time working out new rations.

Concentrates correction for all livestock

When there is a sudden change to bulk feed intake (for example because of bad weather or a switch to a different quality of silage) rations can be adjusted for the whole herd by making a single entry on the controlling keyboard. This has proved to be particularly easily accomplished and prevents fluctuations in production.

Normal cleaning across slopes

3-D in operation

COMBINING SLOPES THE MF 3-D CLEANING SYSTEM

With the MF-3-D cleaning system, the crop is distributed evenly across the full width of the sieves, performance remains stable and output maintained.

The 3-D cleaning system provides dynamic slope compensation which means that the upper sieve moves sideways against the slope of the hill. The degree and direction of these movements depend on the inclination of the slope. Quick reaction and of course equal performance in any direction on slopes of up to 20%.

With the MF 3-D system you can operate at the same speed on slopes as on flat land. Daily performance can be maintained.

In order to avoid hauling and drying costs, let us build a corn storage unit to preserve your valuable grain at 20%-30% moisture.

To keep your stored corn bright and yellow, you must protect it from oxygen and heat. Our 6" thick concrete walls reflect 38% of light beams, resulting in 780 times more heat-resisting ability than steel, and 25 times more insulating power than steel.

Our 6" thick walls have a very low leak potential compared to pre-fab silos of any kind, and a very low maintenance requirement.

BEFORE SPENDING A LOT OF MONEY FOR ENERGY (B.T.U.'s) TO DRY YOUR CORN, YOU WILL DO WELL TO CONSIDER THE MANY ADVANTAGES OF OUR POURED CONCRETE SILOS...

To unload your corn, we can install the simple auger system, the Laidig 43 unloader, or the Flying Dutchman. Lets discuss the options, and what is best for your situation.

Poultry Queen Family Strives For Excellence In Farming

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — The Clark Stauffer farm has often been featured in the news for its U.S. geological water quality studies and for its innovative composting system. Now, add another noteworthy accomplishment: It's home for the Pennsylvania Poultry Queen Melissa Stauffer.

Melissa, 19, the oldest daughter of Clark and his wife Lucy, and her sisters, Michele, 16, and Janelle, 13, are involved in the day to day farm operation.

Because the Stauffer farm is highly diversified, it cannot be classified as only a poultry farm, although it certainly is a successful one. In addition to raising 22,000 broilers, 235 sows, and a 500-head hog finishing business, more than 100 acres are farmed. The biggest scope of work is dedicated to 15 acres in produce and one in tobacco.

Stauffer said that his grandfather purchased the 67-acre Indian Run Farm during the Depression years. Since then a neighboring 16-acre farm has been added and the Stauffers rent additional acreage to make about 100 acres. The farm still has the original 1788 barn that was redone in 1946.

Although Clark had studied landscaping and worked in that field until he purchased the farm, he never regretted his decision to change careers.

"But it's quite a challenge," Clark said.

He is an avid follower of keeping abreast of new and better methods in agriculture. For this reason, the Stauffer farm is often the site where agriculture leaders from other countries visit.

Clark's expertise is in conservation methods and in a composting system he erected on the farm.

"A composting system is a great way to go. I think every poultry farmer should have one," he said.

Although skeptical before he installed the composter, Clark said that he had become interested in composting by necessity after contaminated ground water was tested on his farm.

He was also appalled when he dug footers for a building, and found that the chickens he was burying were not

Poultry Producers Show How They Profit From Manure Marketing

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — There's a way to turn what some consider a liability — the tons of poultry manure generated on the farm — into an asset.

Several Lancaster County poultry producers have come up with solutions about manure disposal. Rather than leaving the disposal of it entirely to chance, to nutrient management plans and legislation, or the local township, they've taken matters into their own hands.

Fertility matters, that is.

The key is to take the raw product from layer or broiler houses and dry and/or refine it enough to suit the bill. That "bill" comes in the form of how producers choose to market the manure.

In the stories to follow about several poultry producers throughout Lancaster, all had one thing in common: a marketing plan. They selected the place they wanted the manure to go, decided on what price they were willing to accept for it, and worked closely and constantly with the buyer to ensure a product that benefits both the buyer and the end-market, the consumer.

"The more you invest in making the better product, the more you have to get for the product, which changes where you market it," said Leon Ressler, nutrient specialist at the Lancaster extension office. "In other words, the cheaper the product, the more potential buyers you have out there."

Ressler recently compiled a manure marketing buy/sell list from a survey. When it was completed, the list totalled 296 receivers and 110 suppliers.

According to Ressler's annual report, a follow-up survey decomposing.

After reading an article on composting in Lancaster Farming,, Clark did a little experiment on his own.

He dug a hole, threw in chickens and covered them with horse manure. Three months later, he examined the dirt.

"There was nothing left — no bones — nothing," Clark said.

He realized composting was the way to go. ASCS subsidized 50 percent of the cost. Plans were approved by John Schwartz, Lancaster Extension director. In March 1992, the compost was ready to use.

"It's less labor to dispose of chickens now than before," Clark said.

"I thought I would need a college education to run it. But with the right ingredients, you can't mess up. It's a lot simpler than what I expected."

Four adjacent composting bins were erected near the chicken house. Instead of horse manure that Stauffer used in his original experience, he now uses poultry litter that puts the decomposing process in action.

Stauffer throws about three shovelfuls of poultry manure on top of the dead chickens each day. Water is not added. A roof must cover the bins to prevent rain from entering or the compost pile will develop an odor.

It takes about three weeks to fill one bin before it is topped with manure and allowed to go through a seven to 10-day heat cycle that reaches 150 degrees. After the heat drops to about 100 degrees, the bin's contents are dumped into an adjacent bin where it completes another heat cycle. (The dumping aerates to get the bacteria moving). At the end of the second heat cycle, the composting is complete and ready to be spread on the fields.

The process usually reaches 160 degrees. There is no problem with rodents, Clark said, because it gets too hot for animals to even come near. If the process does smell, odors are easily eliminated by aerating and adding more manure.

Clark said that at first he measured each ingredient carefully for properly calculated ratios, but now does it without measure.

"It's sort of like baking a cake," he said. "After you do it so many times, you can make it without measuring."

No commercial fertilizer is ever used on the farm as poultry manure does an effective job.

Stauffers were one of the first county farms to erect a non-pole barn in 1963. The chicken house is a no footer house without curtain sides. It is environmentally controlled with fans. The Stauffers contract with Pennfield to raise broilers.

Breeding and feeding methods have advanced the broiler industry substantially since Stauffer first housed them.

"The first flock I put in took 14 weeks to finish. The last flock took only five weeks and three days," he said. "It's getting to the point where they won't need to bring in chicks — they'll go straight to slaughter."

Feed conversion is 1.83 to a pound of weight gain.

"You can't get any animal more efficent than a broiler," he said.

Melissa and her two sisters are responsible for unloading the chicks when brought to the farm. After that Clark basically takes care of the chickens.

His daughters primary responsibilities are with the produce business.

"Seven years ago, I needed something to keep my three daughters busy," Clark said, "so I put in an acre of produce."

The first day, the family sold the produce at the roadside stand on the farm, they made $15. Every day after that sales increased. Since then, it has been Stauffer's goal to double the stand's gross income each year. And, mostly that goal has been achieved.

Not only do the Stauffers keep the home produce stand stocked, but they supply produce to three local supermarket.

"It took me three years to gain their (the stores') confidence," Stauffer said. He purposes to treat the supermarket like he would want to be treated. He, personally goes to the supermarket everyday to deliver the produce and to make sure everything is fine. He guarantees each product.

The supermarket has been so pleased that they've asked Clark to supply produce for the whole chain, but Clark declined.

He doesn't have the time, and he would find it difficult to supply top quality produce on a daily basis to such a large area.

In the produce business, vegetables and fruit must be picked the day it's at its prime — not one day later when its convenient. That often requires rising early in the morning and working late at night.

Nevertheless, Stauffer enjoys the fast-paced produce business. "It's interesting, exciting, and challenging to grow the best product," he said.

"Weather dictates the crop," Stauffer said. And, for him, this past summer was ideal with lots of sun. Dry years mean a more profitable business for Stauffer because he irrigates.

People will drive long distances for large, fully-developed sweet corn compared to the non-irrigated short, poorly developed ears, he said.

Wet years hurt produce sales because he battles more fungus and irrigating does not pay off.

The Stauffers use plastic to extend the growing season. Covering the crops with plastic in early spring has enabled the Stauffers to havest cataloupe and tomatoes two weeks ahead of the market.

"The best advertising is word of mouth," Clark said. "People will travel miles and pay extra to get good produce. For that reason, the Stauffers irrigate by using an overhead pump and pump water from the creek on the farm. Clark would like to go to more trickle irrigation, which results in less fungus problems and allows more careful monitoring of plants. But the overhead method has advantages. During hot summer days, the overhead irrigation systems wet the chicken house roof to cool off the broilers while watering the produce acreage.

Stauffer follows a three-year rotation plan for vine crops. To control weeds he uses spray and kids, he said. Sprays make produce gardening less labor intensive but he does hire help for cultivating.

For the past eight years, soil and water conditions are monitored on the farm by a U.S. geological survey with the Chesapeake Bay.

This requires the Stauffers to keep records of everything that goes on the soil, manure hauling, planting, and farming practices.

The Stauffer farm is only one of two farms chosen for monitoring. It was chosen bcause of the way the land lays, the conservation used, and the excessive manure.

During the first three years of the monitoring, Clark used normal farming practices, but studies revealed that too much fertilizer was being used. Clark stopped using commercial fertilizer and applied only half of the manure he previously did.

"My yields are higher and I have less cost because I don't use commercial fertilizer and only half the manure," Clark said.

CHORE-TIME®

THE COMPLETE SYSTEMS PEOPLE:
TWO STYLES OF FEEDERS

When the Chore-Time Model C2 feeder line is lowered to the floor, patented Feed Windows pile feed high, to attract chicks.

CHORE-TIME broilers your way! That's why we offer two distinct styles of broiler feeder: Model C2™ with grill and Model H2™ without grill.

As the world leader in poultry production systems, Chore-Time offers you the best and most advanced choices for whatever needs you have.

You'll love what both of our feeders do for you:

• Patented Feed Window The exclusive Chore-Time Feed Window automatically fills the pan high with feed to attract chicks from day one without extra labor. After brooding, the feed level then goes to a normal, low level to save feed all thru growout.

• Unique Pan Shape. Only Chore-Time offers a deep "V" pan shape with Feed Saver feautres: a unique lip helps stop waste from raking and billing, plus a pan shape that lets you keep feed levels low and still provide birds with plenty of feed for fast gains.

• Other benefits. Both feeders have a long list of features, and each has some exclusive features of its own. Find out more about why Chore-Time is the leader all over the world when it comes to broiler production systems.

The hydraulic doors on the modified truck can be opened in one-ton per acre increments from two tons to eight tons per acre, according to Stauffer. was conducted among those on the lists. Of those who responded, 56 percent of the receivers said contacts made as a result of the list lead to making "one or more deals" and 72 percent of the suppliers said the contacts lead to making one or more deals. Those responding, according to the report, indicated they supply or receive 7,040 tons and 2.2 million gallons of manure annually.

Composting the manure may be the answer. In this case, a more refined, drier product is available for the buyer to use as an overall fertilizer, or combined and marketed as a specialty fertilizer product.

In the end, according to the extension agent, if farmers would take more time to think about marketing, they could profit.

By-Products To Profit

Some poultry producers have found a way to turn the by-products of their operation into profit.

At the Elizabethtown, Pa. layer farm of Paul M. Wolgemuth, Jr., a turnkey layer composting system allows the manure generated by a 200,000-bird flock to dry and compost gradually.

The system, built by Salmet, in Germany, was installed in 1991 to move manure from the cages, dry it with special whisking fans above a conveyor, and move to a section of the building. There, three 17-foot by 300-foot lanes support windrows of manure that is gradually turned and dried through a system that runs the length of the house and back.

The system is installed in a 370-foot by 105-foot layer house holding about 142,000 layers. The manure is transfered from the laying area by conveyor every seven days.

The conveyor machine moves at a speed of 5½ inches per minute, or about eight hours through the lane. After dried and composed, a frontloader is used to move the machine to a conveyor, which loads it to a truck, or to a grinder, to be further refined.

Wolgemuth said that he decided to use the system to provide a better environment for the birds.

"We're in Mount Joy Township," he said, "and our township says that before they would give any kind of a building permit for livestock facilities, they want to make sure we are in compliance with a manure management plan."

According to the poultry farmer, the plan indicated the farm had slightly too much manure for the 165 tillable acres covering two separate farms. To add more chickens, said Wolgemuth, "we had to have a plan to get rid of the manure and not put any of it on our existing farm ground."

In 1991, they decided to market the manure. First they installed the Salmet system. The key to the system is drying the manure (fresh layer manure is about 70 percent moisture) right out of the layer house to under 60 percent in order to get the composting to start.

The Salmet system dries the manure without having to add any additional drying ingredients, said the poultry farmer.

"I didn't want a system where we would have to be trucking in other material to add to the manure, such as wood shavings or paper or leaves or whatever," he said.

He said at that point he had several markets for the composted material, but the buyers wanted pure manure, not product that included wood shavings, sawdust, or some other drying material.

The composting machine can be moved in a few minutes to each lane. Six weeks after fresh manure goes in one end, it comes out the other end as dry manure.

The dry manure is then ground up, depending on customer requirements.

Wolgemuth sells about 1,400 tons per year of fertilizer, the majority of which goes to a company called Harmony Products in Norfolk, Va. Harmony markets a retail line of organic-based lawn and garden fertilizers.

He is considering marketing the compst as a bagged product under the Green Tree Organic label. The label indicates the fertilizer is "100% Natural Organic" with a 3-2-2 analysis. (Tests on the manure at any time can differ by a percentage point or so, indicated Wolgemuth, so the label is a guaranteed minimum of the availability based on recent and ongoing analyses. The labeling requires the analysis indicate the breakdown of water soluble and insoluble nitrogen, listing actual availability of nutrients, including phosphorous.)

He is attempting to develop markets for 5-pound, 15-pound, and 40-pound bags of the composted manure. He indicated he wants to move gradually into local retail markets and do some advertizing locally to see what the demand for the product will be.

It's not a bad idea, according to the poultry farmer, considering the demand for poultry manure as fertilizer rarely gets above $40 a ton. Anything below that, and the farmer couldn't make money on the product.

Wolgemuth's intent is to market as much of the product to fertilizer companies as he can during times of peak demand (January through June). Despite supply and demand challenges that occur occasionally, Wolgemuth is able to locate additional buyers at nonpeak times if necessary.

Also, Wolgemuth is testing how the composted manure performs with his own 130-acre corn crop at the farm.

Wolgemuth has birds under contract from Heritage PMS, Inc. (140,000 birds) in addition to the birds he owns (70,000 birds). He farms with his wife, Karen, and son, Jason, 20.

Manure Applied At Half The Cost

While many farmers pay as much as $40-$50 per acre for commercial fertilizer, one Lancaster County farmer said his fertilizer business can spread the nutrient-rich manure for about half the cost per acre.

Jay Stauffer, who operates a 90-acre Holstein beef farm near Columbia, began custom-hauling dry layer house manure about five years ago. Since that time he has built up a customer base of farmers in Lancaster and surrounding counties.

Stauffer said there is a strong demand for layer houses to remove the product and for farmers to utilize it for their crops.

"There's such a demand there and it's such a cheap source of fertility," said Stauffer. "A lot of farmers have told me that it's a good service and they're pleased with what we're doing."

Stauffer, with part-time assistance from Chris Kaley, utilize old potato trucks that have been specially converted to spread the dry manure.

Using skid loaders, Stauffer and Kaley load manure from local layer houses, such as Esbenshade's Farm, into the truck. Stauffer charges the customer for tonnage and mileage — the closer the farm is to the house, the less expensive to apply it.

The truck, with a debridging bar, has a capacity of 16-17 tons (compared to conventional spreaders of about 5-6 tons) and has been modified with front flotation tires in front and back tandem axles. The bed has a special web that moves the manure through an adjustable hydraulic door in the rear. The door spacing determines delivery rate, which depends on soil fertility conditions and how much the farmer wants applied. The web moves the manure through the door, where it encounters an agitator that breaks up the manure. The manure particles fall through the agitator to a broadcast spinner, which ejects the manure in a 12-foot swath on either side of the truck.

The hydraulic doors can be opened in one-ton per acre increments from two tons to eight tons per acre, according to Stauffer. Ground speed of the truck is also adjusted to fine-tune the rate.

Stauffer said he takes regular tests of the manure contents at the house before loading the manure to the truck.

There are two trucks in service in his application business. Another truck will be fitted with other flotation equipment to reduce the chances of soil compaction.

"I'm definitely concerned about compaction," said Stauffer. "The biggest thing is we stay off the fields when they're wet and apply manure when the fields are in shape. We can do compaction damage, but with correct management — waiting until it dries or putting manure on in the fall — has helped a great deal with compaction."

Many of his customers are also concerned, which led Stauffer to ensure his trucks are equipped with anticompaction equipment.

Stauffer said farmers should obtain soil analyses before determining the rate at which he should apply the poultry manure.

But the manure, which is much less expensive than commercial fertilizer, is readily available.

"I didn't know there was such a demand for a spreader truck," said Stauffer. But the customers confirm the need for the fertilizer and someone to apply it.

Stauffer said farmers can see direct benefits of the fertilizer, in increased yields.

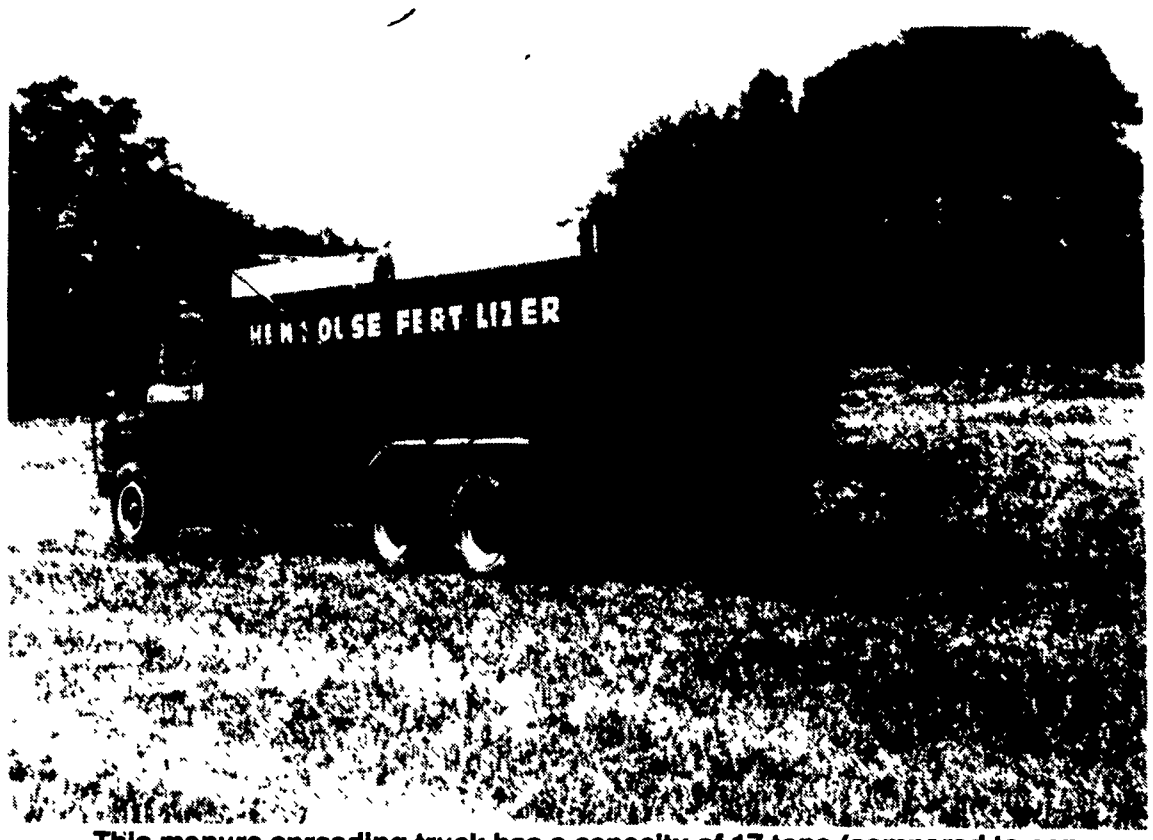
"A number of people have gotten the manure last year and called and ordered it again, and have told me you can see right where you spread it — the pasture is green.

"So we're getting good feedback like that. I'd like to hear from the farmers what's going on," he said.

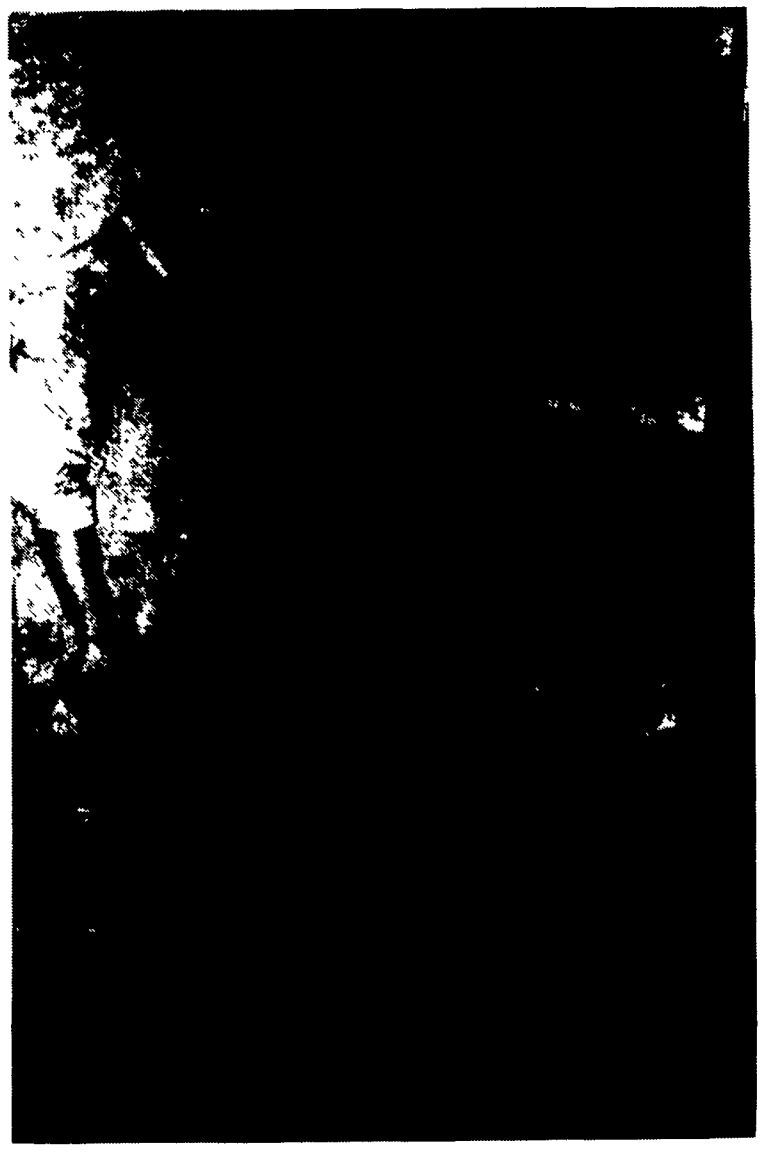
During the summer, Stauffer travels to visit customers to see what his business can do to upgrade the service.

Stauffer has been using the manure himself for a number of years, and noticed the demand for layer manure spreading almost right away. "I saw there is a missing link there. We're looking to fill that missing link," he said.

Stauffer farms with his wife Trena and sons Jay Donald Stauffer, Jr. (J.D.), 7 and Jefferson, 3 near Columbia, Pa.



This manure spreading truck has a capacity of 17 tons (compared to conventional spreaders of about 5-6 tons) and has been modified with front flotation tires in front and back tandem axles. It can spread manure 12 feet to either side.



The location of farm number 2 at Coffee Street houses about 135,000 birds from which Clugston, with help by full-time worker Jay Neff, pictured here, collects manure. In a typical chicken house, manure is normally removed at about 50-55 percent moisture, according to Clugston. But the special drying process dries manure here to about 30 percent moisture.

Layer Manure Dried And Sold

Poultry manure may prove to be a marketable product, but it must first be dried to the point where it is useful.

At the 48-acre Coffee Street Farm near Letort, Lancaster County, under the supervision of farm manager Randy Clugston, layer cages are specially designed to allow circulated air to blow-dry the manure. A conveyor moves the dried down manure outside to a loading dock, where it is scooped up and shipped to several mushroom farms in Chester County.

Clugston said he ships about two loads of chicken manure a week, for more than 100 loads every year.

The farmer operates a 180,000-bird layer operation for Dorr Hershey. Farm one houses about 45,000 birds. The location of farm number 2 at Coffee Street houses about 135,000 birds from which Clugston, with help by full-time worker Jay Neff, collects manure.

Chicken manure is normally removed at about 50-55 percent moisture, according to Clugston. But the special drying process at Coffee Street Farm is dried to about 30 percent.

"With manure at 30 percent, you can sell it for a little bit more," he said. "You can get a little bit more for a ton of it. because the customer's not buying moisture."

Air used to dry the manure is used for the ventilation of the chicken house. Plus, the manure tests higher for nitrogen (about 3 percent nitrogen overall) than broiler manure.

Clugston is careful to keep the manure in a range no lower than 3 percent nitrogen and no higher than 5 percent.

"If I start to get out of those balances, which I do not, they would be concerned," he said.

Layer manure, according to Clugston, doesn't have the other material that mushroom soil operations don't need, such as wood shavings or other bedding products.

"They know what I have," said Clugston. "I have no other product other than pure, straight chicken manure. And they like that. It has a higher percentage of nitrogen in it — they also like that."

Clugston equates the ingredients in manure on the same level as feed for the chickens. To make the right mushroom soil, the right ingredients, including the correct type of manure, are necessary.

"For the mushroom people, my chicken manure is just like the feed ingredients when I feed my chickens," he said. "It's not just a crude thing, where they throw so much chicken manure with so much hay. It's so organized, analysed. They

HERSHEY EQUIPMENT CO.

No matter what you have heard from our competition, Big Dutchman is still Number One, with the best cage system by far. Locally some Big Dutchman systems are approaching their twentieth year of service, and still going strong.

WHOSE FEEDER IS BEST?

DESIGN... Our chain feeder allows easy access to feed, but keeps feed levels further below the lip of the trough compared to the grinding auger feeder. The chain feeder has a steep sidewall, discouraging feed build-up. The auger feeder trough has a slope that allows build-up, inviting mold and disease. Our trough is ribbed, for strength. Theirs is built for price alone.

FEEDING SPACE... Actual feeding space with the auger feeder is skimpy. In fact, our chain feeder has 2½ times more feeding space per bird. This allows the chain feeder to run as few as three times per day, while the auger must run eight or more times per day. Chain carries the feed and supplies a uniform ration with no waste.

FEED CONTROL... The chain feeding system does not dictate a feeding program. You are in control, feeding exactly what is needed, as little or as much as you want, when you want. The auger's frequent running times, with stops and starts, can interrupt birds during peak laying periods.

EGG SIZE and QUALITY... Birds that eat properly lay larger eggs. The price on large vs. medium makes a world of difference. The chain feeder allows an early feeding, then ample time for the hen to lay before the next feeding. With an auger feeder, hens fight for feeding space, spend much more time than necessary at the feeder, and create unwanted activity in the cage. The results are smaller eggs and more crax and chex. Profits go down. Put a pencil on it.

REPAIR and MAINTENANCE... The hardest thing about repairing a chain feeder is remembering where you left the hammer and chain breaker tool some months back. With an auger system the need for a welder, torch and grinder is almost routine. Downtime is up, and repair hours and expenses rise with it.

THE TEST of TIME... The chain feeder seems never to wear out. Some thirty year old units are still performing every day. On the other hand, the auger system is "short term," with time as it's enemy. Our goal is to help you make a profit, and chain feeding pays a leading role.

- Thick PVC dropping boards between decks effectively catches virtually all droppings.
- Specially engineered dual action stainless steel scraper blades scrape boards clean.
- Our feed trough fits snugly on the cage. This provides strength, and protects eggs as they move to the egg belt. The straight inner side of the trough also acts as a manure shield.
- Our cage is designed and constructed to control egg roll, significantly reducing crax and chex and providing cleaner eggs.

Big Dutchman®

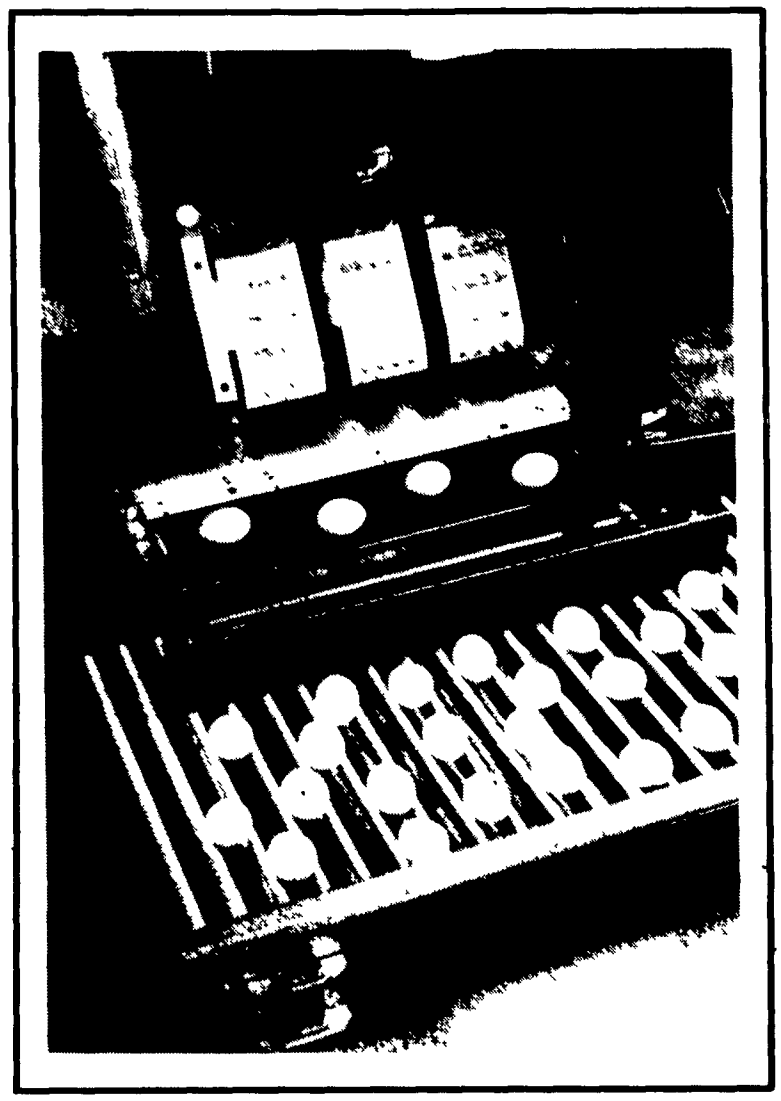
Couple the Big Dutchman cages with a Hershey-designed building and equipment installation and you have an unbeatable combination for service and efficiency. A Hershey system is better ventilated, and has been proven to use less electricity.

WHOSE COLLECTOR IS BEST?

FINGERBELT TRANSFER... The Big Dutchman fingerbelt collector utilizes a series of rubber fingers mounted in a durable belt to hold eggs in a safe position on the incline, going down from cage belts to cross-conveyor.

DUAL DRIVE... Each collector has two drive motors, one for each side. This provides better control with fewer moving parts. Shafts and bearings are all heavy duty material.

PROVEN ROD CONVEYOR... The rod conveyor moves eggs from the collector to the packer with no rolling or colliding. It can move up and down inclines, and is ideal for moving eggs between several houses and the packing room in multi-building farms.



QUALITY EGG BELT... We offer our standard 3¾ inch woven fabric belts. A shallow "V" shape in the wire egg tray keeps eggs in the center.

UNIQUE DESIGN... The Big Dutchman collector does not protrude or hang over the cross conveyor. The full width of the conveyor is used to handle more eggs with less contact between eggs. Dirt, feathers and soft-shells drop through the rod conveyor and are not carried to the packer.

Northeast Poultry Show Opens Sept. 29

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Northeast Poultry Show is scheduled for Wednesday, September 29, and Thursday, September 30, here at the Lancaster Host Resort.

MOre than 750 people went through the exhibit hall last year, and show planners expect a larger turnout this year because of some new attractions and what they consider to be a very dynamic program.

Exhibit Hall - New Attractions

In addition to the large number of vendors displaying new products and services, the exhibit hall will also feature a special producer seminar each day.

On Wednesday, September 29, Dr. Charles Pitts, Penn State University, will discuss "Effective Fly Control." Fly problems have been extremely difficult for producers this year, U.S. Pitts, former head of Penn State is Entomology Department, is a leading U.S. entomologist.

On Thursday, September 30, Mike Brubaker, Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Services, Inc. will discuss "Nutrient Management - It's The Law." Many agricultural states are under pressure to account for the proper management of fertilizers and manures (nutrients) because of possible contamination of ground and surface water. In Pennsylvania, a law has already been passed required farmers with more than 2,000 pounds of livestock or pultry per acre to operate with an approved nutrient management plan. Brubaker has been at the forefront of these issues and his firm is ranked the sixth largest agricultural consulting firm in the U.S.

Visitors to the exhibit hall this year will also have an opportunity to win a new $100 bill. Each adult entering the exhibit hall will be given a number. A number will be drawn every hour for a new $100 bill, and winning numbers will be posted at the exit. The exhibit hall is open to the public free of charge both days from noon until 5:00 P.M. Parking is free and food and beverages can be purchased in the exhibit hall.

Guest Speakers - The conference portion of the Northeast Poultry Show scheduled for 9 a.m. until noon both days features two celebrity guest speakers. On Wednesday, September 29, Charles McDowell will report on "How Are Things in Washington?" McDowell is the Washington columnist for the Richomnd Times - Diospatch and a regular panelist on television's "Washington Week in Review." McDowell was the featured speaker last year at Pennsylvania's Keystone Cornucopia dinner.

On Thursday, September 30, guest speaker is Bob Hope's head comedy writer, Gene Perret. Perret's topic is "Humor - It's Good Business." Perret wrote the Command Performance Show for Bob Hope to appear before Queen Elizabeth II and traveled with Bob to many battlefields to entertain the troops.

A registration fee is required to attend the morning conferences and includes two breakfasts and one dinner. Those interested should contact the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation at (717) 652-7530.

Wednesday Conference - Following a complimentary buffet breakfast, Dr. Richard Reynnells, national program leader for poultry science, USDA Extension Services will open the conference with the presentation, "Animal Welfare - The Washington Scene." His responsibilities include water quality, food safety, and the animal rights/welfare issues for USDA. Reynnells will pinpoint what poultry and egg producers can expect from the animal rights group in the immediate future.

Dr. Stephanie Doores, Penn State University Food Science Department, follows Reynnells with a discussion concerning "The Impact of Food Safety on Agriculture." Doores has been recognized for the Outstanding Young Women of America Award (Montgomery, Ala.), Pennsylvania Future Farmers of America Honorary Keystone Degree, and Gamma Sigma Delta Honorary Agriuclture Society Excellence in Teaching Award.

Doores is expected to review the public pressure for safer food and how it might affect the food industry. The Wednesday morning conference concludes with keynote speaker, Charles McDowell.

Thursday Conference - Thursday's conference also begins with a complimentary

Manure Marketing

"In order for me to do what I'm doing, I present these people with a service. If they want one load of chicken manure every week and they want it that Tuesday, they want a load of chicken manure and they want it there on Tuesday — they don't care whether you're baling hay, they don't care whether you're cutting wheat, they don't care whether the egg collector doesn't work. It takes a commitment on your part to do it."

Clugston said that, in the past, he custom-hauled the manure to be applied on farmers' fields. But the market was inconsistent, and hauling the manure to wet or unworkable areas didn't appeal to the layer farmer.

"I like the idea of driving down there on macadam road and pulling off onto a concrete pad and dumping my manure," said Clugston. "I don't have to worry about getting stuck in some guy's field and there isn't anybody around to pull me out. It's just a whole lot nicer."

Clugston farms with his wife, Marti, and children Tiffanie, 14; Jennifer, 12; and Caleb, 8.

File plan

Now that Pennsylvania nas nutrient management legislation, according to Paul H. Patterson, professor of poultry science at Penn State, poultry producers will be required to file a nutrient management plan if they have more than 2,000 pounds of poultry liveweight per acre of land.

According to the poultry specialist, the options for manure utilization are many, but the more practical applications are either as a fertilizer, feed, or fuel.

First, however, producers must examine ways to effectively sell the manure they have. That's where the extension office comes in.

Leon Ressler, of the extension office in Lancaster, said that the marketing list will help farmers improve how they market their manure.

"We're continuing programs that have already been in place for a few years," said Ressler. "And we've been working on it several years already.

"There is no (quick-fix) solution," he said. "It's something we've been working at for years and we'll be continuing to work at."

Penn State Poultry Facilities Nears Completion

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Penn State's new Poultry Education and Research Center is nearing completion, said officials in the College of Agricultural Sciences. Faculty and staff are expected to start moving into the new facilities later this fall.

"Relocation of the poultry research and education farm from its current site has been a college priority for at least three decades," said Dr. James Starling, senior associate dean for administration in the college. "It's rewarding to see this new facility become a reality."

"This new center will give our faculty and students access to state-of-the art facilities for studying poultry," said Dr. William D. Weaver, professor and head of Penn State's Poultry science department. "The present poultry farm was built in the 1930s, and it's fairly antiquated. This new construction will bring our facilities up to date. We'll be able to accomplish much more in both teaching and research."

The Poultry Education and Research Center is located off University Drive extension on the northeastern fringe of the University Park Campus. The $5.5 million facility will contain six separate buildings with an area of approximately 50,000 square feet. An addtioinal $650,000 will be invested in new equipment.

"The new complex includes a central research and administrastion building," said Weaver. "There are separate houses for meat birds, young layers and adult layers, as well as a breeder building for genetics work and a meat processing lab."

Among the new facilities are four environmental chambers. "These chambers allow us to control the birds' environment," said Weaver. "Each chamber can hold up to 400 birds We can alter the chamber's temperature, relative humidity, ventilation, and light rates to simulate different seasons, housing types or other environmental factors.

"Although some items will be moved from the old poultry farm to the new center, outdated equipment will be replaced by modern equivalents," said Weaver. "New items to be installed in the facility include incubators, reasearch and commercial production cages, and various lab and processing equipment."

Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences plans to hold a dedication ceremony for the Poultry Education and Research Center in Spring 1994. In the meantime, here's a preview of what the center's six buildings will include:

• The Research and Administration Building will house a conference room, environmental chambers, a hatchery, a feed mixing area, battery rooms, a surgery room, student housing and office space.

• The Meat Bird House will have four sections, each with 24 research pens and a laboratory. The Pullet House will feature 10 individual floor pens, a large pullet cage rearing room, a feed mixer and feed room, and a laboratory.

• The Cage Layer House and Turkey Grow-Out Facility will have six floor pens, cage layer room for 5,000 hens, laboratory and egg storage space, and an analysis and processing room. The building also will contain 24 floor pens for market turkeys.

• The Breeder House will have a largte artificial insemination cage room for breeders, along with floor pens, an egg cooler, and laboratory. The Processing Building will contain processing rooms, walk-in coolers and freezers, laboratory space, a shop and a garage.

Penn State's new Poultry Education and Research Center is nearing completion. The $5.5 million facility will contain six separate buildings with an area of approximately 50,000 square feet. An additional $650,000 will be invested in new equipment.

buffet breakfast followed by breakout sessions for broiler, egg, and turkey producers. At the Broiler Conference, Dr. Vergil Davis, director of avian biological development and regulatory affairs for Sanofi Animal Health, Inc., will review a new treatment for bursal disease. Following Davis, Noel Dykes, Sterwin Laboratories, Inc., will review ventilation options. Dykes is recognized as one of the authorities on various ventilation alternatives.

At the Egg Conference, Dr. Richard Gast, a microbiologist with U SDA's Southeast Poultry Research Laboratory in Athens, Ga., will give an overview of all the research to-date on Salmonella enteritidis. For egg producers who have been plagued with this problem, Gast will provide a glimpse at what help may be expected from research efforts. Joanne Ivy, vice president of the American Egg Board, follows Gast with a "first" for U.S. egg producers. Ivy will preview the new television commercials produced by Grey Advertising which will probably air in October 1993.

At the Turkey Conference, Dr. Y.M. Saif, a member of the Department of Veterinary Preventive Medicine and Department of Poultry Science at Ohio State University, will review recent rends in managing turkey diseases. Saif is frequently consulted by the commercial turkey industry for advice and counsel regarding turkey diseases.

Dr. Mike Hulet, Penn State University Poultry Science Department, will discuss how litter can affect urkey quality. Hulet is a recent addition to the Penn State faculty, but has been involved in numerous projects regarding litter at his former university, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

AT the conclusion of the breakout sessions, conference attendees will be treated to a special presentation by Gene Perret, Bob Hope's head comedy writer.

Social Functions - Hospitality suites will be open Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday evenings. There are also two other social events during the show.

Attendees have the option Wednesday evening of traveling by bus to the Dutch Apple Dinner Theater to see the musical drama, "Phantom of the Opera."

On Thursday evening, the show concludes with a social and banquet in the hotel ballroom with special door prizes and humorous presentation by Bryon Townsend.

New Poultry Science Workbook Available

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — A new 40-page poultry science curriculum workbook is available from the National Vocational Agricultural Teachers Association (NVATA), thanks to a cooperative development project between the National FFA Foundation and Beacon Products.

Beacon, a division of the Woodstream company based here, manufactures a broad line of products and accessories for the care and breeding of poultry, game birds, hogs, rabbits and pets. Beacon's two-year sponsorship covers development and distribution of the new curriculum, which had been identified as a critical need among vo-ag educators. In addition, the firm is promoting the new materials through its distributor and dealer network.

Poultry Science and Enterprise Analysis was researched and compiledl by Dr. Robert A. Martin, associate professor of agriculture and extension education at Iowa State University, under contract with the National FFA Foundation, which had secured the partnership with Beacon.

According to Dr. Martin, the new curriculum is designed to help students:

* Identify the scope of the poultry industry and its economic significance.

* Develop a fuller understanding of the importance of science in the poultry industry.

* Acquire scientific information and use it in poultry production, processing, marketing, merchandising and consumption.

* Explore career opportunities in the poultry industry.

* Develop personal skills in the area of decision making, communication, leadership and citizenship.

"Vo-ag teachers will find a variety of teaching units to help students discover the many imputs, costs and other factors that must be considered in conducting any business enterprise. The Curriculum is focused on poultry science in general, and broiler production in particular, because this is a direct means to demonstrate the complete enterprise cycle," notes Jack Keller, regional director of the National FFA Foundation.

According to Howard Magness, Beacon sales and marketing manager, "Beacon has supported vo-ag programs in various way sover the years. Our current sponsorship of the pouyltry science program addresses a need that was clear and immediate. FFA and NVATA have the experience and resources to administer this program effectively. And we anticipate Beacon distributors will benefit because the program enables them to offer the new poultry science curriculum to vo-ag teachers and FFA chapters at the local level."

Vo-ag teachers may contact the nearest Beacon distributor or dealer or the NVATA national headquarters (PO Box 15440, Alexandria, Va. 22309) to obtain their free copy of the new curriculum workbook.

POULTRY NOTES

Benchmarks in Layer Performance

Paul H. Patterson

It is easy to document progress in the layer industry with the excellent records that are kept on commercial white egg strains today. In his "Egg Economics Update" Don Bell, poultry specialist at Riverside, Calif. looked back on 18 years of summarizing performance records of table egg flocks and the progress that has been made (Table 1).

During the period from 1973 to 1991, eggs per hen housed has improved 45.4 eggs, or 2.5 eggs per hen per year. The average rate of egg production has increased by 13.4 percent or .74 percent per year. Mortality percentages have gone down weekly from .33 to .15 percent, while total figures have dropped from 10.6 to 6.0 percent (.26 percent per year). Birds today tend to weigh less than they did 20 years ago, and with this trend feed consumption has been reduced from .234 pound per hen per day to only .212 pound. This represents an annual improvement of .12 pound per 100 hens per day during the 18-year period. Feed conversion (pounds of feed per dozen eggs) has improved from 3.86 to 3.19 pound in 18 years, with an annual drop of .04 pound per dozen per year.

Year	HH eggs	HD %	Mortality % Weekly	Mortality % Total	Feed lb/100 hd. (from 25 to 60 wks)	Feed lb/doz. (from 25 to 60 wks)	Under-grade %

1991 flocks	HH eggs to 60 wk	Hen-Day ave %	HD peak 28-31 wk	Mortality %	Feed lb/100 hd	Feed lb/doz	Under-grade %
Best 25%	229.1	83.4	92.7	2.6	19.2	2.92	2.2
Poorest 25%	204.3	75.3	85.2	10.6	23.0	3.45	5.7

While these numbers are not the most that can be expected from today's laying hens, they represent an "average" and demonstrate the progress that has been made over 18 years of keeping records. Ranges in performance are shown for 1991 in Table 2. These are the corresponding "best 25 percent" and "poorest 25 percent" records of 360 flocks summarized.

Compared to the 1991 average flock, there is the opportunity to get an additional 11.7 eggs to 60 weeks. Don't be satisfied with an average 79.7 percent hen day egg production when the best 25 percent are getting 83.4 percent and peaks of 92.7 percent. Furthermore, better flocks have less mortality, fewer undergrades, and do it all with less feed.

As a target, you can compare your flocks with this range of performance, and ask the hard questions: why is my flock not performing as well in certain categories listed below? Without good records, and the time to really look them over and evaluage flocks performance, it's difficult to get to the bottom of a bird health, equipment, or performance problem.

Dietary Treatment For Laying Hens With Kidney Damage

Paul H. PAtterson
Assistant Professor, Poultry Science, Penn State

Researchers at Penn State University have shown that when Leghorn pullets are fed laying hen diets during the growout period (6 to 18 weeks), formation of kidney stones or uroliths are induced in the ureters and urine collecting ducts of the kidney.

Compared with the young pullets requirements, layer rations contain high levels of calcium (3.5 to 4.o percent) and relatively low levels of available phosphorus (.4 to .5 percent). Pullets fed these rations will exhibit, in addition to stones, kidney atrophy, fiber formation, tissue mineralization, asymmetry and a reduction in the number of urine filtering units.

These symptoms are similar to the degenerative renal disease "urolithiasis". In addition, infectious bronchitis virus (IBV) has been suspected as a cause of urolithiasis, based on the evidence that some strains of IBV cause kidney damage similar to field outbreaks of urolithiasis.

In experimental work combining the effects of the "Gray" strain of IBV and layer rations, urolithiasis incidence has been observed at between 8.6 and 25 percent, and kidney damage between 25.8 and 58 percent.

Unfortunately, the degree of kidney damage may not be realized until later in the adult life of the hen when accumulated kidney calcium deposits and loss of functional tissue results in a drop in egg production and increase in hen mortality! What is a egg-producer to do if these circumstances happen to your birds?

Prevention is the best cure, by closely monitoring the calcium levels fed to your pullets and ensuring adequate IBV protection with a polyvalent vaccination program. If you still are faced with kidney damaged hens, there are some remedial treatments that can be applied in preventing further growth of the kidney stsones. These calcium deposits are caused in large part because of a metabolic alkalosis brought on by an increase in the cation:anion ratio of the ration. This leads to an increase in urine calcium concentration, a decrease in the H+ ion concentration, and providing an excellent medium for precipitation of calcium-urate, the primary mineral in avion uroliths.

Treatment lies with the strategy of increasing dietary H+ ion concentration (more acid) in hopes of reducing urine pH and dissolving urinary calcium. Calcium solubilized by urine acidification can then be excreted without precipitation in the kidney. These are several means of modifying dietary pH or H+ ion concentration to prevent kidney stone enlargement and dissolve preformed deposits. Ammonium chloride added to the diet at the 0.5 percent level has been successful in reducing calcium-induced kidney damage and stone formation, however, it substantially increases water consumption, urine flow, and manure moisture. The manure moisture may not be a problem with a flush-type waste system, but would prevent good coning of manure in ahigh-rise layer house.

An alternative is ammonium sulfaste fed at the same 0.5 percent level. It may be difficult to find feed grade ammonium sulfate, but you would avoid the problem of greater water consumption and wetter manure observed with the ammonium chloride.

Another approach is to supplement dietary methionine. At the 0.25-0.52 percent dietary level, DL-methionine increases urinary acid excretion and has a similar effect as acidifying the diet. Alternatively one can add the free acid form of methionine hydroxy analog (trade name Alimet) at an equal molar level (0.3-0:6 percent) to DL-methionine. Using the liquid Alimet takes advantage of the inherent acidity of the product and, because it is an amino acid analog, no additional nitrogen is added to the diet.

Either the DL-methionine or the Alimet treatment benefits must be weighed against the additional cost of adding them to the diet. At best, we would hope to prevent any further kidney damage and related mortality, and allow the hens to get back to the business of laying eggs.

H.S. Siegel
Professor of Poultry Science
Penn State University

There is little doubt that heredity plays a role in the bird's ability to resist disease.

Although it was long known that some strains of birds were more prone to certain diseases, while others appeared to be resistant to the same diseases, it is only recently that scientists have begun to investigate the genetic mechanisms responsible for these differences.

One of the areas for investigation has been the relationship of what is called the "major histocompatability complex" or MHC to resistance of susceptibility. THe MHC received its name from the original finding in mice that a group of genes influenced tissue graft acceptance or rejection.

The association of the MHC to disease has been thoroughly investigated in mice and humans in connection with sysceptibility to tumors and with malfunction of the immune system, but although it was first described in mice, the chicken was the second animal species in which the MHC was described.

The chicken MHC shares the characteristics of two of the three classes of MHC found in mammals such as humans and rodents, but in addition, has a unique forth class that is restricted to the red blood cells. This class IV MHC in chickens is highly polymorphic — that is to say, many types occur at the same location on the chromosone. To date, more than 30 so-called "haplotypes" or blood types have been demonstrated on the red blood cells of chickens.

Some of these types are assocaited with resistance to specific diseases. For example, the B21 haplotype is related to resistance to Markes disease, while the B5, B13 or B19 haplotypes are apparently related to susceptibility to M areks. On the other hand, chickens with the B2 haplotype have beenfound to be more susceptible to coccidiosis than some othe rB-types.

Genetic research programs in the Netherlands and at Virginia Polytechnic Institute have developed lines of chickens that produce high or low levels of antibodies. It is very interesting that in both research programs, when the birds are blood typed, the high antibody lines were predominantly B21, and the low antibody line birds were predominantly B13 or B19.

At Penn State, we are studying the early events that follow the exposure of chickens to a potential pathogen. In these studies we are able to track the movement of cells that are important in the production of antibodies within the body. It is significant that tere is a relationship between the percentage of these cells in the blood and the B21 blood type.

Thus, there seems to be a relationship between the MHC and disease resistance. However, keep in mind that other genetic factors are also important, and that the influence of the MHC operates within the total genetic makeup of the bird.

News From The United Egg Producers

Though many producers responded to UEP's warning to reduce flock size, the industry saw a 13¢ drop in the average gg quote in 1992 from the previous year.

UEP encouraged members to participate in export orders to Mexico to limit the severity of the price decline, and many did, filling orders for 370,000 cases.

With supply/demand conditions still a major issue, UEP will advise the membership of the continuing need to make changes in 1993.

Though government relation issues such as food labeling, food safety refrigeration, animal welfare, Salmonella enteritidis, environmental regulations, Americans with Disability Act, and more, were part of UEP's agenda last year, with a new administration in Washington, we look forward to solutions in 1993.

Because of so many new faces in the new Congress, cartons of eggs will be delivered to members of congress each week throughout 1993, until each one has been called on. As an impressive calling card, UEP will continue to deliver eggs at the Spring Washington D.C. Board meeting and again during the Christmas holidays.

UEP and UEA, while operating separate EggPac programs, raised a combined total of nearly $60,000.

Situation And Outlook Report

Livestock and poultry production in 1994 is expected to be record high again as producers' returns have been generally favorable. Excessive rainfall and flooding conditions in the Midwest have reduced prospects for 1993 corn and soybean crops. However, large 1992/93 ending grain stocks and the availability of substitute feeds will help mute the effect on producers' feed costs.

Total red meat and poultry production in 1994 is expected to increase about 3.5 percent. Producer prices next year are forecast to be unchanged to slightly lower. Per capita disappearance of red meat and poultry is projected to increase about 4 pounds from 1993's expected 210-pound record.

Broiler production in 1994 is expected to reach 23 billion pounds, about 5 percent above 1993. Broiler prices will average near or just below 1993.

Turkey production will expand 1-2 percent in 1994, about the same rate as 1993. Returns are expected to be only slightly above break-even in the second half of 1993 and near break-even in 1994. Prices and per capita consumption in 1994 will likely be about the same as this year.

Egg production in 1994 is forecast to increase about 1 percent. The increased production will likely pressure prices, reducing the annual average wholesale price by about 5 cents per dozen.

Cook Your Way To The Caribbean

GEORGETOWN, Del. — An all-inclusive Caribbean vacation for two — your choice of a cruise or time at an island resort, $1,000, a Frigidaire range, Cutco cutlery, a gas grill, and gifts from McCormick and Company from Proctor-Silex — await the best chicken cook in the 1994 Delmarva Chicken Cooking Contest. Second and third-place winners will share prizes valued at more than $3,000.

All that's needed to enter is an original recipe for broiler-fryer chicken — whole or any parts — that rates high on taste, appearance, and simplicity. Residents of 12 eastern states (Virginia to Maine) and the District of Columbia are eligible to compete. Twenty finalists will be chosen by recipe judging to receive expense-paid trips to cook-off finals set for June 17-19, 1994 in Dover Del.

Deadline for entering is Febraury 1, 1994. Multiple recipe entries may be submitted but each must have name, address, and telephone number attached.

The contest is sponsored by Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc., the trade association representing the poultry industry on the Delmarva Peninsula. For official entry forms, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Contest, c/o Delmarva Poultry, R.D. 6, Box 47, Georgetown, DE 19947-9622.

Chicken Royale, the entry of Dwight Dewsnap of Brockton, Massachusetts, took top honors at the last Delmarva Cook-Off. Well suited to special-occasion meals, this simple oven dish is as pretty as it is delicious.

Chicken Royale

2 whole broiler-fryer chicken breasts, halved, boned, skinned
1 package (4 ounces) herb-flavored cheese, quartered
½ cup English walnuts, finely chopped
4 large spinach leaves, steamed slightly
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ cup dry white wine
½ cup bottled reduced-calorie raspberry vinaigrette dressing*
2 tablespoons margarine

On hard surface with meat mallet or similar flattening utensil, pound chicken to ¼ -inch thickness. Roll the cheese quarter sin walnuts. Place one spinach leaf on each breast; top with a cheese quarter. Fold chicken around spinach and cheese to form a mound. Sprinkle salt and pepper over chicken. Place chicken in baking pan. Cover and bake in 350° F. oven 30 minutes or until chicken is fork tender. In small frypan, mix together wine and raspberry vinaigrette dressing. Cook over medium heat until sauce is reduced by one-half; stir in margarine. Pour sauce over chicken. Serve with rice. Makes 4 servings.

* If raspberry vinaigrette dressing is not available, substitute ¼ cup bottled reduced-calorie red wine vinegar and oil dressing and ¼ cup seedless raspberry jam. Omit the margarine.
